Miners Given Ultimatum

(Times News Services)

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) —Terrorists attacked the home of Bolivia's labor minister with dynamite and bullets today shortly after the government gave rebellious tin miners a 48-hour ultimatum to release 17 hostages.

A stick of dynamite, commonly used in mining operations, was thrown on the doorstep of Labor Minister Anibal Aguilar Penarrieta at dawn and two shots were fired into the house.

The minister, brandishing a sub-machinegun, ran into the street in his pajamas to return the fire, but the assailants fled in an automobile.

The government's tough warning to the rebel miners was issued by Defence Minister Gen. Luis Bidagain.

DOESN'T NEED AID

Foreign Minister Jose Velarde said, meanwhile, the government appreciated a U.S. aid offer but did not need help—"neither arms or munitions and much less, personnel."

New violence threatened with announcement by the Bolivian Worker's Central which rebel leader vice - president Juan Lechin heads that it would stage an anti-government demonstration in La Paz Thursday.

However, threat of an imminent armed clash between the army and the rebellious miners dissipated somewhat with announcement of a "truce" between the opposing factions.

The army command at Oruro, where the government has been massing troops, said forces sent out to cut off the rebel elements at Catavi, where the hostages are being held, had been withdrawn. In exchange, rebellious miners called off a "show of strength" among peasant supporters in the Bolivian highlands and agreed to resume work at unaffected mines.

The rebels seized the hostages last Friday to force the government to release three Communist labor leaders being held on murder and fraud charges in La Paz.

Canadians—Raymond Brousseau and Aurele Falardeaux—apparently are free but unable to leave Catavi.

CANADIANS FREE

Originally it was reported that four Canadian technicians working in the area had been taken prisoner. Slow communications and the remoteness of the area where the Canadians were located hindered making contact with them, leaving their fate up in the air.

But Tuesday the 15 hostages were interviewed by reporters

Columbia Talks End Without Agreement

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Columbia River talks between Canada and the U.S. appeared to be drawing to a close this afternoon, but with no final agreement in prospect.

The meetings, in a previously unscheduled third day, broke up at 10:30 a.m. Victoria time, after a four-hour session marked by separate meetings of teams from each side.

Conference spokesmen said they expected a joint communique would be issued following resumption of talks this afternoon.

It was being widely speculated that the communique would state exchanges of views were made and that now the subject material would be closely studied by technical experts. The experts would report to their respective governments, with negotiations to resume possibly next week in Washington.

PRIVATE PARLEY

At one stage in this mornings meetings, political members of the Canadian team — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner and B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston — left the conference room for a private gathering elsewhere. Observers speculated that they were in contact by long distance telephone with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett respecting some American offer or proposal. This was not confirmed, however.

When discussions ended Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Martin sounded a note of caution.

WANTS TO BE SURE

"This is a very important matter," he sternly told reporters. "It involves many millions of dollars. We all want to make sure we are acting responsibly and in the best interests of our respective countries."

Mr. Martin responded with more hope, however, when he was asked if there was any danger of negotiations breaking off, thus damaging chances for co-operative Canada-U.S. development of the international river.

He said there wasn't, but added he did not understand the implications of the question. He fully expected, he said, to be "dealing with this at a higher level," once the negotiators had completed their work.

But he then declined to make any suggestion as to how soon the negotiators might end their work by reaching an agreement which could be recommended for approval by both the Canadian and U.S. Governments.

MANY THINGS

The question of establishing a price for U.S. purchase of B.C.'s share of the downstream power benefits resulting from development on the Canadian section of the river was the main issue before the negotiators.

Mr. Martin agreed following the Tuesday discussion that downstream benefits did not constitute the only question involved in the talks.

"There are many things involved," he said. "interpretations have a lot to do with price."

Earlier in the day — at the lunch-hour break — there were indications that negotiations were reaching a climactic point.

Conference sources said something would be decided soon, or else the $450 million project would be shelved indefinitely. Observers gained the impression that both sides were firming up their positions, with a deadlock in prospect barring sudden discovery of common ground.

NOT BUDGING

The Canadian side was not budging from the minimum price of five mills per kilowatt hour, or its equivalent, set by Premier Bennett.

Mr. Martin went out of his way several times in discussions with reporters Tuesday to insist that the federal and B.C. governments were "totally united" on the Canadian approach to negotiations.

Doomed Little Boy Greeted Dad With Present at the 'Station'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five-year - old Bradley McDonald met his daddy at the railway station Tuesday.

At least, he thought it was a railway station, and that his stepfather was arriving home after looking for a job on Vancouver Island.

In fact, Gordon James McDonald, 35, was getting out of prison.

McDonald was sentenced Nov. 15 to six months in jail for theft of $680, money he said he wanted for toys, clothing and medical care for his leukemia - stricken son. The boy is not expected to live another year.

The B.C. Court of Appeal Monday ruled mercy was warranted and ordered McDonald released.

Tuesday, Bradley and his mother Carol, 25, stood outside Oakalla Prison Farm, Bradley clutching a package of cigars wrapped laboriously in red and green Christmas paper. Under the ribbon was the photograph of his father he had kept with him while he spent three days in hospital last week for further treatment.

"Is the train in yet?" he kept asking. "When is daddy coming?"

Then his father walked out through the prison gate. Bradley ran forward, present outstretched.

"Hello, daddy," he said.

KOREAN KIDDIES' FUND

Only Two Weeks Left to Give

Total contribution to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund" is now approaching the $5,000 mark but last year's gift from Victoria was more than double this amount.

Unless many more people contribute a Friendship Dollar or two to the fund Christmas day will be as grim as any other for uncounted thousands of the destitute in the slums of Seoul and Mokpo, Korea.

They won't know the joy of sitting down to an over stuffed table but the joy of receiving a ration of milk and bowl of barley will be just as great. This is one Christmas present thousands of Canadians can give.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, reports that two-thirds of the USC's target of 310,000 Friendship Dollars has been collected, but she adds "the last mile is always the most difficult."

All food is distributed in the name of Canada through the Unitarian Service Committee.

All contributions should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m. Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

Acknowledgement of contributions will be made in a daily list published in the Times and official receipts will be sent later from USC headquarters.

WASHINGTON-MOSCOW DIRECT FLIGHTS NEAR

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. Aviation Agency administrator Najeeb E. Halaby arrived today to discuss what could be one of the first major East-West agreements under President Johnson's administration—direct commercial flights between Russia and the United States.

Informed observers said the agreement seemed virtually assured.

'Hooded Gang' Crime Solved

MONTREAL (CP)—Operations of hooded gangs in Quebec and Ontario, involving scores of crimes, are believed to have been broken, Quebec Provincial Police said today.

The crimes, carried out during the last year and amounting to at least 200, included a number of rape cases, bank robberies, hi-jacking of trucks and armed invasions of homes.

Total loot stolen by the gangs was estimated at $1,000,000.

The crimes took place in Montreal, western Quebec province, Ottawa, Toronto and Brockville, Ont.

"The arrests have broken the operations of some of the most wanted men in the country," Inspector Herve Patenaude said.

He said eight men are under arrest and seven of them have been arraigned on minor charges.

Two other men, described by police as prime suspects, are being sought.

JEWELRY RECOVERED

Inspector Patenaude said about $15,000 worth of jewelry and $30,000 worth of other merchandise have been recovered from the gang robberies.

The rapes were committed on daughters in the presence of their parents and on wives in the presence of their husbands in the course of robberies of well-to-do people.

A number of severe beatings were also administered during the home break-ins.

Inspector Patenaude said the first break in the case came last week when hoods and firearms were found in a steel box under the bonnet of a car stopped by police at Vimont, 12 miles north of Montreal.

Kidnap Gang Still Hunted

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Frank Sinatra's 19-year-old singer son, kidnapped at Lake Tahoe, Nev., and held blindfolded 54 hours, was released unharmed on a street here today after secret manoeuvres in which his father paid a gang a $240,000 ransom.

The FBI conducted an intensive search for the abductors, but would say nothing about progress.

Slender Frank Sinatra Jr., whose goal is to duplicate his famous father's entertainment success, was taken at gunpoint Sunday night from a motel on the California - Nevada border just before a casino singing engagement.

A private policeman patrolling the exclusive Bel-Air district here picked him up—the blindfold still dangling from his neck—after he heard a shout of "hey" from darkness behind his car.

DRAMATIC REUNION

The patrolman drove him to the nearby home of the boy's mother, Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, long divorced from the senior actor-singer. There, emerging from the trunk of the car where Junior had hidden to avoid reporters, came a dramatic reunion.

The elder Sinatra, who had been negotiating with the gang since Monday and flew here Tuesday night for the payoff, lost his look of haggard tenseness as he greeted his son.

"Father, I'm sorry," the youth said.

"Sorry? Sorry for what?" said Sinatra, embracing him.

Young Frank then embraced his mother, who broke down and wept.

"Don't cry, mother, I'm well. I'm in good shape."

Young Sinatra went to bed without talking to reporters but a spokesman said he probably would do so later in the day.

NICE BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Sinatra Sr., observing his 46th birthday, spoke briefly to reporters, saying: "This is about as good a birthday present as I could ask."

He continued:

"Frank (junior) didn't see much of the men. He was blindfolded most of the time and said something to me about being in more automobile trunks than anyone else in the world.

"The first phone call I got from the kidnappers let me know they had the boy and that he was all right. The man I talked to sounded like he meant business.

"I spoke to Frank (by telephone) twice. First, I asked him how he was and he said 'fine.' I asked him if he felt cold and he said 'no.'

"They took him out of the motel without socks and let him wander around in the snow with just a T-shirt on. He wasn't bothered physically, but he's pretty weary. I talked to him at 9 o'clock last night and yesterday afternoon in Reno about mid-day.

TOLD TO GET MONEY

"In Reno, I got a call to be here (at Mrs. Sinatra's home). They said I'd get another call.

"They told me, 'get $240,000'.

"I got it. The money was in small bills—fives, tens, fifties, hundreds.

"I came here and got a couple more telephone calls. They told me to go to a service station at Camden . . . and I don't remember the other street. Then I had to go to another service station.

"Then they took me off the thing and a federal man took over as courier.

"Then I got a telephone call from a man who said he dropped the boy off at Mulholland and the Freeway. We went out but couldn't find him.

"The man's voice sounded as

Train Loot Found

LONDON (CP)—Sacks containing £50,000 ($150,000) in bills, believed to be part of the loot from August's nearly £3,000,000 great train robbery, were found today in a telephone booth in south London.

The bills were in £1 and £5 denominations, the same as those taken in the ambush-robbery of a mail train bound for London last August.

Police were sent to the telephone booth after a telephone tip.

Another new development in the case came Tuesday when Roy (the Weasel) James, 27-year - old silversmith sought since Aug. 23 in connection with the robbery was arrested after a rooftop chase in London's St. John's Wood district.

James, a former racing driver, was living in a secluded mews cottage sub-let by Anne Stefan, a Canadian woman who lives next door.

Newspaper accounts said James was overpowered and arrested after breaking through a skylight in the cottage and sliding down a drainpipe into the small back garden. He was charged with conspiracy and robbery and was to appear in court tonight.

James is the 21st person to be arrested in the train robbery hunt.

The sensational escapade took place in the early hours of Aug. 8 when some 30 masked and armed men ambushed a mail train at a lonely crossing in Buckinghamshire, escaping with up to £3,000,000. Some of the money has been recovered.

Last week John Daly, 31, was arrested at his flat in Belgravia in connection with the robbery. Daly, of County Wexford, Republic of Ireland, was remanded in custody Tuesday at Linslade, Buckinghamshire.

Oswald Probe May Take Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some officials predicted privately today that it may be a year before Chief Justice Earl Warren's commission finishes investigating the assassination of President Kennedy.

The predictions followed disclosure by government sources that threads from the shirt of Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, were found snagged on the rifle which authorities say was used to kill Kennedy as he rode in a Dallas motorcade Nov. 22.

The government sources also reported Tuesday that Oswald's palm print was found on the rifle. And they said some latent fingerprints—identified as Oswald's — were lifted by FBI technicians from wrapping paper which hid the rifle when it was carried into the Dallas text book depository building where Oswald worked.

'QUICKIE JOB' UNWANTED

As the Warren commission continued its study of a five-volume FBI report on the assassination, a friend of the chief justice predicted the commission's work will not be completed for "a good many months at least."

Another official said it won't bother the White House if the commission takes a year, adding: "Nobody wants a quickie job. President Johnson made that clear in creating the commission."

There was evidence from Warren himself that the commission considers the massive FBI investigation report, delivered to the seven commission members Monday night, just the starting point for its task.

The FBI report, moreover, is itself not complete. Officials said supplemental reports will be sent to Warren "from time to time" as teams of agents still at work check out leads and information.

The report as it reached Warren was known to indicate that Oswald, 24, committed the assassination without accomplices and that Oswald had no connection with Jack Ruby, 52, the Dallas night club owner who killed Oswald two days later.

Ghana Judge Frees 3, Nkrumah Fires Judge

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters) — President Kwame Nkrumah today revoked the appointment of Sir Arku Korsah as Ghana's chief justice. Korsah was president of a special court that two days ago found three defendants not guilty in a treason trial.

The judgment, which sentenced the two other defendants to death, was followed by heated criticism in the press and protests in various parts of the country.

The official statement announcing the dismissal gave no reason for the action.

The three men acquitted on charges of treason and conspiracy to commit treason were former foreign minister Ako Adjei, former information minister Tawiah Adamafio and H. Cofie Crabbe, former secretary of the ruling Convention Peoples Party.

They remained under detention after their acquittal.

Interior Minister Kwaku Boateng explained that they were being held under the preventative detention order, aimed primarily at preventing a person from committing an offence in the future.

The two men sentenced to death on the same treason charges were Robert Benjamin Otchere, a former opposition legislator, and Yaw Manu, a former civil servant.

Attorney - General Kwaw Swanzy commented afterward on the court's judgment that it savored of "discrimination" and that the two different rulings were incompatible.

"It would have been better to acquit all five accused or convict the whole lot," he said.

ROUND-A-BOUT

Buying a ticket for a 4,000-mile plane trip just a day or so after the recent TCA crash, I asked public relations man Hal Miloff if there was any noticeable drop-off in traffic after such accidents.

"Negligible," he said. "The fact remains that statistics show you're 18 per cent safer in the air than you are on the ground."

Nevertheless, I bought $225,000 worth of air insurance for $7.50—the cheapest way I know to build an estate—and noticed that the girl at the counter was doing a brisk business.

* * *

Victoria newspapers lost a very good friend in that crash. Among the victims was Phil Austin of Toronto, who used to represent The Times and Colonist on national advertising in the East.

Phil was a handsome and personable young man, father of three children, who had busied himself in good works in the suburban community of Don Mills. A memorial service at his local church attracted a congregation of 500 friends.

When we offered our sympathies to his father, Bill Austin, he replied with a brave statement: "I cannot help recalling that 118 other families are bereaved, as we are."

Victoria's oldest known veteran of the South African War—John James Abbott of 15 Cambridge Street—is 96 today.

J. J. Abbott

Last September he flew to Saskatchewan with members of his family to complete the sale of a 320-acre farm near Grenfell, which has been under management since he retired to Victoria 26 years ago.

He joined the British Army Medical Corps in England in 1899 and sailed with an ambulance unit to Cape Town.

"If I had my time over again I'd still be a farmer," Mr. Abbott said. "It's the best life in the world for a man and the most natural."

Mr. Abbott took up farming when he migrated to Saskatchewan from Higham Ferrers, Northamptonshire, in 1909, and two years later bought his first piece of land. "I've lived off the land ever since," he said.

At the age of 92, Ivor Curtis, 354 Berwick Street, still climbs 50 steps to ring the John Jessup chimes in the tower at Metropolitan United Church.

He has been attending the church for 38 years and is a life member of the choir.

"I don't ring the bells quite as often as I used to," Mr. Curtis said today, "but church music is my hobby and I still play the piano."

This is quite an achievement since Mr. Curtis will be 93 next July 19.

Two Victoria girls who grew up in West Germany with PPCLI families have returned there as PPCLI wives.

Jean

Times reporter Norman Cribbens met them at Fort MacLeod, Hemer, where the First Battalion, PPCLI, is now stationed after their six-year tour of duty in Victoria.

Mrs. Jean Proulx, wife of Cpl. Denis Proulx, was formerly at Hemer with her parents, Sgt. Major D. G. Spurrier of the First Battalion, and Mrs. Spurrier.

Aileen

Mrs. Aileen Cox, wife of Pte. Eric Cox, also grew up at Hemer with her parents, Sgt. and Mrs. H. E. Simpson, and has returned there with her son, Johnnie, born in Victoria five months ago.

Amazingly, both families are reunited at Hemer, as their fathers and husbands are serving with the PPCLI.

"It seems like a miracle," said pretty, fair-haired Mrs. Proulx. "Aileen and I went to Canadian Army schools at Hemer and have almost the same background. We returned to Victoria with our parents and the PPCLI in 1957. Now we're all together in Germany again."

Mrs. Proulx wears a sveldt leopard-skin lounge suit around the house but not on the streets. German civilians don't like women wearing pants in public, so the Canadian Army has issued a directive against it.

Mrs. Proulx and Mrs. Cox and their husbands are living in PMQs (permanent married quarters) in the town of Hemer, close by Fort MacLeod.

As usual, the Chamber of Commerce Christmas Party set for Friday is a sellout, with all 400 tickets snapped up.

Secretary-manager John Coppinger says that Fred Usher has lined up another outstanding entertainment, headlined by Betty Phillips of CBC-TV in Vancouver. Also on the bill are Dick Broderick, comedian-impressionist from Hollywood, and Barbara and Andre, an outstanding acrobatic act from Hamburg, Germany.

Choose Industry Sites Labor Urges Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labour Congress urged the federal government today to take a direct hand in determining the location of industry as part of over-all economic planning for full employment and a growing economy.

In their first formal confrontation with the new Liberal cabinet, Canada's top union leaders advanced this proposal along with others in a 38-page memorandum on organized labor's views on the major issues of the day.

The CLC sharply criticized Finance Minister Gordon's budgetary policies and urged that a balanced budget be forgotten until unemployment is reduced and the economy is in high gear.

CLC President Claude Jodoin, reading the submission of the 1,080,000-member central labor organization, repeated labor's view that taxes should be cut for low-income workers and government spending boosted as part of a comprehensive and integrated program of monetary, fiscal and other policies.

"In short, we favor economic planning."

On location of industry, the CLC said the government must participate in decisions that lead corporations to establish plants in particular communities or to transfer existing plants from one locality to another.

Voicing concern about the "undue concentration" of industry in a few large metropolitan areas, the CLC said it would be healthier for the economy to disperse industry and thus spread out jobs across the country.

'COMPENSATE WORKERS'

The CLC said a "social fund" should be established—apparently by the government—to compensate workers and employers who are affected by industrial adjustments.

Much of the CLC submission was a restatement of existing policies on such topics as international affairs, defence policy, the Canada pension plan, the Unemployment Insurance Act, labor legislation, taxation, broadcasting and urban development.

Other points in the brief include:

Maritime union trusteeship—Federal legislation imposing government control over five marine unions would have "very dangerous consequences" if extended to other unions.

Right to strike—The recent legal strike of St. Lawrence River longshoremen raised an outcry for government intervention to end the walkout and get shipping moving again. "We were pleased to observe that your government did not yield to these pressures."

Railway layoffs—The railways, in striving for efficiency, should not be allowed to discharge employees without helping them by retraining and relocation allowances.

Civil service bargaining—The CLC said it was pleased that a committee is working out machinery for collective bargaining in the public service, but it was disappointed that compulsory arbitration will be a feature of the new plan.

Defence policy—Hope was expressed that backed by the special Commons defence committee, the government will reverse its decision to acquire nuclear weapons.

BELLI

FLAMBOYANT, SUAVE

Famed Lawyer To Defend Ruby

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lawyer Melvin M. Belli is known as a man who has a way with juries. Flamboyant, a man of letters and a student of medicine, he seems the personification of the fabled Philadelphia lawyer.

Belli said in Dallas Tuesday he will help defend Jack Ruby, a night club operator there who will go on trial Feb. 3 for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald. Oswald was the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

Belli (pronounced Bell-Eye), 55, is a resident of San Francisco who maintains offices there and in Los Angeles. Even so, he says most of the people who call him only have little cases.

"But they're all entitled to a lawyer. I never can tell when a call in broken English is going to bring me a case that is going to make me a $100,000 fee.

His element is the courtroom, where he has enjoyed enormous success in personal injury damage suits. Belli and his associates, it is said, have won more than 100 judgments of more than $100,000 each, including a single award of $675,000.

RAZZLE-DAZZLE TYPE

Suave, urbane and polished in private society, Belli takes some razzle-dazzle and earthy vigor into the courtroom.

He delights in unveiling grotesque exhibits such as the old skeleton he calls Elmer and a department store window manikin. He is also fond of elaborate charts, maps, floor plans, aerial photographs and any other kind of visual aid or demonstration in the courtroom.

"There is no law against interesting a jury," he once remarked.

Belli's personal appearance is striking. He is handsome, tending slightly to portliness, with wavy silver-grey hair and grey eyes.

He dresses elegantly, with a deliberate touch of the exotic. He buys his suits a half-dozen at a time in London's Saville Row.

"They're not terribly expensive," he says, "but when you figure the trip over there and back, and three days on the Riviera, it adds up."

Belli's personal trademarks are his wine-red Italian velvet briefcase, his black heavy-plastic framed glasses and the black boots he always wears in court.

A key to his success in personal injury suits is his ready knowledge of anatomy and medicine.

"I came from a family of doctors," he explained. "Wherever I go—London, Rome, Vienna—I go to the hospitals. I go into the amphitheatres to watch the great surgeons."

Outflow of Gold In U.S. Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — An official report Tuesday said the U.S. outflow of gold decreased in the first half of 1963. The net outflow for the first six months was $196,000,000 compared with $393,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1962.

The holdings of gold, short-term dollars and convertible dollar instruments rose during the period in 60 of 81 reporting countries. Major increases were reported in Western European nations, and in Canada, Japan, South Africa, and in Mexico, Argentina and Venezuela. Switzerland and Italy registered only losses.

Iceland Paralyzed

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuters)—Iceland faces a bleak Christmas with a general strike paralyzing the country and no sign of a settlement. Fifty trade unions, demanding a 30-per-cent wage increase, called a general strike here Tuesday, bringing all work to a standstill. Employers offered a 10-per-cent increase.

COUNCIL, SCHOOL BOARD

Candidates Seek Support Thursday

By JOHN MIKA

Victorians will receive three ballots when they enter the polls at the Victoria Ballroom, Government and Cormorant, to vote in the civic elections Thursday.

First is the plebiscite on the $375,000 money bylaw for reconstruction of the city police station and addition of a magistrate's court building.

Second is for election of two trustees on Greater Victoria School Board.

Third is for election of four aldermen.

All seven candidates for aldermanic posts were given a brief chance to outline their platforms at a luncheon meeting of Kiwanis Club Tuesday. The four trustee candidates were not invited.

Here, in their order of appearance on the ballots, are some of the points made by the candidates:

Robert Baird, investment counselor, 1310 May Street, says he will press for creation of a Greater Victoria Council composed of councillors from all four municipalities "which will come face to face with realities around a conference table" but have no powers.

He said high-rise apartment buildings should be concentrated along the waterfront between Fort and Johnson Streets to rehabilitate the run down warehouse area.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, publisher, 50 Thetis Lake Road, seeks his sixth term on his record as a member of all standing committees and chairman of the public works committee "which spends $2,500,000 annually and I believe wisely, on behalf of the ratepayers."

He urged sale of Victoria's parklands in Saanich "but to remain as parks," sale of water to Central Saanich at the same wholesale rate the city pays and continuation of the current redevelopment programs.

Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie, housewife, 121 Menzies Street, said her 20 years' experience in various women's clubs, including executive and city council observer positions, "have provided me with a training ground for public office."

She supports restoration of Bastion Square as a tourist centre, enclosing Bowker Creek and a greatly improved emergency ambulance service for Victorians.

Ald. J. L. W. McLean, clergyman, 63 Linden Avenue, advocates the city take over the Crystal Garden when the CPR's lease expires in two years and develop it into a civic recreation centre and swimming pool.

He said he supports Mayor R. B. Wilson's policies, downtown redevelopment, the tourist industry and measures aimed at making Victoria a pleasanter city for its residents.

Ald. M. H. Mooney, auto shop proprietor, 363 Robertson, said he stands on his record of 11 years service on council, including all standing committees. As chairman of traffic and planning committees, he said he will strive always to improve conditions in Victoria "to make it a lovely place to live in."

Ald. Mooney said he supports all current redevelopment projects, including Centennial Victoria Square, and would like to see pedestrian malls and more beautification programs undertaken as the next step in revitalizing the downtown area.

Victor Williams, real estate company director, 1625 Davie, said citizens should have more regular and ready access to council than at present. He urged development of a civic swimming pool, slum clearance projects, downtown comfort stations, and more direct council control over the police commission.

New Inflation Seen In Doctors' Increase

Higher doctors' fees will start a new round of inflation in B.C.'s economy, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Tuesday.

Mr. Strachan said doctors are the highest-paid group in B.C. society.

Their average annual income after expenses are deducted is $17,000, he said

"If the highest paid group needs more money — where does that leave the guy on the green chain?" Mr. Strachan asked.

A raise for doctors, he added, is "a strong argument for the workers of this province to go after a big fat increase."

Announced increases in doctor fees amount to 5.7 per cent of their income.

Some medical insurance schemes have already agreed to increase their premiums a corresponding amount.

Others, including MSA, the biggest, are still discussing what to do.

Mr. Strachan said that the doctors claim they need the raise to cope with rising overhead.

"But their income, determined after expenses are deducted, leaves them still the highest paid group in society," he added.

If doctors can't cope on $17,000, Mr. Strachan said, laboring men certainly can't survive on $3,500 to $4,000 a year.

They will now be completely justified in seeking raises in the coming year.

"This is the start of a new round of inflation," Mr. Strachan said.

U.S. SHIPYARDS TO CLOSE?

SEATTLE (AP)—U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara will recommend closure of naval shipyards at San Francisco, Boston and Philadelphia as an economy move, the Seattle Times said today.

The Times' Washington correspondent said the information came "from a high source."

Such a shutdown would involve nearly 25,000 civilian jobs—8,202 at Boston, 9,032 at Philadelphia and 7,124 at San Francisco.

The article said the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard at Bremerton, Wash., would not be affected.

The Times' informant said no date had been set for the closures but the action was expected to be swift—perhaps by the end of the year.

The move would be the latest in a series designed to trim $1,500,000,000 from the fiscal 1965 defence budget, a goal announced several days ago by McNamara and President Johnson.

Mr. K Sets the Pace

IF PREMIER KHRUSHCHEV can master the opposition to his plans for a greater flow of consumer goods for the Soviet people, the current Communist Party conference in Moscow may mark a significant turn in Soviet history.

Slogans, says Mr. Khrushchev, are not enough. Yet until now the people living under Russian Communism have been given more slogans than goods. Under his new program that will be changed. The needs of the people will receive more attention and a more bountiful life for all will be the result.

This concept of human needs first is one which many Moscow circles dislike. They prefer the Stalinist program of heavy industry, munitions, and, in these days, nuclear power. But to continue this way of life they must sacrifice consumer goods. The Soviet economy cannot stand the weight of dual production.

Mr. Khrushchev is much too able a statesman not to sense the growing demand of the Soviet people for a more generous material life. The inevitable leavening of Western ways has penetrated the Iron Curtain — there is an increasing demand for Western clothing styles, coiffures, music, foods and other items. With this movement there has been a similar leavening of thought. More and more criticism of the Soviet way of life is expressed by poets, writers and others—and without serious retaliation by the state.

The new Soviet man and woman, still groping into a new freedom, will not be too demanding. But they will not be content with what until now has been the poor supply, the poor quality, and the poor distribution of those goods which make life a little more comfortable and pleasant.

Hence Mr. Khrushchev's present program, and his announcement that Russia will seek to buy up to $46 millions of plant and equipment to produce chemicals. He hopes to increase the output of such products by more than 300 per cent. Predominant among these products will be fertilizers with which he plans to make significant increases in Soviet agriculture production.

It is only necessary to turn back the newspaper files to a very few years ago to demonstrate the radical departure which this policy entails. Here there is little thought of the state's supremacy to the point of starving millions of citizens in order to keep up national agricultural exports and provide funds for armaments. Mr. Khrushchev, in fact, makes plain that this Stalinist technique is anathema today.

The big question to which the West awaits an answer is whether, with the new emphasis on the individual's material needs, will come a new emphasis on his social and intellectual requirements. With new freedom to buy, will there be new freedom to think—and thinking, to speak?

The long-range trend would seem to be inevitable. The chief unknown appears to be whether it can be achieved without serious setbacks from the old guard—swings of the pendulum which could sweep the Communist people temporarily to the opposite extreme of their eventual goal.

Much of the outcome will depend on the personalities of those who fight their way to the top of the political heap in Russia — and Mr. Khrushchev, at 70, will not remain in power forever.

And much, too, must depend on the Western attitude to the evolving Soviet state. If it is threatening, then the guns will be given priority over butter, and the reactionaries will prosper. But if it is encouraging, if the Kennedy ideal of maintaining both strength and a willingness to co-operate, to negotiate, to share is followed, then a new era can open for the whole world despite the shadow of the Bomb.

Sovereignty and Safety

DEFENCE MINISTER PAUL Hellyer was reasonably explicit in his explanation to the Commons of the manner in which United States nuclear warheads can be used in Canadian weapons systems.

The "Two key" system outlined by Mr. Hellyer gives reassurance that Canada has the final say on use of nuclear weapons on Canadian soil. There are no grounds for suspicion that Canadian sovereignty is impaired by the arrangement even though Canada does not have unilateral rights to arm its weapons with the U.S.-owned warheads.

No one will quarrel with the imposition of safeguards against irresponsible or accidental launching of the missiles with their nuclear destructive power. There may be some thought however, that these necessary safeguards must diminish the usefulness of the missile in the event of surprise attack.

As Mr. Hellyer explained it, there are two keys to two locked switches at the North Bay Bomarc installation. One key is held by an American officer and one by a Canadian. The two keys must be used by the respective officers before a Bomarc can be launched.

The sequence of events leading up to firing of a missile at an enemy aircraft — in the unlikely event that an attack was launched by aircraft — are these: The president of the United States must notify the commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defence Command that the release of the warheads from American custody for Canadian use has been authorized and the NORAD commander must then obtain permission of the Canadian prime minister to activate the Bomarc base.

With evidence of the authorization by both the president and the prime minister, the two officers with the vital keys would unlock the switches, first the American and then the Canadian. The Bomarc would then be available for firing, but could not actually be fired until the North Bay NORAD commander had given the order.

Considering the limited range and effectiveness of the Bomarc-B missile, to say nothing of the likelihood of a breakdown of communications which could result from an all-out inter-continental ballistic missile attack on the North American continent, the real value of the whole weapons system at North Bay is placed in doubt.

It is, however, at least reassuring to know that despite doubts as to the effectiveness of the weapon, its ultimate use and the nuclear warheads are under Canadian control. And we have carried out our commitment to our ally.

Only Votes Can Do It

VICTORIANS HAVE GIVEN their mayor an acclamation for his second two-year term, and for excellent reasons as the record shows. This does not, however, discharge their duties for the current year.

They have yet to elect four aldermen and two school trustees as well as deliver judgment on the excellent proposal to build a new court suitable for the community and renovate a police station that has been roundly condemned.

In the election tomorrow the choice will be between four incumbent council members and three other aspirants for aldermanic office and between four candidates, only one of whom is now a trustee, for two school board seats.

Of closer concern at least to the citizens' pocketbooks is the money-bylaw for the court and police station. The latter, in its present form, includes accommodation called by Mr. George Archer "a hangover from the dark ages" and something surpassing the imagination of Dickens in his description of Newgate.

In a recent discussion of the lock-up, Police Chief J. F. Gregory has at least implied agreement with Mr. Archer and has declared new "facilities are desperately needed to improve the efficiency of the police force and service to the public."

It is imperative that qualified electors render a decision on the money bylaw and choose their representatives for council and school board.

They cannot discharge these duties unless they turn out to vote.

Merry—or Sorry?

THE APPROACH OF CHRISTmas with its decorations brings warnings from fire departments to make sure that the festivities are not marred by tragedy.

Christmas trees should stand in a vessel of water to prevent drying out with resultant inflammability. Tree lighting strings should be examined for possible short-circuits. Fire-resistant paint should be used for spraying trees. Costumes should be fireproof. Open fireplaces should be guarded.

These and similar safety measures are known to all, yet frequently ignored. The precautions are simple; the repayment for care is far in excess of the trouble involved.

A merry Christmas must be a safe one.

FROM ROME

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

Bringing the Church Out Into the World

THE affairs of churches attract erratic attention. They have become a professional affair. It is only when churchmen move into the secular field — when they are involved in a scandal, or pronouncing on sex or the Bomb that they can be sure of attracting popular attention. It is a sign of declining interest. The sad thing about the Christian wall is that there seems to be no writing on it at all.

Great Christian Event

And yet in Rome one of the greatest Christian events in history has just some to an end. The second session of the General Council of the Roman Church broke up on Wednesday, December 4 for an 11 months' recess. The fact that the world is only dimly aware of this Council's achievements, difficulties and failures, is no fault of the 2,000 prelates who were assembled in St. Peter's.

The first session of the Council was a semi-secret affair, and its Press arrangements were strictly 16th century. The French bishops, it is true, talked like Press agents — to the French. But the rest, weighed down by a vaguely-defined obligation to secrecy, maintained the sort of screen of reticence that only inaccuracies get through. That was last year.

This year the change was profound. Huge handouts came out almost as soon as the meetings broke up. Every afternoon a panel of U.S. expert observers held an hour-long Press conference. Most of the other national groups did the same at least once a week. All over Rome journalists sat about in restaurants tucking into pasta with a bishop by their side. Indeed, the Press began to wear a slightly hunted look as they bandied "ecumenism" and "collegiality" and "the sources of faith" and "the priesthood of the laity"; and the information and the speculation rose around them in intoxicating and suffocating plenty.

The outsider, which includes almost everyone not entitled to the purple or to some spectacular monastic habit, will wonder quite what has been achieved. The Catholic outsider will wonder more particularly how it will affect him — must he buy another new prayer book and discard his rosary? Yes to the first, soon; no to the second, ever. But the Church of Rome has been changed marvellously.

Change of Attitude

It will take time for the changes to filter down, and many of the changes will be changes of attitudes — hardly affected by the legislation of the Council which, itself, is a long way from completion.

Once before the Church found the world turning cold all around it, and found the din of criticism even inside the Church reaching riot proportions. The criticism came mainly from Northern France, Germany and the Low Countries — the critical leadership in this Council came from much the same places. Then the Church reacted with increased strictness and a determined negative to the would-be reformers. She suffered the Reformation. She produced the counter-Reformation, the Jesuits, the ecstatic splendours of ecclasiastical baroque. She survived, but was deeply wounded.

Different Reaction

Once again, today, the world has lost interest, and the criticism from within the Church has been intense, and occasionally unwise. But the reaction has been different.

Pope John called a Council — to modernise the Church, to give the Church its head, and something very like a democratic process was encouraged. There was an initial clash, largely procedural but profoundly significant, between the traditionalists and the innovators, between those who would build up the walls against error and the world, and those who would fling open the doors and sally out. The latter won.

Now the process has begun of decentralising the Church, of extending the areas of tolerance and understanding, of admitting past errors, of cutting out the deadwood of tradition and practice. It is only the beginning of an unending process. It was overdue. But it is at least being done — not with the drama and speed that makes headlines — but thoroughly and with only those imperfections that are unavoidable when men meet in legislative assembly.

Save the Stamps to Help a Cripple

By JESSIE HEBBERT

Far from their homelands, thrown together without choice, disabled and handicapped refugees from ten nations live in the Settlement of Beckoff in Western Germany.

These men and women come from every walk of life. An eighty-year-old college professor from Moscow, a mayor and senior church official from Latvia, teachers, accountants, officials, army officers, farmers, unskilled workers and illiterates share their present interwoven existence which has given the name of "Little UNO" to this settlement. The modern flats which house these refugees were erected mainly with money collected during the World Refugee Year, and the settlement is virtually self-supporting.

This is the miracle of Beckhoff. These men and women came to this settlement from their former barracks in Augustdorf Camp where eighteen hundred refugees were housed in appalling conditions. Too ill or too old to emigrate or be absorbed into the German economy, they lived in misery and were referred to as "Social Garbage." Now, they have been given back a sense of purpose and human dignity; for all, with the exception of the very old and bed-ridden, are earning their own living.

Many workshops have been built, and both men and women have been trained in skilled precision work. The Bielefeld firm of Anker Ltd., who make cash-registers, allocate more and more work to Beckhoff on a piece-work basis, and other factories are following suit. A watch-maker's shop has been opened, weaving looms have been donated and there is a carpenter's shop. Finally, for those too old or crippled for skilled employment, a postage stamp department was started, where stamps by the hundred-weight are sorted, packaged and sold to reputable firms.

It is for the stamp department at Beckhoff that the Adoption Committee For Aid To Displaced Persons wants to make an appeal. Mrs. Ruth Dewdney, 200 Douglas Street, has for some years, through the kind co-operation of the Red Cross Society, sent large bundles of used stamps to help the disabled at Beckhoff; but more and more of these stamps are needed.

Many people already collect for other worthwhile charities, but very many more do not realise the profit and use of what to them is a very ordinary Canadian postage stamp. At this season of the year, a great deal of extra mail will be coming to our homes, and it is very little trouble to put the opened envelope to one side, or to tear off the piece of paper on which the stamps are stuck (please, do not detach the stamps from the paper); and by saving these stamps, a service would be done to some poor crippled person. The stamps may be mailed to Mrs. Dewdney; or packaged, marked with her name and left in the downstairs hall of the Emily Carr Apartments, 200 Douglas Street.

Do not throw away used stamps. They too have a part to play in keeping the miracle of Beckhoff alive.

Quick and Willing Help

May I through your paper express my heartfelt gratitude to the following men who came so quickly to the aid of my late wife in her greatest hour of need. First to B.C. Hydro bus driver David Dickinson, Constables Cave, MacArthur and Burdyny, Assistant Chief Easton, Firemen Adamson and Austin and Esquimalt Police Chief Sharp.

Day by day we so easily take such men as these for granted, but at a time like this we realize what a valuable asset they are to us all.

My sincere thanks.

'Dear Unknown Admirers'

In municipal politics, there is no tragedy like a wasted vote — therefore this letter is to express my sincere appreciation to those 722 Oak Bay voters who turned out to vote for me.

In thanking you, my dear unknown admirers, let me make this observation: yours were the important minority votes, which intelligence could prove, should have been weighed and not counted. Also, "we are never poor, as long as we can laugh."

W. A. (BILL) SCOTT

They Gave Us Stones

Recent writers to this column are almost 100 per cent in favor of removal of the rocks at the fountain intersection and although I am aware that what is beautiful as largely a matter of individual preference, the consensus bears out my contention that with the exception of rock outcroppings, rocks are intrinsically ugly: nature herself tries to hide them with moss and other vegetation.

Landscaping surely means dressing an area with lawns, flowers, shrubs and other vegetation. Rock is used for fortresses, prison walls and roadways. I would hazard a guess that the decision to use rock emanated from the engineering department and not the parks department.

If we are going to have shrubs in these islands let's have them combined with lawns and not with rocks. Except for a sprinkler system the cost of this would be minimal.

W. BARKER

'Let's Be Constructive'

Mr. H. G. Howard's recent letter to you in reply to mine about the United Nations, suggests that he is rather impatient with the UN, and also that he is not very familiar with the conditions under which it has to work.

His statement that "The UN has proved itself to be nothing more than a nest of interfering chatterboxes" is rather sweeping and, I think, flippant and irresponsible.

The UN is weak in several respects, as admitted in my previous letter, but these weaknesses were built into it by several nations who, at that time, were not prepared wholly to trust certain other nations. The UN should be strengthened so that it can do more of the work that needs to be done. Tearing it down is not going to help the world in any way.

The World Federalists of Canada are advocating that the UN charter be strengthened and that a World Law, outlawing war, be enacted, so that we may have some assurance of permanent peace.

I would like to ask Mr. Howard what he has to offer to take the place of the United Nations and its many successful world-wide agencies. In matters as serious as these, let us try to be constructive.

'Half Pie' For Quebec

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
In The Toronto Globe and Mail

THE FEDERAL Government has offered the provinces an extra $87 million in the fiscal year 1964-65. They will get $32 million of this through an increase in their tax abatements by being allowed 75 per cent of succession duties, instead of the present 50 per cent. They will get the other $55 million through a change in the formula by which Ottawa computes equalization grants to the so-called "have-not" provinces.

Of the over-all $87 million increase, Quebec will get $43 million—almost 50 per cent. Of the $55 million increase in equalization grants, Quebec will get $35 million—about 63 per cent.

It might seem from these figures that the new federal-provincial fiscal arrangement is heavily weighted in Quebec's favor; and this is what some of Canada's political leaders have been saying.

'Molasses and Butter'

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia protests that the new arrangement gives Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec "both molasses and butter on his bread." Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker says, "It seems the government gives in to Quebec on many matters." New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas says that the Pearson government has "loaded the dice" to "curry favor" with Quebec.

But figures can be looked at in many different ways. It should be noted, first of all, that of the extra $43 million offered to Quebec, $8 million is in the form of succession duties which that province will collect within its own borders. Ontario's gain from this concession by Ottawa will be $14 million, and British Columbia's almost $4 million. On a per capita basis, these two provinces will do much better than Quebec from the death duty change.

It remains the case that Quebec will get a $35 million increase in the equalization grant it is paid, as a "have-not" province, by the federal treasury. This, as noted, is 63 per cent of the $55 million equalization grant increase going to all seven "have-not" provinces (Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and the four Atlantic provinces). But Quebec has 60 per cent of the population of all these provinces, so its $35 million is not out of line.

Above Quebec

And Quebec itself might have cause for complaint. New Brunswick's equalization grant will rise by $5 million under the Ottawa offer—about $8 per head of population. Quebec's increase of $35 million works out at just over $6 per head of population. It could be argued from this that the Pearson government is showing favoritism toward New Brunswick.

That province's premier, Mr. Louis Robichaud, is certainly delighted by Ottawa's offer. He says, "We're extremely happy. It's the best formula ever devised." Premier Lesage, on the other hand, is disappointed with Ottawa's offer; he says Quebec can accept it only as "a basis for discussion."

Premier Woodrow Lloyd of Saskatchewan is disappointed with Ottawa's offer. Under the old equalizaton formula, the direct tax yields of the "have-not" provinces were brought up to the national average. Under the new formula, they will be brought up to the average of Ontario and British Columbia. Mr. Lloyd thinks they should have been brought up to the level of Ontario.

Tenderness to Ontario

Such a change would mean even larger equalization payments to the "have-not" provinces—including Quebec—than those the Pearson government has proposed. It would have imposed a heavier burden on Ontario, which—as Premier John Robarts has several times pointed out—provides through its taxes to Ottawa about half the equalization money Ottawa pays out. It can be argued, therefore, that in equalizing up to the Ontario-B.C. level, instead of to the Ontario one alone, Mr. Pearson has shown a certain tenderness toward Ontario.

All these arguments and many more can be developed from a federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangement which has become so sophisticated, so elaborate that it can be used to prove almost anything anybody wishes to prove. Its maze of figures can be taken to show that any one (or more) of the provinces is favored by Ottawa; and that any one (or more) of the provinces is discriminated against by Ottawa. Such a fiscal fog lends itself all too easily to those who would set one part of Canada against another.

Premier Robarts refuses to play this dangerous, divisive game. Neither applauding nor denouncing Ottawa's offer, he accepts it for what it is—a temporary measure to assist (more or less) all the provinces until a completely new tax-sharing system is worked out. In this, Mr. Robarts is being true to his own concept of Canada as one nation.

ON THE TIMES By ART STOTT

Get a Little Out of Puff?

WHEN I was a small boy, my neighbor, anxious to catch the mail collection due at any moment, bet me a dime that I could not run with his letter to the pillar box at the corner, drop in the envelope and get back in one minute and a half.

Stott

I grabbed the letter, raced away, posted it and was back at the starting point in one minute and 15 seconds by his timing. He gave me the dime. Technically, I believe that made me a professional athlete, so I never went in for track and field. But Canada didn't need me. It had Percy Williams.

I made approximately the same run in the dusk yesterday. The mail box has been moved a little closer, but I seriously doubt that my time there and back was under a minute and a half. Of course there was no dime to spur me on. I ran only to keep warm because I was too lazy to put on a coat to ward off the chill that follows sundown.

* * *

Today certain protests in my calf and thigh muscles — if that's the right noun — remind me that I should not run, or else run a lot more than I am doing. This is a problem which confronts many people of my age. By a gradual process they have ceased to be the active physical creatures of boyhood. Suddenly they revert to violent exercise — like running to the pillar box to keep warm.

Those who are unlucky wind up horizontal with three good friends on each side murmuring "Don't 'e look natural?" The fortunate have residual muscle tissues which telegraph a message to the brain saying, "Take it easy. We're not used to this."

The wise man acknowledges the message. If he is particularly wise, he does something about it, something that starts gently, like a brisk walk to the pillar box. Then maybe he walks one way and runs back, provided the brisk walk has firmed up the flab that used to be muscle. After that he follows a program of regular and not too vigorous exercise until he gets back into some sort of shape.

That's what Archie has been telling me for years, but he's a bit doubtful about my abilities to make the gradual ascent back up to some vestige of conditioning.

"Just begin gently," he tells me. "Don't think you're back on the gym with the youngsters and have to play a whole basketball game by yourself, without anyone else on your side. Easy does it, easy, until your body starts to respond.

"You might try a few calisthenics in the afternoon or evening when you get home from work, just a few simple bends and stretches and a fair amount of deep breathing.

"I wouldn't suggest you jump out of bed first thing in the morning, throw up the window and start taking great lungfulls of air. You'd probably get dizzy if you did. But when your body's wakened, when the gears sort of mesh, just run through a few bends, stretches and arm waving. And if you can spare the time — which might save you a lot of time later on — why not swim a little more? No better exercise for you."

* * *

With all of this I agree. Swimming would be particularly effective. When a person's in the water he can't reach for a cigarette and start smoking. At the same time he's benefiting from buoyancy and his exercise, unless he still thinks he's a speed artist, is moderate.

Archie doesn't have to sell me on the idea. I accept it completely. And I think it would be a happy situation if I could improve my wind to the point that I can ask for tickets when I've run and caught the bus, not just sit wheezing on the front seat.

Yessir, it's a little gentle exercise for me —as I always say.

The concept is splendid. Maybe I'll do something about it next week.

YOUR HEALTH By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

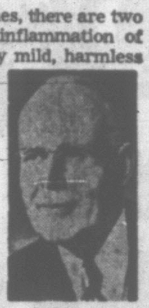
Serum Hepatitis

As I have said several times, there are two main types of hepatitis or inflammation of the liver. One is the usually mild, harmless disease which we physicians have known about for centuries. We used to call it infectious jaundice. It is due often to drinking contaminated water. It doesn't seem to be due to contacts of an infected person with members of his family, or with neighbors or friends.



Alvares

The hepatitis which is very dangerous is the one that comes usually two or three months after a person has had a transfusion. I was just reading an important editorial in the JAMA, in which the statement is made that a blood transfusion "causes death in approximately one of every 150 transfusions, in persons over 40 years of age, as a result of serum hepatitis." That is so big a risk that no one is ever going to give me a transfusion unless I very definitely need one to keep from dying. Blood experts keep telling us that today thousands of transfusions are given which were not really necessary; it just has become the custom to give people transfusions when, perhaps, they have lost a little blood or are somewhat anemic.

* * *

One of the most distressing features about a transfusion of blood is that, in spite of every care that is taken, some of the donors will be found to be carriers of the virus. It is a curious fact that the virus which lives in the donor doesn't seem to bother him at all, but if it gets into someone else, and he is over 40, it may easily kill him. In some age-groups, the incidence of a serious hepatitis after a transfusion runs from 8 to 20 per cent—which means that one in five persons can get into serious trouble.

An editorial writer went on to say that if a person who just must have a transfusion of blood is given some gamma globulin with it, he can be saved from getting serum hepatitis. Gamma globulin is a part of the blood which has a decided tendency to save people from getting a viral disease, such as measles or hepatitis. The gamma globulin can be given in two doses of 10 milliliters each, a month apart, the first one immediately after the transfusion.

* * *

At present, much of the gamma globulin that is available is being given to children to immunize them against measles. Fortunately today with the development of a good vaccine against measles, there will be much less need for gamma globulin and then it can be used to protect people from getting serum hepatitis.

Also, as many blood specialists have said, it will be a great day for medicine when we physicians stop giving transfusions that are not absolutely necessary.

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Easy to Shop for Gardeners

At any time of the year, gardeners are the easiest group to please with a gift.

Hilda

Their interests as a rule reach out far beyond the actual plants, for it takes but a few years at such a hobby to feel a kinship with all outdoors and its inhabitants.

The gift of a plant, while seemingly the ideal choice, requires an intimate knowledge of the gardener and the garden unless a definite wish has been expressed for a specific plant.

Then, by all means a living gift for the garden will be cherished.

Catering to the inquisitive nature of most outdoor gardeners there are numerous up-to-date books on every conceivable phase and branch of gardening.

Apart from those dealing with one genus such as the rose, delphinium, rhododendron or viburnum, there are thought-stirring writings on shrub and rock gardens, exploring for plants in sparsely inhabited areas, planning new gardens, and even on the preparation of home-grown vegetables to retain their flavor, appearance and most vital, nutrition.

Local bookstores are well equipped to supply a wide range of books on these subjects, as well as the equally fascinating ones of allied interests such as birds, conservation and, of all things, weather!

Last winter I had the audacity to read an entire book on snow. Granted, much of it did not stick, but the pleasure experienced in so readable a work should make any snowstorm we might experience here more endurable.

As gardeners we cannot pursue our hobby without moisture, and if some of it falls as snow we might as well enjoy it by at least considering the fact that each snowflake is different from all its brothers!

STATE OF SIEGE APPROACHES

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—In Latin America and the Middle East, where coups and uprisings lead frequently to a state of siege, citizens philosophically prepare to hold out while public services are suspended.

Politics are far more sedate in New Zealand, but a state of siege occurs regularly every year.

Housewives now are laying in supplies for the annual ordeal. People with business or medical affairs to settle are anxiously making appointments with lawyers, stockbrokers, accountants, doctors or dentists while there is still time.

The coming emergency is the annual shutdown, beginning Christmas Eve and extending until well into January. During this period practically all industry, commerce, professional activities and community services come to a full stop.

The whole country goes on holiday — some people very much against their will, but they know from experience that even if they keep their businesses open they will achieve little.

December is high summer in New Zealand and the whole population flocks to beaches, streams or lakes. No part of New Zealand is more than 100 miles from the sea and many persons of modest means own seaside cottages and live in them for the entire summer. Others camp out in caravans, trailers or under canvas.

True to British tradition, many holidaymakers feast on Christmas Day on roast turkey and plum pudding, which in the broiling heat of midsummer produces even more paralysing effects than under normal winter conditions.

But most supplies for Christmas and a long time after must be bought well in advance. This year with Christmas and New Year falling in midweek, housewives face even more uncertainties than usual in providing for holiday fare.

Most stores open for a day or so between the Christmas and New Year's holidays but shoppers can never be sure which stores will open and which commodities will be suddenly unobtainable. To be on the safe side, many housewives buy enough to stand a three-week siege.

Factories face similar uncertainties. Officially most take a two- or three-week vacation over Christmas or New Year. But with the major holidays falling in midweek, executives of many factories are resigned to seeing only part of their staffs on the reopening day. They fear that many workers will take an extra half-week holiday and resume on the following Monday.

Meanwhile, stock exchanges will close for more than three weeks. The only way New Zealand investors can operate is to buy or sell in Australia or other countries.

Other professional services mainly operate on an emergency basis during the annual shutdown.

The inconveniences of the custom draw regular demands for staggered holidays, but despite studies by chambers of commerce, little progress is made. New Zealanders are wedded to taking their vacations all at the same time, and doing as nearly as possible the same thing.

Committed for Trial

Horse-players who didn't do so well at the track this year might take some comfort from one result—they helped boost national thoroughbred betting to a record $153,506,144.

It was the 14th record-breaking year in a row, up $9,976,202 from 1962 and almost double the figure of 10 years ago.

Bettors shoved currency through pari-mutuel windows almost as though the stuff was going out of style, chalking up an unprecedented five million-dollar days at Toronto tracks.

Ontario, Quebec, Saskatchewan and British Columbia set records while Manitoba and Alberta were only slightly below their peak years.

Those six provinces are the only ones with thoroughbred racing. The four Atlantic provinces have only harness racing which is not covered in the figures.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed a sharp betting upsurge at every major track except one. That was Winnipeg's Assiniboia Downs which blamed its decline on a sizzling six-week heat wave that sent regular patrons fleeing to the beaches.

There were 493 days of racing across Canada, seven more than in 1962.

The total jackpot was roughly split in this fashion: $125,000,000 to successful bettors; $7,000,000 to winning horses; $10,000,000 to provincial taxes; $10,000,000 to track income, and $1,000,000 to the federal government for supervisory services which include film patrol, saliva tests and RCMP surveillance.

As usual, Ontario's three tracks brought in most of the loot—$96,483,152. The province had a 196-day racing season, same as last year when betting was $90,477,564, the previous high.

Track attendance was reported up only slightly across the country but the average horse-player came prepared to bet a little more money than last year. Ontario, for instance, clocked 1,701,336 paying patrons or about 20,000 under the attendance record set in 1961.

Quebec's single track is Blue Bonnets at Montreal where a 42-day meet took in $13,654,825 compared with $12,844,643 in 40 days last year.

Blue Bonnets official Charles Meyer said the increase was surprising in view of 20 days of poor weather, a virus attack that hit 50 horses and the opening of two new tracks just across the border in the United States.

The Montreal track now is working on plans to increase its seating capacity to 20,000 from 14,000. Counting standees, it now can jam in 25,000.

Despite trouble with the heat, Winnipeg's track rang up $8,075,153 in bets, only $274,791 off last season's record pace and still well ahead of the $7,694,393 plunked down in 1961. Like Quebec, Manitoba's thoroughbred racing centres on one park. It had a 42-day season, unchanged from 1962.

Saskatchewan reported a sharp upswing in betting, attributed by an official of the Western Canada Racing Association to "the best crop prospects in 25 years." The three-track total was $2,025,083, up $167,950 from last season on the same 18-day program.

Alberta's six tracks collected $15,320,664 in an 87-day season, up five days from 1962. The cash receipts were $147,933 ahead of a year ago but were off the record pace of $15,554,380 set in 1960.

It was a great year in British Columbia at $17,947,267 in 108 days, against the old mark of $14,827,927 set in 104 days last year.

The big jump was at Vancouver's Exhibition Park where the betting windows accepted a whopping $16,225,037, up more than $2,600,000. Sandown Park at Victoria jumped nearly $500,000 to $1,709,028.

The picture by provinces, with 1962 figures bracketed:

Quebec—Blue Bonnets, $13,654,825 ($12,844,643).

Ontario—Woodbine, $39,912,596 ($36,970,638); Greenwood (formerly Old Woodbine), $28,306,061 ($26,483,600); Fort Erie, $28,264,495 ($27,023,326).

Manitoba—Assiniboia Downs, $8,075,153 ($8,349,944).

Saskatchewan — Regina, $1,234,685 ($1,116,570); Saskatoon, $760,496 ($705,617); Prince Albert, $29,902 ($34,946).

Alberta—Edmonton, $8,411,539 ($8,459,104); Calgary, $6,530,932 ($6,369,285); Lethbridge, $356,973 ($311,126); Millarville, $9,384 ($21,772); Lake McGregor, $6,318 ($4,834); Stettler, $5,518 (no 1962 operation). High River, which took in $6,610 last year, did not operate this season.

British Columbia—Vancouver, $16,225,037 ($13,538,197); Victoria, $1,709,028 ($1,274,112); Williams Lake, $7,724 ($7,810); Prince George, $5,478 ($7,808).

THE SCOREBOARD
BY
Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA)—Charles O. Finley has hardly endeared himself to Kansas City baseball fans, but in the recent major league trading bee the controversial owner came up with the one player obtainable who could help the Athletics at the gate.

ROCKY COLAVITO
. . . sells baseball

Rocco Domenico Colavito could be a tremendous attraction at KC's Municipal Stadium

So could Diamond Jim Gentile, who also swats the ball a far piece. With Colavito and Gentile, manager Eddie Lopat also inherits a lot of Latin temperament. Much will depend on how the old Junk Man handles it.

Rocky Colavito is an authentic manufacturer of the big home run. He is one of the few individualistic players of the game. At the plate he puts the bat back and across his broad shoulders and stretches. Then he points the bat at the pitcher. An arm that matches his distance hitting makes him exciting in the field. Everything he does is exciting.

Colavito is one of the mighty few ball players who mixes well with the people. He gets around town, says the right things. A big, handsome fellow—6-3, 190—he is a baseball Rock Hudson to teen-agers. He draws people who otherwise would not be interested.

April 17, 1960, is still regarded as a black day in baseball on the Cleveland lakefront. That was when general manager Frank Lane swapped Colavito to Detroit for Harvey Kuenn. Cleveland fans never forgave Trader Lane. The bulk of them have remained away from Cleveland Stadium during the baseball season.

Kiner Could Keep Fans in Seats

Colavito, who hit 41 home runs for the Indians in 1958, 42 in '59, 35 for the Tigers in '60, 45 in '61 and 37 in '62, has the swing and power to do for Kansas City what Ralph Kiner did for Pittsburgh from 1947 through '52 while he was either leading or tying for the National League home run championship.

Kiner played with frightful clubs, yet kept the customers in their seats as long as there was a chance for him to come to bat again. Attendance soared to more than a million and a half a year.

Joe Garagiola, now a commentator, batted behind Kiner at Forbes Field for a couple of campaigns.

"When going to bat in a late inning all I ever saw was the backs of fans leaving the place as quickly as they could get out," he recalls.

Colavito's switch to Kansas City is remindful of how rare individual attractions are in the major leagues. The Honus Wagners, Ty Cobbs, Babe Ruths and Joe DiMaggios are few and far between.

The magnetism that attracts people to a ball player sometimes is indefinable as it was in the case of Dixie Walker, the people's choice in Brooklyn. The star quality in Stanley Musial and Gil Hodges was in their character and conduct as much as it was in athletic gifts.

Sales Climb When Sandy Pitches

Willie Mays remains in the calcium's glare because he is spectacular in all departments. No one ever knows what he is going to do. Mickey Mantle makes the turnstiles click at Yankee Stadium and on the road.

When Mantle and Roger Maris engaged in the thrilling home run derby in 1961, the Yankees played to 1,747,736 paying guests in the Bronx. There was general apathy last season because of the dullness of the American League race, yet the fact that Mantle and Maris were banged up most of the time had a lot to do with 438,816 fewer admissions than in 1961.

Try to think of a ball player you would pay to see on his own. Sandy Koufax ups the crowd 10 to 12,000. The announcement that Warren Spahn is pitching sells tickets.

Some players become attractions through hot streaks, such as Maury Wills on his base-stealing spree in 1962. Harmon Killebrew is a card, but only on a home run binge.

As we started out to say, Rocky Colavito is one of the comparative handful of players who consistently sell baseball to the people.

Swedes, Czechs Join Canadians In Hockey Tourney

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—The first international hockey tournament ever staged in Canada will be held late this month and involve national amateur teams from Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Canada.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said the tournament will be a three-game round-robin and will open in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Dec. 29 when Sweden and Canada meet.

The second game will be played in Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 3 between Canada and Czechoslovakia while the third will be a Jan. 5 meeting between Sweden and Czechoslovakia at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The tournament will be part of a cross-Canada tour by the Swedish and Czechoslovakian teams, both of whom will represent their country at the winter Olympics at Innsbruck next year.

Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary-manager, said the tours and the tournament will give Canadians a preview of what can be expected at the Olympic championships where Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia, along with Russia, will rank as favorites.

PAYS FIRST VISIT

The Swedish team, the first ever to visit Canada, will arrive in Montreal Dec. 24 and play Montreal junior Canadiens Boxing Day. Their second game will be Dec. 27 at Kitchener, Ont., against Canada's Olympic team.

After they open the tournament against Canada Dec. 29 the Swedes will travel to Winnipeg for a Jan. 1 game against Winnipeg Maroons.

Two days later they will meet a Lakehead all-star team at Fort William and then return to Toronto for their tournament game against the Czechs.

AT VICTORIA DEC. 18

The Czechs, who play 11 games in Canada and one in the United States during their North American tour, arrive Dec. 14 at Calgary.

Other than their tournament dates, the Czechs will meet an all-star team in Calgary Dec. 17; the Canadian Olympic team at Victoria Dec. 18; the WIHL all-stars at Trail, Dec. 20; the Canadian Olympic team at Vancouver Dec. 22; Edmonton Oil Kings, Memorial Cup champions, at Edmonton, Dec. 23; Winnipeg Maroons at Winnipeg, Dec. 26; Saskatchewan senior all-stars at Saskatoon, Dec. 27; Saskatchewan junior all-stars at Regina, Dec. 2; and a local Ottawa team, Jan. 1.

International rules, slightly different from CAHA rules with respect to bodychecking and icing, will be used for all games on the tours and the tournament.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Second-highest score recorded in men's fivepin division of Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition was chalked up last week by Bud Brock (above). He fired games of 270, 309 and 354 for sizzling three-game series of 933 in Mixed Classic League at Loomer Lanes. Employed by city investment firm, Bud lives at 2753 Cavendish with his wife, Donna, and four children.

GONE GOOSE BETTER THAN EAGLE

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP) — Other golfers can have the birdies and eagles —Dr. Harry Plut Jr., is more satisfied with the goose he got in a weekend round on a local golf course.

The Seattle intern's tee shot on one hole struck the low-flying wild waterfowl and knocked it dead.

Happily, the season was open and Dr. Plut had his hunting licence in his pocket.

Campbell Will Ogle Hockey Brawl Films

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings are visitors at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight but a more important visit was paid to the City of Toronto today.

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League is expected in town to view films of last Saturday night's game between Toronto and Chicago, which erupted into a 10-minute brawl involving 26 players.

The players have already been fined a total of $850 in automatic penalties. Campbell says it is highly probable there will be further fines, and possibly suspensions.

His investigation could also involve coaches Billy Reay of Chicago and Punch Imlach, who were equally responsible with referee Frank Udvari for controlling the game. Both coaches have been criticized for allegedly allowing their players to leave the benches and take part in the brawl.

SEEK REVENGE

Sid Abel, meanwhile, will be attempting to defeat the Maple Leafs. The Wings got dumped 5-3 by Toronto Sunday and are seeking revenge.

In the other NHL game scheduled, the front-running Chicago Black Hawks play the last place Rangers in New York.

Abel's latest effort to find a winning combination may involve the removal of Terry Sawchuk from the nets. The Detroit coach said last Saturday he planned to alternate Sawchuk and Roger Crozier as soon as the rookie's cheek injury cleared up.

But Crozier isn't expected to play until this weekend at the earliest and Hank Bassen has been called up from Pittsburgh and may see action against the Leafs.

The Wings also brought up defenceman John Miszuk and right winger Floyd Smith, a former Detroit regular who now is the scoring leader in the American League. Both may play tonight.

U.S. Net Star Turns Down $60,000 Bid

MELBOURNE (AP) — Professional tennis organizer Frank Sedgman said today U.S. tennis star Chuck McKinley had turned down an offer of $60,000 to join the pros immediately after the Davis Cup challenge round in Adelaide Dec. 26-28.

"Chuck asked for $75,000," Sedgman said. "But we could not go that far on the strength of one tournament, this year's Wimbledon is the only really big tournament he ever won.

"On top of that, there is always the risk of his back acting up again. That influenced us to a certain extent too."

McKinley will return home to San Antonio, Texas, after the challenge round to resume his studies at Trinity University.

Tennis on Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The first three matches of the United States vs. Australia Davis Cup tennis challenge round in Adelaide, Australia, Dec. 26 and 27, will be telecast Dec. 28 on ABC's Wide World of Sports, the network said Tuesday. The telecast time will be 5-6:30 p.m., EST.

TITTLE TOP CHOICE

Bears Have Six On Dream Team

NEW YORK (AP)—The defence-minded Chicago Bears, Green Bay Packers' ground troops and the pass-happy New York Giants dominated the National Football League all-star team announced today by The Associated Press.

Bears placed six players on the 22-man first offensive and defensive units. Green Bay had five and New York four.

Y. A. Tittle, Giants' superb passer, was a nearly unanimous choice for quarterback and Jimmy Brown, Cleveland Browns' record-breaking ground gainer, received all but two votes for fullback. Mike Ditka, fine tight end for Chicago, also polled all but two of the 42 votes cast.

The selections were made by a committee of three sports writers and broadcasters from each of the 14 league cities.

Ditka was Bears' only representative on the offensive team but the defensive club placed five men on the first unit. They were six-foot eight-inch end Doug Atkins, linebackers Bill George and Joe Fotuntato and the two ball-hawking safety men, Richie Petitbon and Roosevelt Taylor.

NINE REPEAT

Only nine of the 22 men selected last year repeated—six on offence and three on defence.

They were Del Shofner, New York Giants' split end; tackle guards Jerry Kramer of Green Bay and Jim Parker of Baltimore Colts; centre Jim Ringo of Green Bay and Tittle of the 1962 offensive team. The defensive repeaters were tackles Roger Brown of Detroit Lions and Henry Jordan of Green Bay and corner back Herb Adderley of Green Bay.

FIRST TEAM

Offensive Unit—Split end Del Shofner, New York; tight end Mike Ditka, Chicago; tackles Forrest Gregg, Green Bay, and Dick Shafrath, Cleveland; guards Jerry Kramer, Green Bay, and Jim Parker, Baltimore; centre Jim Ringo, Green Bay; quarterback Y. A. Tittle, New York; flanker back Bobby Joe Conrad, St. Louis; running back Tommy Mason, Minnesota; fullback Jimmy Brown, Cleveland.

Defensive Unit—Ends Doug Atkins, Chicago, and Jim Katcavage, New York; tackles Henry Jordan, Green Bay, and Roger Brown, Detroit; middle linebacker Bill George, Chicago; corner linebackers Joe Fortunato, Chicago, and Jack Pardee, Los Angeles; corner backers Dick Lynch, New York, and Herb Adderley, Green Bay; safeties Ritchie Petitbon, Chicago, and Roosevelt Taylor, Chicago.

SECOND TEAM

Offensive Unit—Split end Gail Cogdill, Detroit; tight end Ron Kramer, Green Bay; tackles Roosevelt Brown, New York, and Charley Bradshaw, Pittsburgh; guards Darrell Dess, New York, and Ken Gray, St. Louis; centre Bob Demarco, St. Louis; quarterback Johnny Unitas, Baltimore; flanker back Terry Barr, Detroit; running back Tom Moore, Green Bay; fullback Jim Taylor, Green Bay.

Defensive Unit—Ends Gino Marchetti, Baltimore, and Bill Glass, Cleveland; tackles Merlin Olsen, Los Angeles, and Bob Gain, Cleveland; middle linebacker Myron Pottios, Pittsburgh; corner linebacker Dan Currie, Green Bay, and Larry Morris, Chicago; corner backers Abe Woodson, San Francisco, and Dick Lane, Detroit; safeties Clendon Thomas, Pittsburgh, and Yale Lary, Detroit.

Wilson Sits Tall In Scoring Saddle

Don "Buzz" Wilson is small enough to hide in the shadows of some of his rivals but nobody stands taller in the Victoria Hockey League.

Not only because he is buzzing along in front in the scoring race (21 points) and has collected the most goals (12) does Don rate high with friend and foe. He can hit the net when it counts most.

Three times Wilson has fired the winning goal for Arena Cougars, more often than any other player in the four-team loop.

Only once in seven outings with the junior Cats has he failed to pick up a goal. That was last week when a tally or two wouldn't have made any difference. The Cougars were bounced 7-2 by Safeway Canadians to drop out of a first-place tie with the Canadians.

Art Binks of Canadians also entered that game with a six-game scoring string and saw it snapped although his club fired those seven goals.

Both Wilson and Binks will be trying to get back on the goal trail in a doubleheader at Memorial Arena tonight. Binks and Canadians will be trying to preserve their lead as they tackle Dorman's Cavaliers in the opener at 8:15. Wilson and the other Cougars go against Suburban Mercuries at 9:30.

Buzz holds a two-point lead over linemate Paul Bion in the point chase. Binks is tied for the third spot with Les Johansen of Cougars, five points off the pace.

Among leaders in other departments is goalie Spence Simmons, who has the best goals-against average (2.29) and has collected the season's only shutout. In the penalty totals, Suburban's Bob Downey is well out in front with 24 minutes.

Here are the scoring leaders:

HEARS ARGUMENTS FOR NEW TRIAL

Butts' Award Worries Judge

ATLANTA (AP) — A United States federal district court judge said Tuesday he is concerned about the question of excessiveness in a $3,060,000 libel judgment awarded Wallace Butts, former athletic director at the University of Georgia.

"Excessiveness is bothering me in this case—I'll be frank with you," Judge Lewis R. Morgan told opposing lawyers at a hearing on a retrial motion.

Judge Morgan gave no indication of when he might rule on Curtis Publishing Company's motions for a new trial and to set aside a jury verdict of last August.

The jury awarded Butts $3,000,000 punitive damages and $60,000 compensatory damages for a Saturday Evening Post article charging that Butts and coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama rigged the 1962 Georgia-Alabama football game.

Judge Morgan, who presided at the libel trial, said he did not believe he had authority to reduce the amount of the award. He indicated the amount was his chief concern despite about 30 grounds claimed by The Post as errors in the trial.

Colts Claim Nellie

CHICAGO (AP)—Nellie Fox, long-time, Chicago White Sox second baseman, was traded to Houston Colts for two farm hands Tuesday.

Technically, the peppery Fox —who will be 36 on Christmas Day and reportedly drew a $42,500 salary last season—was sold to Houston. The White Sox, in turn, purchased pitcher Jim Golden and outfielder Dan Murphy, $100,000 Chicago Cub bonus baby, from Houston's Oklahoma City farm club.

"Actually, we may be doing Fox a great favor," said general manager Ed Short. "He may play two or three more regular seasons for Paul Richards (Houston general manager), who really wanted him to stabilize the young Colt infield."

MIGHT HAVE LOST SPOT

Short hinted Fox might have been dislodged as a Chicago regular next spring.

"In effect, this was a trade of Fox for Golden and Murphy," said Short. "What money was involved balanced off."

The interleague deal was swung with Short unable to inform Fox, deer hunting in the mountains near his Chambersburg, Pa., home. Recent rumors had Fox going to Indianapolis as manager, but the post went to Lee Moss and Short said he never had discussed the job with Fox.

Benaud Offers Chance But Storm Ends Test

BRISBANE (AP)—The first cricket test match between Australia and South Africa was drawn today following a severe thunderstorm.

The South Africans were one wicket down for 13 runs in their second innings when the match was abandoned.

Australian captain Richie Benaud gave South Africa a gambling chance of a victory when he declared Australia's second innings closed during the lunch break at one wicket for 144 runs. Benaud's declaration gave South Africa 233 runs to catch the Australian two innings total of 279, with 240 minutes of the match left.

IN BATSMANS' FAVOR

Although the wicket was in the batsmans' favor, Benaud was hoping South Africa would take chances in fast scoring and leave itself open to his bowling attack.

With heavy storm clouds approaching spinner Benaud came into the bowling attack in hope of quick wickets after only three overs.

But 27 minutes after lunch the umpires upheld an appeal against fading light by the South African batsmen and play was halted. As the players left the field violent winds, lightning and heavy rain swept the ground. Within minutes it was flooded and the match was declared abandoned.

VSIAA Contest Ends Dec. 21

Victoria - Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association's "holiday contest" will close Saturday, Dec. 21.

The fishing competition, designed to attract new members into the VSIAA fold, offers a choice cartop boat and motor, $500 in cash, or a trip to Hawaii.

Anyone holding a VSIAA membership is eligible for the award, to be made at the annual general meeting in January.

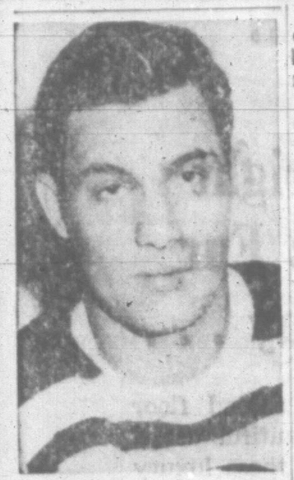
Johansen and Treloar Dominate Swim Meet



JOHNNY BUCYK

Mary Helen Johansen and Grant Treloar, two of of the district's brightest young prospects, made the biggest splash in the annual Victoria Amateur Swimming Club championships.

Both won four events during Tuesday's hectic competition at the Crystal Garden pool.

Miss Johansen, an Esquimalt High student, won three open events and then tacked on a 50-yard backstroke victory in the girls' 15-16 division. Her open triumphs came in the 100-yard freestyle, 100-yard backstroke and 50-yard butterfly.

TRIPLE WINNERS

Treloar made a clean sweep of three events for boys 13 and 14 and then won the open 100-yard freestyle.

Valerie Forbes and Ray Horne also made sweeps in their age classes. Another standout was Bruce Smith, who won two events and placed second in the third for boys 11 and 12.

Heather Forbes also was a double winner.

With the swimming season in high gear, there's more competition in the offing Saturday. Victoria's Flying Y Club will entertain visiting teams in a dual meet at the Crystal on Saturday.

The "Y" boys will meet Everett YMCA while the Victoria girls' team entertains New Westminster YMCA. First of between 30 to 35 events will start at 4 p.m.

Tuesday's VASC results:

Johnny Bucyk Bruins' Howe

MONTREAL (CP)—Last week's action in the National Hockey League indicates that the lowly Boston Bruins need Johnny Bucyk as much as Detroit Red Wings need Gordie Howe

Bucyk returned to action last week after missing eight games with a shoulder injury, and his forward line came to life. Bucyk, centre Murray Oliver and right winger Tom Williams picked up a total of 21 scoring points in four games to surpass the hottest combinations in the league.

The Bruins collected four of a possible eight points and moved into a fifth-place tie with New York Rangers. In the process, they scored 14 goals—exactly twice as many as in their four previous games.

DOMINATE SCORING

Chicago still holds an eight-point lead over Toronto, however, and individual Hawks still dominate the scoring race.

Official NHL statistics released today show Bobby Hull leading the league in both goals, 17, and total points, 38.

His teammate, Stan Mikita, is tied with Montreal's Jean Beliveau for second spot at 32 points. The Chicago centre has 14 goals to Beliveau's nine and is listed ahead, but Beliveau ranks as the league's best playmaker with 23 assists.

Chicago defenceman Reg Fleming is the most penalized individual so far, having served 84 minutes in the 16 games he has played.

The leaders:

ANDERSON CUP

Free Ride For United Into Semis

Victoria United has drawn the important bye and gets a free ride into the semifinals of the Pacific Coast Soccer League's Anderson Cup competition.

The knockout competition, designed to boost the players insurance fund, starts Boxing Day (Dec. 26) with Canadians meeting North Shore.

In other first-round games, Firefighters face Wallaces Dec. 28 and Columbus meets Westminster Royals Dec. 29. United will play the winner of the Canadians-North Shore game in the semifinals.

Meanwhile the rush of Christmas is forcing United's booster club off the road. The fan club had planned to charter a bus for fans wishing to see the United-Columbus match in Vancouver Sunday.

Those plans were cancelled today. There will be no bus.

Only other PCSL match scheduled this coming weekend is a Saturday bout between Westminster Royals and Firefighters.

Kiniski Meets Whipper Billy

Whipper Billy Watson and Gene Kiniski renew their professional wrestling rivalry at Memorial Arena Saturday on what promoter Rod Fenton has billed as the "top card of the year."

Another feature of the six-bout program will be a clash between Billy Watt and Kinji Shibuya.

In other bouts, starting at 8:15, it will be 300-pound Don Leo Jonathan against Roy McClarty, Waldo von Erich against Dan Miller, Ripper Leone against Dick Garza and Tex McKenzie against Bob Morse.

Five Straight For Oak Bay

There's no stopping Oak Bay.

The Bays reeled off their fifth straight victory in the Inter-High Senior Boys' Basketball League Tuesday night by downing Mount View Hornets 57-27.

Tom Child dropped in 16 points to pace the well-balanced Bays, playing on their home floor.

Scorers:

Mount View: Brumwell 8, Cox 7, Carp 1, Atkins 2, Williams 6, Isaacson 1, Russell, Evans, Proceviat 2. Total—27.

Oak Bay: Burrows 4, Wallace 7, Child 16, Turner 7, Fraser 4, MacFarlane 4, Murgatroyd 2, MacAvoy 6, Humber 7. Total—57.

Pressmen In Front

Victoria Press edged Civil Service 4-2 Tuesday night at Memorial Arena to take over first place in the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League.

Crimson Tide Facing Busy Rugby Fortnight

Victoria's Crimson Tide is going to be rather busy in the next rugby fortnight.

The Tide tackles a Victoria 25 (years)-and-under Rep team Saturday at Macdonald Park. Kickoff is 2:30 p.m.

Six days later — on Dec. 21 — the pick of the Victoria Rugby Union will host a Vancouver 25-and-under side. On Boxing Day Tide will meet the President's XV. Both games will be at Macdonald, starting at 2:30 p.m.

Saturday's lineups:

Victoria 25-and-under: Backs: D. Price, A. Webster, J. Evers, T. Browne, G. Latcham, D. Clarke and B. McLean. Forwards: S. Vickery, B. Wright, G. Payeette, J. Old, J. Wenman, T. Holloway, B. Guelpa and R. Campbell. Spare S. Smith.

Crimson Tide: D. Burgess, I. Appleton, G. Hemmingway, J. Maxwell, H. Slone, A. Reese and T. Surtees. Forwards: K. Smith, A. Ustik, G. Coutts, G. Eaton, C. Pollard, J. Curnow, M. Preece and C. Bishop. Spare — G. Wilson.

MARCETTA POPS THREE

Denver Storm Chills 'Frisco

DENVER (AP)—Milan Marcetta's three goals keyed Denver's first-place Invaders to an easy 8-2 victory over San Francisco in a Western Hockey League match Tuesday night.

Near-zero weather from the winter's worst storm cut attendance to 1,011 for the opener of a two-game series.

Marcetta rapped the puck past goalie Bob Perreault twice in the second period and again to lead off the scoring in the final stanza.

Perreault was assaulted freely by the fast-skating Invaders and kicked out 36 shots during a busy evening. Denver goalie Al Millar received much more help from his mates and needed to make only 21 saves.

Lou Jankowski, Denver's leading scorer, got his 15th and 16th goals of the campaign and Marty Howe, Rudy Migay and John Sleaver each added one.

Duke Edmundson and Nick Micoski scored for Seals.

TROUBLE AT WEST BROM

'Schoolboy Treatment' Leads to Boot Revolt

LONDON (AP)—West Bromwich Albion, an English pro soccer team, faced a revolt by 10 of its top players Tuesday.

They all demanded to be traded because, they say, manager Jimmy Hagan treats them "like schoolboys."

Team captain Dan Howe is part of the revolt. He told reporters:

"No one is getting any satisfaction out of his football. We feel the main reason is the failure to get along with the manager. The situation has been getting steadily worse all season.

"Each player wrote out his transfer request. I collected them and gave them to Mr. Hagan."

Hagan was not available for comment.

West Bromwich Albion currently is in the middle of the English League's first division standings.

Mackay's Injury Jolts Tottenham

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters) — Manchester United knocked Tottenham Hotspur out of European Cup soccer action Tuesday night with a 4-1 victory.

Manchester won the two-game total goal series 4-3. Tottenham had won the first game of the home-and-home series 2-0 in London a week ago.

Tottenham, holders of the trophy, were severely handicapped by the loss of Scottish international wing half Dave Mackay after only 10 minutes.

Mackay went down in a tackle and was taken to hospital with a broken bone in his right leg.

United had cut the aggregate deficit to one goal before Mackay was carried off.

Scorers for Manchester were inside-left David Herd and outside-left Bobby Charlton. Spurs' lone goal came from England inside-forward Jimmy Greaves.

It was Charlton who got the goal that decided the series two minutes from the end.

United achieved their victory despite the absence of star inside-forward Dennis Law, currently serving a 28-day suspension after being sent off in an English League match recently.

A crowd of 50,000 watched the match, which brought the aggregate attendance for the two legs to 110,000.

The victory puts United in the quarter-finals of the competition—the second-most important club tournament in Europe.

Title Bout Set Ahead 1 Day

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay heavyweight championship fight at Miami has been moved up one day to Tuesday, Feb 25.

Bill Faversham, who acts as Clay's manager, said the change was made because many arenas around the nation have events scheduled Feb. 26, Faversham said.

"This would have interfered with closed-circuit television of the bout," he said.

Wednesday is a "big professional basketball night in the United States and hockey is played that night in Canada."

Sooners' Bad Boy Signed by Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Halfback Joe Don Looney, the Oklahoma Sooners bad boy dismissed from the university squad for disciplinary reasons in mid-season, has signed a professional contract with New York Giants of the National Football League.

Despite his personal problems Looney was selected on the first round of the NFL draft by the Giants, who decided to gamble on the 224-pound speedster in an attempt to bolster a weak running attack.

Looney's father played with Philadelphia in 1940 and Pittsburgh in 1941 and 1942.

French, Germans Walk Out Of European Farm Talks

By ROBERT MAUTHNER

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The European Common Market ministerial council today continued a marathon session despite the absence of French and West German agriculture ministers Edgar Pisani and Werner Schwarz.

Pisani walked out of the meeting in anger Tuesday night after accusing West Germany of blocking progress toward a "package deal" common farm policy which the current session is trying to reach.

After his walkout, he returned to Paris for consultations. Both he and Schwarz attended cabinet meetings today in their respective capitals.

The council today discussed proposals for a common rice policy and, according to informed sources, some progress was made.

Before his walkout, Pisani strongly criticized the West Germans for opposing a common rice policy based on preference for the market's two rice producing members — Italy and France.

The dramatic walkout climaxed the internal crisis which has been brewing ever since French President de Gaulle vetoed Britain's application for entry into the six-member market last January.

Pisani delivered a "serious and solemn warning" to the community ministers. He said he was consulting his government on the German position.

His warning came on the second day of a marathon session due to end Dec. 21.

On that date the six nations were scheduled to adopt common agricultural policies and a joint policy for next year's "Kennedy round" tariff-cutting negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Pisani gave instructions authorizing lower - ranking French delegates to carry on in his absence.

The French agriculture minister warned recently France would revise its policy on the Common Market and European political integration unless the year-end deadline was achieved.

There were unconfirmed reports that West Germany could not accept a harmonized community cereal grains price before 1966—after the West German parliamentary elections.

Arthur Mayse

On such a bright and shiny day as this, I don't like to say, 'I told you so!' But as I suspected last week when Kenneth Kiernan added two more portfolios to his ministerial load, a mixup was bound to ensue.

Well, ensue it did, and right promptly.

Almost before the ink on his new commissions had dried, minister of conservation and recreation Kiernan managed to dump a trout stream into one of minister of mines Kiernan's tunnels. The resulting snafu is as cockeyed as an elephant joke.

The conservation and recreation people want their river back, also their fish.

The miners want the river out of their workings.

The federal department of fisheries would like to know how its coho and humpback salmon eggs are to survive the heavy silting which has resulted from a one-portfolio minister's attempt to juggle three.

As it transpires, the messers Kiernan will get off lightly, since with the help of cold weather which has shrunk the Jordan, miners expect soon to plug the 40-by-80 foot hole.

Nevertheless, I hope Premier Bennett will heed the lesson implicit in this little contretemps. A good minister, like an elastic band, can be stretched just so far.

If you haven't been grocery-shopping in the last few days here's good news.

Japanese oranges, which started their season at a whacking $2.49 a box in the markets, have now dropped to $1.98.

Merchants I talked to were hazy as to why the plump little mandarins — as much a part of Christmas as turkey and holly—made their December appearance at so giddy a price. One man thought the crop had been poor, but another came up with a more intriguing answer.

"In earlier years," he explained, "the Japanese couldn't afford to buy their own oranges, so they went almost entirely to the export trade. But prosperity is changing that. The Japanese workman now has more yen to spend on his country's products."

Maybe so. In any case, I can guess why that big fat price came tumbling down.

Too many squawks from yen-stretching Victoria housewives.

A while ago, this corner suggested that what Victoria needs to eke out her natural appeal is a crowd-pleasing event which will bring visitors over the water in droves.

Since then, a number of readers have come up with ideas, all of which would interest us locals. That's not the point, though. We're already interested in our Island and city—we need no convincing.

So, with thanks, I feel we'd be wiser to save the potlaches, naval displays and such for home consumption, unless we're willing to tie them into some more lavish and exciting project.

I'm just thinking out loud now; but I wonder how we'd make out with our very own Vancouver Island Grand Prix?

This is the scene.

For days, the motels and hotels have been jammed. Visitors wait in line to buy a meal. Stores catering to tourists have hired extra help. (Boy-oh-boy!)

Here come the hard-driven sport cars from every club in the Northwest, roaring down off the Malahat to battle out the final gruelling laps in Victoria's streets. (Wow!)

Into the race route beetles an old-guard Victorian in his little 40-to-the-gallon chariot, signal arm still up from the turn he made off Oak Bay Avenue five minutes before. (Ohhh . . . brother!)

On second thought, we'd better leave that one for those money-grubbers north at Nanaimo. After all, who cares if they make a mint?

A prowler walked into St. Ann's Academy during the lunch hour Tuesday and stole cash which students had collected to give a Christmas party for underprivileged youngsters.

The thief also stole petty cash from an office of the residential students' lounge. Total amount missing is about $200.

Two students saw a man about 30 years old in the lounge at about the time the theft occurred. Police have a description of him.

Several times in the last two weeks prowlers have been reported at the Academy during night hours. Earlier this week someone used a fire extinguisher to write obscenities on the grounds of the school yard.

Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Jack Westaway; treasurer, T. T. Vaulkhard; secretary, Mrs. Ena McCabe, and members of the executive committee, Gordon Bentham and Wyn Elford.

The president re-affirmed the society's support of the Shelbourne Boy Scout and Girl Guides' Association who will sponsor the 1964 fall show.

WATCH THE LANGUAGE LADS

Women Cued for Pool Hall Invasions

PAT BENNETT
. . . one of the best

By MARGE GILROY

Been behind the eight ball lately, ladies?

Perhaps you haven't but many others have in a city establishment where not so long ago women were forbidden to enter.

That was when a pool hall was synonymous with a den of iniquity.

Just to mention a pool hall was enough to bring to mind a dingy basement with a spitoon in every corner and the air so blue with smoke that even the foul language came out in muffled tones.

That was yesteryear, last year to be exact.

Today the pool hall, or the billiard parlor if you are really feeling high class, is clean and bright, the spitoons are gone and the air is filled with intermingling male and female voices and sometimes background music.

The bylaw forbidding women to enter pool halls had been on the books in Victoria since 1912. This spring the bylaw was changed and doors flung open.

The women weren't exactly clamoring at the door when the no trespassing sign was lifted but gradually they came.

As 22-year-old Pat Bennett said; "One night a bunch of us were sitting around the house wondering what to do when someone suggested a game of pool."

That was in April and Pat wasn't even aware that the rules had been changed. A little timidly with some fear and trepidation she went along with the gang.

She is now a fine player. I know, I played my second game of eight ball with Pat.

The first was with Al Zuick, the owner of a downtown emporium.

It was just a regular week night and women were not in abundance but they were there.

One gal was there for the first time with her boyfriend and another who came along soon found a partner.

On one occasion there was a shout from the boss, "Hey watch that language."

That was as close as the establishment came to resembling an old style pool hall.

Eighteen to 25-year-olds predominated and this is apparently the picture on week nights, but Friday is rapidly becoming family night when husbands take their wives and children, 18 and over.

Enthusiastic Pat introduced her Mum and Dad and young sister to the game and now they frequently make up a foursome.

On Wednesday night three other young working girls dropped in for an hour. They started to play a few weeks ago, "just for something to do in Victoria."

They still have trouble getting out from behind the eight-ball but they are determined to master the game.

"When women first started to play the game the boys would stand around and look but now all eyes are on the ball," Mr. Zuick said.

He said two of his most enthusiastic customers are a pair of middle-aged women who are often first to appear in the morning and are waiting impatiently for the day when the "billiard parlor" will be open on Sundays.

They consider it a wonderful substitute for golf on rainy days.

This reporter has just one word of advice for the gals—wear slacks, it is a game where position sometimes counts, especially if you get stuck behind the eight-ball.

Election Battle Still Under Way At Saanichton?

Laws Violated Reeve Charges

A personal battle flared into a possible attempt to unseat a councillor in Central Saanich today.

The council Tuesday night questioned the validity of the election of Ray Lamont Dec. 5.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said a letter soliciting votes for Mr. Lamont circulated on election day was apparently "a flagrant violation of the rules."

The letter is being sent to the provincial municipal affairs department for consideration and advice.

Mr. Lamont was the only member of the council to vote against a new municipal hall, sparking some bitter arguments both in council and during the election campaign.

"They're trying to get even with me," he said today.

NO COMMENT

Municipal affairs officials said they can't comment on the evidence.

However, they pointed out that the municipal act requires anyone challenging an election to take a petition to the courts.

Mr. Lee said he knew this, but council wanted the advice of the government.

The letter, mimeographed, but addressed in handwriting, was sent out by a Mrs. Hazel M. Woodward of Brentwood.

It praised Mr. Lamont and criticized the reeve and other council members, particularly about the municipal hall.

Mr. Lee said the letter was drawn to council's attention by "some ratepayers."

ELECTION DAY

He said copies of the letter were postmarked 1 a.m. Dec. 5, the day of the election.

The Municipal Act prohibits anyone from undertaking any form of "advertising" on election day.

Mr. Lamont said he knew nothing about the letter and it was not part of his campaign.

He first saw it when his wife received a copy in the mail, he said.

He believed it to be a "private letter from one individual to another," he added.

GROG SHOPS CLOSE EARLY FOR HOLIDAYS

Downtown liquor stores will close early Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Government Liquor Control Board chairman Col. Donald McGugan said today that all stores will close at 6 p.m. on Dec. 24 and Dec. 31.

Downtown stores here and in Vancouver usually stay open until 11 p.m.

The early closing will allow LCB employees to spend the holiday season at home.

Exploiting Charge Refuted

Henry Eng, president of Oakcrest Food Stores Limited, today denounced George Johnston, secretary of the Meat Cutters' Union, for making unjustified statements about the handling of labor matters at the huge Oakcrest supermarket on Quadra Street.

In a story appearing in the Times of Dec 5 Mr. Johnston was quoted as accusing Mr. Eng and Oakcrest of skirting a legal contract, exploiting Chinese employees and unethical hiring and firing tactics.

Mr. Eng vehemently denied all these accusations which he stated were misleading. He explained that the union contract had been lived up to the letter since it was signed and that there had been no hiring or firing in the meat department of the Oakcrest store since the date of the contract.

ADJUSTMENT

Mr. Eng emphasized that the food business in the Victoria area was going through a major adjustment due to increased competition and that he had recently had to lay-off one full-time and one part-time worker, but strictly according to the terms of the union agreement. He said lay-offs are normal procedure in any business where trade fluctuates.

Mr. Eng stated that Oakcrest does not own or operate a subsidiary meat cutting operation and that if he knew of any company which employed workmen "at less than half the union rate" he certainly would not do business with it.

Mr. Eng said that he was forced to the conclusion that the union felt that it was losing face over the two recent lay-offs at his store and was now trying to intimidate him.

With reference to the item published by the Times on Dec. 5, 1963, the Times desires to make it clear that in publishing the item there was no intention whatsoever of casting any reflection upon the reputation of Mr. Eng or Oakcrest Food Stores Limited.

Japanese Orange Prices Peeled

A price war is making Japanese oranges an attractive buy.

They've come down more than 20 per cent since their recent arrival in city stores.

Chain stores are following each other in price-slashing which began with a two-day "special" at Shop-Easy, Vancouver.

The original price was dropped from $2.49 a case to $1.98.

Shop-Easy, Victoria, is now selling at $1.89 per case, and Woodward's Mayfair has a similar price. Both stores are offering this price on family purchases.

A Shop-Easy spokesman said that "everyone got in on it and we had to keep up."

Woodward's spokesman said it is better than price-fixing "but it's bad for us . . . That's competition. We may run out of supplies by Christmas, and there won't be any more."

Super-Valu, selling at $1.98 per case, said the price is "considerably below cost."

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1963—PAGE 13

FIRST of Salvation Army Christmas coin-collecting cans appeared in downtown Victoria today. In charge are Mrs. M. A. Sanford, 927 Collinson; Debra Johnson, five (left) and Cheryl Johnson, six, of 1732 Emerson Street. Eleven kettles in all will be used to collect funds for hampers for needy families, numbering about 350 in the average year. Any surplus will go to Salvation Army's emergency winter relief program. New Plan For Care Of Elderly

Metro health chief Dr. John Whitbread Tuesday submitted a draft plan for sweeping changes in caring for the chronically ill and aged and creation of a task force to promote their rehabilitation wherever possible.

The plan was taken under study by the Greater Victoria metro health board.

In explanatory remarks, Dr. Whitbread said much could be done to help the large number of elderly persons "vegetating" in nursing and boarding homes or in their own homes.

He suggested resources of the board, private agencies such as the Red Cross and Victorian Order of Nurses, and government welfare and employment agencies be organized to help.

MANY IN OWN HOMES

The draft plan for organizing rehabilitation, home care and institutional care in the metro region pointed out that as far back as 1961 there were more than 4,000 chronically ill persons in institutions and their own homes.

This results largely from the fact that 20 per cent of Greater Victoria residents are over 65 years of age—compared with a national average of 8 per cent.

Dr. Whitbread said the standard care for these people could be "improved considerably and yet produce a saving in present costs to the various governments involved."

A co-ordinator of admissions should be appointed to direct persons requiring nursing or boarding home care to the most suitable available home in place of the present "haphazard methods of admission."

A team of occupational and physio-therapists should be established to assist in providing follow-up care, and care to persons in their own homes, "so they are not left to vegetate," Dr. Whitbread said.

Nest Egg Lost

City Hall officials today were scratching around trying to find, of all things, a poultry compensation fund.

Search was touched off by W. H. Gates, 1837 Fern Street, who tendered a claim for $17.50 for loss of seven laying hens to a stray dog that got into his poultry run—one of the few left in the city.

"We certainly used to have a fund like that, but whether it still exists or not I don't know," said veteran city clerk Frank Hunter.

"Well we don't have anything like that in our budgets these days, but then I'm still pretty young," quipped comptroller-treasurer James Bramley.

The claim has been turned over to the legal department to come up with an answer.

Ask The Times

Q.—What is the difference between a puppet and a marionette?—K.F.S.

A.—According to Webster's unabridged dictionary, puppet and marionette are synonymous.

Q.—Could you give me the address of Charles Edison, former secretary of the navy and governor of New Jersey?—J.A.

A.—His address is Llewellyn Park, West Orange, New Jersey.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Solid Approval Urged In Police Station Vote

Mayor R. B. Wilson today made a strong plea for thumping ratepayer approval of the $375,000 police station plebiscite.

Voters will cast their ballots between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Thursday in the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Government and Cormorant.

"It is of vital importance that the money bylaw receive the necessary 60 per cent support of the voters if we are to have an efficient and contented police force," he said.

The bylaw, besides providing reconstruction of the dingy and inefficient interior layout of the police headquarters, will also provide construction of magistrate's courts which could be used as a central municipal court building, he added.

The mayor also urged Victorians to produce a good voting turnout.

"We hope there will be a large number voting tomorrow," he said. "There are plenty of contestants for the four aldermanic and two school trustee seats so there should be a great deal of interest in this election."

A suggestion by lawyer E. H. M. Foot that the city hold advance and absentee polls in future elections "deserves a serious look," said Mayor Wilson. It likely will receive committee study next week.

Soldier Fined

A 22-year-old soldier who threw a bottle out of a car in Esquimalt Tuesday morning was fined $25 in magistrate's court today.

Harold Krause, Work Point Barracks, was upbraided for his action by Magistrate William Ostler. Asked the magistrate: "Do you realize if you had struck someone with the bottle you would have been guilty of criminal negligence?"

DOESN'T CARE A HOOT FOR GULLS

Giant Owl Rules Roost in Inner Harbor

By LESLIE MILLIN

There's a new hooter sounding in the Inner Harbor.

Standing out above the squeal of seagulls and the horns of tugboats is . . . the voice of the Great Horned Owl.

This Great Horned Owl (Bubo virginianus saturatus) is a long way off his home turf, and was spotted by Max Lohbrunner, who lives aboard an elderly fishing vessel moored at the foot of Herald Street.

* * *

It's a big bird—nearly two feet tall—with an enormous wing span, and it has taken up residence on the bow of the Brico, a ship being wrecked at the Capital Iron wharf.

Usually these birds, the biggest in the owl line, live in forest areas where they dine on rats, mice, rabbits, birds, insects and small mammals.

This one has probably moved into town because the cold winter has cut down on the rural food supply.

Great Horned Owls are protected by game laws, although as one book on birds points out, they don't need much protection.

In fact, a flock of seagulls started to jeer at our Great Horned Owl on Monday afternoon, and at least one gull was speedily disillusioned.

Leaping off the bow of the Brico with startling agility, our Great Horned Owl reared back and reduced that gull to a few floating feathers.

Then he flew around the Inner Harbor showing off his four-foot wingspan, and laughing like a wise owl that has it made.

On such a bright and shiny day as this, I don't like to say, 'I told you so!' But as I suspected last week when Kenneth Kiernan added two more portfolios to his ministerial load, a mixup was bound to ensue.

Well, ensue it did, and right promptly.

Almost before the ink on his new commissions had dried, minister of conservation and recreation Kiernan managed to dump a trout stream into one of minister of mines Kiernan's tunnels. The resulting snafu is as cockeyed as an elephant joke.

The conservation and recreation people want their river back, also their fish.

The miners want the river out of their workings.

The federal department of fisheries would like to know how its coho and humpback salmon eggs are to survive the heavy silting which has resulted from a one-portfolio minister's attempt to juggle three.

As it transpires, the messers Kiernan will get off lightly, since with the help of cold weather which has shrunk the Jordan, miners expect soon to plug the 40-by-80 foot hole.

Nevertheless, I hope Premier Bennett will heed the lesson implicit in this little contretemps. A good minister, like an elastic band, can be stretched just so far.

If you haven't been grocery-shopping in the last few days here's good news.

Japanese oranges, which started their season at a whacking $2.49 a box in the markets, have now dropped to $1.98.

Merchants I talked to were hazy as to why the plump little mandarins — as much a part of Christmas as turkey and holly—made their December appearance at so giddy a price. One man thought the crop had been poor, but another came up with a more intriguing answer.

"In earlier years," he explained, "the Japanese couldn't afford to buy their own oranges, so they went almost entirely to the export trade. But prosperity is changing that. The Japanese workman now has more yen to spend on his country's products."

Maybe so. In any case, I can guess why that big fat price came tumbling down.

Too many squawks from yen-stretching Victoria housewives.

A while ago, this corner suggested that what Victoria needs to eke out her natural appeal is a crowd-pleasing event which will bring visitors over the water in droves.

Since then, a number of readers have come up with ideas, all of which would interest us locals. That's not the point, though. We're already interested in our Island and city—we need no convincing.

So, with thanks, I feel we'd be wiser to save the potlaches naval displays and such for home consumption, unless we're willing to tie them into some more lavish and exciting project.

I'm just thinking out loud now; but I wonder how we'd make out with our very own Vancouver Island Grand Prix?

This is the scene.

For days, the motels and hotels have been jammed. Visitors wait in line to buy a meal. Stores catering to tourists have hired extra help. (Boy-oh-boy!)

Here come the hard-driven sport cars from every club in the Northwest, roaring down off the Malahat to battle out the final gruelling laps in Victoria's streets. (Wow!)

Into the race route beetles an old-guard Victorian in his little 40-to-the-gallon chariot, signal arm still up from the turn he made off Oak Bay Avenue five minutes before. (Ohhh . . . brother!)

On second thought, we'd better leave that one for those money-grubbers north at Nanaimo. After all, who cares if they make a mint?

Topics of the Day

Victoria Y's Men's Club will meet at the YMCA Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be motor vehicle branch driving examiner, John Furmston, on "Safe Driving".

* * *

An evening of Christmas carols will be given by Victoria West United Church choir Monday at 7:45 p.m.

More than $500 worth of gifts will be presented to less fortunate children by Victoria Jaycees Saturday.

Santa Claus will distribute the gifts at a Christmas party in Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall at 2 p.m. to which 70 children have been invited.

They will also receive clothing and toys collected from Victoria department stores.

* * *

Seeking accommodation in Victoria are 200 families of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

"They will arrive within the next two weeks," said Sgt. Charles McGraw, who would like to hear from prospective landlords.

He can be reached at EV 5-1371, local 355, Monday to Friday, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

A prowler walked into St. Ann's Academy during the lunch hour Tuesday and stole cash which students had collected to give a Christmas party for underprivileged youngsters.

The thief also stole petty cash from an office of the residential students' lounge. Total amount missing is about $200.

Two students saw a man about 30 years old in the lounge at about the time the theft occurred. Police have a description of him.

Several times in the last two weeks prowlers have been reported at the Academy during night hours. Earlier this week someone used a fire extinguisher to write obscenities on the grounds of the school yard.

Ernie Eckdahl was elected president of Victoria Magic Circle at its recent annual meeting and Christmas party.

Also on the executive are Lon Chaney, vice-president, and Ernie Crockford, secretary-treasurer.

Geoff Holyhead has been elected president of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society.

Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Jack Westaway; treasurer, T. T. Vaulkhard; secretary, Mrs. Ena McCabe, and members of the executive committee, Gordon Bentham and Wyn Elford.

The president re-affirmed the society's support of the Shelbourne Boy Scout and Girl Guides' Association who will sponsor the 1964 fall show.

Japanese Orange Prices Peeled

A price war is making Japanese oranges an attractive buy.

They've come down more than 20 per cent since their recent arrival in city stores.

Chain stores are following each other in price-slashing which began with a two-day "special" at Shop-Easy, Vancouver.

The original price was dropped from $2.49 a case to $1.98.

Shop-Easy, Victoria, is now selling at $1.89 per case, and Woodward's Mayfair has a similar price. Both stores are offering this price on family purchases.

A Shop-Easy spokesman said that "everyone got in on it and we had to keep up."

Woodward's spokesman said it is better than price-fixing "but it's bad for us . . . That's competition. We may run out of supplies by Christmas, and there won't be any more."

Super-Valu, selling at $1.98 per case, said the price is "considerably below cost."

A case contains about 60 mandarins, or 10 lbs. weight.

Election Battle Still Under Way At Saanichton?

Laws Violated Reeve Charges

A personal battle flared into a possible attempt to unseat a councillor in Central Saanich today.

The council Tuesday night questioned the validity of the election of Ray Lamont Dec. 5.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said a letter soliciting votes for Mr. Lamont circulated on election day was apparently "a flagrant violation of the rules."

The letter is being sent to the provincial municipal affairs department for consideration and advice.

Mr. Lamont was the only member of the council to vote against a new municipal hall, sparking some bitter arguments both in council and during the election campaign.

"They're trying to get even with me," he said today.

NO COMMENT

Municipal affairs officials said they can't comment on the evidence.

However, they pointed out that the municipal act requires anyone challenging an election to take a petition to the courts.

Mr. Lee said he knew this, but council wanted the advice of the government.

The letter, mimeographed, but addressed in handwriting, was sent out by a Mrs. Hazel M. Woodward of Brentwood.

It praised Mr. Lamont and criticized the reeve and other council members, particularly about the municipal hall.

Mr. Lee said the letter was drawn to council's attention by "some ratepayers."

ELECTION DAY

He said copies of the letter were postmarked 1 a.m. Dec. 5, the day of the election.

The Municipal Act prohibits anyone from undertaking any form of "advertising" on election day.

Mr. Lamont said he knew nothing about the letter and it was not part of his campaign.

He first saw it when his wife received a copy in the mail, he said.

He believed it to be a "private letter from one individual to another," he added.

GROG SHOPS CLOSE EARLY FOR HOLIDAYS

Downtown liquor stores will close early Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Government Liquor Control Board chairman Col. Donald McGugan said today that all stores will close at 6 p.m. on Dec. 24 and Dec. 31.

Downtown stores here and in Vancouver usually stay open until 11 p.m.

The early closing will allow LCB employees to spend the holiday season at home.

Women Cued for Pool Hall Invasions

By MARGE GILROY

Been behind the eight ball lately, ladies?

Perhaps you haven't but many others have in a city establishment where not so long ago women were forbidden to enter.

That was when a pool hall was synonymous with a den of iniquity.

Just to mention a pool hall was enough to bring to mind a dingy basement with a spitoon in every corner and the air so blue with smoke that even the foul language came out in muffled tones.

That was yesteryear, last year to be exact.

Today the pool hall, or the billiard parlor if you are really feeling high class, is clean and bright, the spitoons are gone and the air is filled with intermingling male and female voices and sometimes background music.

The bylaw forbidding women to enter pool halls had been on the books in Victoria since 1912. This spring the bylaw was changed and doors flung open.

The women weren't exactly clamoring at the door when the no trespassing sign was lifted but gradually they came.

As 22-year-old Pat Bennett said; "One night a bunch of us were sitting around the house wondering what to do when someone suggested a game of pool."

That was in April and Pat wasn't even aware that the rules had been changed. A little timidly with some fear and trepidation she went along with the gang.

She is now a fine player. I know, I played my second game of eight ball with Pat.

The first was with Al Zuick, the owner of a downtown emporium.

It was just a regular week night and women were not in abundance but they were there.

One gal was there for the first time with her boyfriend and another who came along soon found a partner.

On one occasion there was a shout from the boss, "Hey watch that language."

That was as close as the establishment came to resembling an old style pool hall.

Eighteen to 25-year-olds predominated and this is apparently the picture on week nights, but Friday is rapidly becoming family night when husbands take their wives and children, 18 and over.

Enthusiastic Pat introduced her Mum and Dad and young sister to the game and now they frequently make up a foursome.

On Wednesday night three other young working girls dropped in for an hour. They started to play a few weeks ago, "just for something to do in Victoria."

They still have trouble getting out from behind the eight-ball but they are determined to master the game.

"When women first started to play the game the boys would stand around and look but now all eyes are on the ball," Mr. Zuick said.

He said two of his most enthusiastic customers are a pair of middle-aged women who are often first to appear in the morning and are waiting impatiently for the day when the "billiard parlor" will be open on Sundays.

They consider it a wonderful substitute for golf on rainy days.

This reporter has just one word of advice for the gals—wear slacks, it is a game where position sometimes counts, especially if you get stuck behind the eight-ball.

Exploiting Charge Refuted

Henry Eng, president of Oakcrest Food Stores Limited, today denounced George Johnston, secretary of the Meat Cutters' Union, for making unjustified statements about the handling of labor matters at the huge Oakcrest supermarket on Quadra Street.

In a story appearing in the Times of Dec 5 Mr. Johnston was quoted as accusing Mr. Eng and Oakcrest of skirting a legal contract, exploiting Chinese employees and unethical hiring and firing tactics.

Mr. Eng vehemently denied all these accusations which he stated were misleading. He explained that the union contract had been lived up to the letter since it was signed and that there had been no hiring or firing in the meat department of the Oakcrest store since the date of the contract.

ADJUSTMENT

Mr. Eng emphasized that the food business in the Victoria area was going through a major adjustment due to increased competition and that he had recently had to lay-off one full-time and one part-time worker, but strictly according to the terms of the union agreement. He said lay-offs are normal procedure in any business where trade fluctuates.

Mr. Eng stated that Oakcrest does not own or operate a subsidiary meat cutting operation and that if he knew of any company which employed workmen "at less than half the union rate" he certainly would not do business with it.

Mr. Eng said that he was forced to the conclusion that the union felt that it was losing face over the two recent lay-offs at his store and was now trying to intimidate him.

With reference to the item published by the Times on Dec. 5, 1963, the Times desires to make it clear that in publishing the item there was no intention whatsoever of casting any reflection upon the reputation of Mr. Eng or Oakcrest Food Stores Limited.

New Plan For Care Of Elderly

Metro health chief Dr. John Whitbread Tuesday submitted a draft plan for sweeping changes in caring for the chronically ill and aged and creation of a task force to promote their rehabilitation wherever possible.

The plan was taken under study by the Greater Victoria metro health board.

In explanatory remarks, Dr. Whitbread said much could be done to help the large number of elderly persons "vegetating" in nursing and boarding homes or in their own homes.

He suggested resources of the board, private agencies such as the Red Cross and Victorian Order of Nurses, and government welfare and employment agencies be organized to help.

MANY IN OWN HOMES

The draft plan for organizing rehabilitation, home care and institutional care in the metro region pointed out that as far back as 1961 there were more than 4,000 chronically ill persons in institutions and their own homes.

This results largely from the fact that 20 per cent of Greater Victoria residents are over 65 years of age—compared with a national average of 8 per cent.

Dr. Whitbread said the standard care for these people could be "improved considerably and yet produce a saving in present costs to the various governments involved."

A co-ordinator of admissions should be appointed to direct persons requiring nursing or boarding home care to the most suitable available home in place of the present "haphazard methods of admission."

A team of occupational and physio-therapists should be established to assist in providing follow-up care, and care to persons in their own homes, "so they are not left to vegetate," Dr. Whitbread said.

Solid Approval Urged In Police Station Vote

Mayor R. B. Wilson today made a strong plea for thumping ratepayer approval of the $375,000 police station plebiscite.

Voters will cast their ballots between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Thursday in the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Government and Cormorant.

"It is of vital importance that the money bylaw receive the necessary 60 per cent support of the voters if we are to have an efficient and contented police force," he said.

The bylaw, besides providing reconstruction of the dingy and inefficient interior layout of the police headquarters, will also provide construction of magistrate's courts which could be used as a central municipal court building, he added.

The mayor also urged Victorians to produce a good voting turnout.

"We hope there will be a large number voting tomorrow," he said. "There are plenty of contestants for the four aldermanic and two school trustee seats so there should be a great deal of interest in this election."

A suggestion by lawyer E. H. M. Foot that the city hold advance and absentee polls in future elections "deserves a serious look," said Mayor Wilson. It likely will receive committee study next week.

Soldier Fined

A 22-year-old soldier who threw a bottle out of a car in Esquimalt Tuesday morning was fined $25 in magistrate's court today.

Harold Krause, Work Point Barracks, was upbraided for his action by Magistrate William Ostler. Asked the magistrate: "Do you realize if you had struck someone with the bottle you would have been guilty of criminal negligence?"

Nest Egg Lost

City Hall officials today were scratching around trying to find, of all things, a poultry compensation fund.

Search was touched off by W. H. Gates, 1837 Fern Street, who tendered a claim for $17.50 for loss of seven laying hens to a stray dog that got into his poultry run—one of the few left in the city.

"We certainly used to have a fund like that, but whether it still exists or not I don't know," said veteran city clerk Frank Hunter.

"Well we don't have anything like that in our budgets these days, but then I'm still pretty young," quipped comptroller-treasurer James Bramley.

The claim has been turned over to the legal department to come up with an answer.

DOESN'T CARE A HOOT FOR GULLS

By LESLIE MILLIN

There's a new hooter sounding in the Inner Harbor.

Standing out above the squeal of seagulls and the horns of tugboats is . . . the voice of the Great Horned Owl.

This Great Horned Owl (Bubo virginianus saturatus) is a long way off his home turf, and was spotted by Max Lohbrunner, who lives aboard an elderly fishing vessel moored at the foot of Herald Street.

It's a big bird—nearly two feet tall—with an enormous wing span, and it has taken up residence on the bow of the Brico, a ship being wrecked at the Capital Iron wharf.

MANUFACTURERS CHIEF

Trade Barriers Should Be Eased

MONTREAL (CP) — Removal of trade barriers that have outlined their usefulness and progressive reduction of others that can be reduced without drastic consequences to the economy of any country was advocated today by H. Roy Crabtree, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Addressing the association's Quebec division, Mr. Crabtree said manufacteurers attach enormous importance to the maintenance of an adequate tariff structure so far as our own limited and still developing market is concerned.

"But I know of few manufacturers who are not equally alive to the fact that if we want improved access to foreign markets, then we must be flexible and concession-minded where our own tariffs are concerned. It is in this spirit that the Canadian delegation should go to Geneva next spring for 'the Kennedy round' of the GATT General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade negotiations."

Mr. Crabtree, president of Wabasso Cotton Co. Ltd., Montreal, said the Geneva negotiations will be of greater significance than any in recent years and 1964 might well mark a turning point in trading relations between the great industrial countries of the West.

"There have been no lack of ministerial hints that we must expect and prepare ourselves for some reductions in our tariffs," he said.

ENDANGER INDUSTRIES?

"Quite frankly, our biggest concern is that any downward revision should not be so sweeping as to endanger the survival of the affected industries and the jobs of those they employ.'

Mr. Crabtree said Canada's exports of finished goods this year is expected to total $1,000,000,000 or about double what it was three years ago.

Products showing the biggest export gain include electronic communications equipment, industrial machinery, automobile parts and farm equipment.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Speculatives Hike Volume at Toronto

Activity among speculative issues dominated trading today on the Toronto stock market and sent the volume soaring.

Among speculatives, Croinor was ahead seven cents to 43 cents on 546,520 shares, Zulapa 3½ cents to 22 cents on 126,000 shares and Jacobus one cent to 20 cents on 109,200 shares.

Candore dipped one cent to 19 cents on 190,449 shares and Consolidated Mogul fell 16 cents to $2.76 on profit taking.

In the gold section, McIntyre rose 1⅞ to 48¾.

Advances by rails continued to bolster a mixed market at New York.

AT TORONTO on the industrial board, Investors Syndicate A gained one point to 52, Royal Bank ¾ and Federal Grain ½.

On the minus side, International Minerals and Chemical fell one point to 66½, Simpsons ⅞ and Moore Corporation ¾.

Noranda advanced ¾ and Falconbridge ½ among senior base metals.

Central Del Rio was up 15 cents to $7 in western oils.

AT NEW YORK — Among Canadian issues traded, Canadian Pacific and Walker Gooderham fell ½ and Granby Mining ⅛. International Nickel gained ¾ and McIntyre Porcupine 1¾.

Prices on the American Exchange were generally lower. Brazilian Traction fell ⅛. Canadian Marconi and Preston gained ⅛, Canadian Javelin ¼, Molybdenite 1/16 and Scurry Rainbow Oil ⅜.

AT MONTREAL — Prices were slightly higher today on the stock exchange.

Industrial Acceptance gained ⅜, Asbestos, Labatt and Calgary Power ¼ each and Rockwell-Standard, CPR and International Nickel ⅛ apiece.

AT LONDON equities developed a buoyant trend on the stock market today. Gilt-edges, however, lost an early firm trend and were narrowly irregular on balance.

Dollar stocks were mixed. Several Canadian issues improved including Imperial Oil and Algoma, but Aluminium Ltd. and Consolidated Paper were dull.

Canadian banks occasionally eased. Home banks and insurances were little changed.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Bethlehem Copper was down at $6.70 while Utica was up at .32. Cowichan Copper climbed to .79 and Kootenay Base Metal to .24½. B.C. Forest was up at $23.25 and Mid-west Gas at $2.90. Neon rose to $25 and B.C. Sugar to $40.

Canadian Consumers Owe More

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian consumers owed more money at the end of September than they did on the same date a year ago, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says Tuesday.

Balances outstanding on the books of sales finance companies for consumer and commercial goods, small loan companies for cash loans and instalment credit, department stores, furniture and appliance stores, and chartered banks for personal loans were higher.

End of September balances with last year's figures in brackets:

Sales finance companies for consumer goods, $847,000,000 ($776,000,000); sales finance companies for commercial goods, $462,000,000 ($434,000,000); small loan companies for cash loans, $706,000,000 ($617,000,000); small loan companies for instalment credit, $46,000,000 ($44,000,000); department stores, $394,000,000 ($366,000,000); furniture and appliance stores, $188,000,000 ($186,000,000), and chartered banks for personal loans $1,831,000,000 ($1,638,000,000).

Columbia Cellulose Announces Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP) — Columbia Cellulose Company Ltd. has announced a semi-annual dividend of 10 cents on common shares, payable Dec. 30, 1963 to shareholders of record Dec. 18, 1963.

President Paul M. Marshall said in a statement the $4,000,000 expansion project underway at Prince Rupert will be completed early in 1964.

Production of dissolved pulp grades will be increased to about 530 tons a day, or 182,000 tons a year.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax trade featured trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Flax prices received some stimulation from reports that Russia and other Soviet countries were making purchases of linseed oil on the continental market. A resultant advance in the linseed oil market was in the background of Winnipeg flax trade.

Also contributing to flax buying were purchases by export accounts accompanied by trade reports about 80,000 bushels of flaxseed were sold to the United Kingdom.

Oats and barley trade remained quiet and of a domestic nature. There was a modest shipping demand for oats and some buying in barley. Shipping reports showed substantial amounts of barley had moved to eastern ports for the feed trade.

CHICAGO (AP)—Except for new crop wheat, the grain futures market was generally about steady to strong most of the time today on the board of trade.

July and September wheat came under moderate but steady selling pressure on reports of snowfall over much of the winter crop belt and forecasts of more to come. The moisture was badly needed in the area where the crop was understood to be in poor to only fair condition.

With soybean oil and soybean meal holding a firm range, speculators bid aggressively at times for soybeans.

FASHIONS THRILL CANADIANS

Dusseldorf 'Paris of Germany'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

DUSSELDORF, Germany — Sixteen years ago I wandered through the ruins of this bomb-shattered city and wondered how it was that civilized nations could visit such horror on one another.

In an article which seems rather naive in retrospect, I wrote:

"For God's sake, let's find out how this thing happened and never let it happen again!"

Today there is no trace of the devastation visited on Dusseldorf by the Allied air forces of the British Commonwealth and the United States.

Up From Ashes

This fine old city of the Rhine, established in 1288 A.D., has risen like a shining Phoenix from the ashes of war.

Its stately historical buildings have been restored in their original style; many new ones, including high-rise office buildings, have been added, and the Koenigsalle boulevard, running alongside an ornamental canal built by Napoleon's engineers, is one of the most beautiful in the world.

Some of the original buildings still bear the marks of shrapnel from the heavy raids, but all the devastation I saw here in 1947 — the torn buildings, the great mounds of brick and rubble — have vanished like an evil dream

New homes are springing up around the city as the population climbs towards the half-million mark, and wherever there is building there is planning — solid, industrious German planning. For every hundred or so new homes, there will be a small parkland, replete with children's swings, tennis courts and perhaps an ornamental pond on which delightful toy boats can be sailed.

Yule Trees Sparkle

Like most cities in West Germany, Dusseldorf is booming; unemployment is a fading memory and the Koenigsalle boulevard now sparkling with electric Christmas trees, has the finest shop windows I have ever seen.

The dressing is ingenious and colorful and the German window artists stop at no expense in carrying out their imaginative designs.

In one store they are constructing an ornamental lake, with a green tiled floor, as a background for the latest in electric light fittings. In another they were building a huge model ship as the setting for a life-size Santa Claus (Saint Nicholas) and his reindeer.

Dusseldorf is known as the Paris of Germany so far as women's fashions are concerned.

"I would say it is the equal of Paris in many respects," said Mrs. G. G. Brown, wife of the commanding officer of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, now stationed at Fort MacLeod, about 70 miles from Dusseldorf.

Plans Shop Spree

Mrs. Brown has lived in Germany twice before. She dresses elegantly and in good taste and is planning a shopping spree in Dusseldorf soon.

Mrs. Gerald Berdine, wife of an official at the Canadian consulate here, also speaks highly of the city's shopping facilities.

"Generally speaking, women's dresses are cheaper than in Paris and a very wide range of style is offered in hats, coats and dresses."

From the male viewpoint there is perhaps too much to buy in the way of feminine apparel in Dusseldorf, as is testified by Canadian government officials living here. They get a good living allowance, but the incidental expenses (including entertainment of guests) are high.

Wives of the First Battalion will inevitably visit Dusseldorf sooner or later and their husbands' pocket books will suffer accordingly.

'I Just Go Berserk'

"There's nothing like it in Canada," said the wife of a private soldier in the PPCLI. "I just go berserk when I see all the lovely clothes they display along the Koenigsalle."

For the men there are delightful taverns where you may enjoy a glass of full-bodied German ale with a German sausage on rye, or a full-flavored frankfurter sandwiched between two hard bread rolls.

Beer and wine are available everywhere. They are sold in the streets, on station platforms, in grocery stores and wayside snack counters.

Drink is openly enjoyed—no shame is attached to it.

Lawyer Says Jurors Pally With Accused

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges that jurymen fraternized with the accused and with Crown witnesses during a 43-day New Westminster fraud trial earlier this year were made by lawyer Gordon Dowding before the B.C Court of Appeal Tuesday.

He made his allegations in an appeal against the convictions of David Friesen, Richard Shortridge and Malcolm McQuaig who were found guilty of fraud by an Assize Court jury.

They were convicted with Gordon Baxter and Peter Haliday, who are not appealing. Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson gave the men sentences of two to three years.

Dowding based his appeal on what he termed were irregularities in the conduct of the trial and told the appeal court he could support his statements with sworn affidavits by the persons involved, spoken evidence of others, or both.

Mr. Justice H. W. Davey, presiding judge in the panel hearing the appeal, said the charges of court irregularities were so serious they should be investigated.

Dowding alleged that on numerous occasions two members of the jury ate and drank with Baxter and Haliday, two of the accused, and discussed the trial during court adjournments.

He said that Baxter and Haliday "were adverse in interests to the other three accused, or appeared to be."

The appeal is continuing.

11-Room Addition Opened

Elimination of school shift classes came a step closer in Greater Victoria last week with the full use of McKenzie Ave. Elementary School's eight-room addition.

Formal opening sponsored by the PTA is set for 7:30 p.m., Dec. 17, in which pupils will present a concert and guests will participate in carol singing.

Members of the district's board of trustees and officials are invited with parents from the McKenzie Avenue area.

The addition brings to 11 the number of classrooms at the school, which has been using a wartime army hut as annex for some tilme, plus the shift system to accommodate all children.

Craigflower School is one of the few remaining shift schools in the area.

McKenzie has used the first six rooms of the addition since Nov. 25 and the remaining two went into use last week. The addition also provides an office and medical room

Original cost was estimated at $225,000, which was later reduced by eliminating an expanded gymnasium.

Prowlers Hit City Homes In Daylight

Two city homes were entered by prowlers Monday afternoon and a man was chased away from an apartment block in the early evening.

Miss A. Chrow, 1016 Craigdarroch, returned home in late afternoon to find her house ransacked but nothing appeared to be missing. A house at 717 Robleda Crescent was also entered but nothing appeared to be taken here either.

In both cases entry was made by breaking a window and releasing a catch.

Mrs. L. C. Keys disturbed a man prowling in the basement at 1612 Quadra. He left when she spoke to him and, despite an immediate police search, he wasn't found.

Jobless Rate Drop Continues

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had an estimated 303,000 unemployed persons in mid-November, 39,000 fewer than a year earlier, as the last year's rise in jobs available continued to outstrip the growth of the labor force, an official report said today.

Between mid - October and mid-November, the number of jobless showed "a smaller-than-seasonal rise" of 38,000, said the joint report by the labor department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The November jobless rate was 4.5 per cent of the labor force—the lowest in seven years for that month—compared with 5.2 per cent in November, 1962, and 5.4 per cent two years ago. In October, the rate was 3.9 per cent.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Nov. 1963	Oct. 1963	Nov. 1962
Labor force	6,799	6,841	6,612
Employed	6,496	6,576	6,270
Unemployed	303	265	342

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada for the week ended Nov. 16. Since figures are based on a sample cross-section of the population, they are estimates and not precise totals.

The year-to-year gain of 226,000 in total employment represented a 3.6-per-cent increase, compared with the advance of 2.8 per cent in the labor force.

The report said the employment decline of 80,000 between October and November "followed the usual seasonal pattern." There was a drop of 33,000 in non-farm industries and a 47,000 decline in agricultural employment.

The year's 3.6-per-cent rise in employment compared with an average annual increase of 2.1 per cent over the last decade. The extra jobs were developed mainly in the service, manufacturing, trade and construction industries.

November employment was up considerably from a year earlier in all regions except the Atlantic region where the total was unchanged.

Hellyer, NATO To Talk Defence

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer will have private talks in Paris next week with NATO military commanders and representatives of other governments concerned about his plans for reorganization of Canadian forces committed to NATO.

These talks, it was learned here, will deal mainly with the eight squadrons of RCAF low-level nuclear bombers in Europe and the 30 Canadian warships committed to NATO's Atlantic Command.

Mr. Hellyer has several times indicated that something will have to be done about the basing of four RCAF squadrons in France, where, because of French policy, they can't be armed with nuclear bombs.

The view here is that no major military decisions will be taken by the NATO ministerial meeting Dec. 16-18 and that the main business, in which External Affairs Minister Martin will participate, will be a review of East - West relations since NATO's May meeting in Ottawa and developments within the Communist bloc.

MAY DISCUSS PLANS

Privately, Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Martin may inform other alliance members of Canadian plans, still being formulated, for an airborne conventional force which could be used for NATO or United Nations service.

Prime Minister Pearson has stated several times that conventional forces in Europe should be strengthened so that NATO wouldn't be forced into a position of using nuclear weapons immediately in response to a conventional Soviet attack.

The Europeans, especially the French and West Germans, hold that nuclear response should be immediate. The United States, it is felt here, is still firmly opposed to any such policy and that therefore Mr. Pearson's views and those of the U.S. are the same.

if he was about 20 or 25 years old. It was a firm voice, a bit between baritone and tenor. He articulated well. He made statements such as 'discretion will be the demeanor'."

NO PROTECTION DEAL

Sinatra said the payoff point was on Wilshire Boulevard in west Los Angeles and no deal was made to protect the abductors after they received the ransom. "They're on their own now," he said.

Young Sinatra apparently was driven the 485 miles from the Lake Tahoe area to Hollywood in the trunk of a car. California and Nevada authorities relaxed certain roadblocks in the area, presumably after the ransom demand.

Young Sinatra was quoted by the patrolman who found him as saying he thought there were but three in the gang. The elder Sinatra said he thought there might be as many as nine.

George C. Jones of the Bel-Air patrol, a private service that watches exclusive homes in the area, said young Sinatra told him he walked two miles after being dropped off—hiding every time a car came by for fear his captors might be after him again. When he saw the patrol car, he hailed it.

"I recognized him. . . . His mother is one of our customers . . . . He told me a bit about his experience.

" 'They were more scared than I was,' he said. 'I think they were a bunch of amateurs. One of them chickened out before they made the pickup. He gave up the whole deal'."

Jones said the boy wore a topcoat, T - shirt, slacks and mocassins without socks, in additon to a Halloween - like blindfold around his neck.

He looked tired, Jones said, and remarked: "It's been a rough 2½ days."

for the first time since they were taken prisoner. There were no Canadians in the group.

The hostages, four of them Americans attached to the U.S. embassy, are crammed each night into one room 18 by 12 feet and sleep on the floor without mattresses.

They all appear in good health but seem understandably concerned and annoyed at their unexpected imprisonment. The leader of the rebellious miners gave no indication when the hostages might be released.

CAN'T LEAVE

The Canadians at Catavi—Brousseau and Falardeaux — were reported free to move about the town as they pleased but unable to leave the mining centre. Brousseau, 28, and Falardeaux, 34, both are from Kirkland Lake, Ont.

How the Canadians got involved in the dispute is far from clear.

Presumably, there are just two Canadians — Brousseau and Falardeaux — in Catavi. The two other Canadians are on their way out of the area. They are geologist James McNamee, 30, of Kingston, Ont., and Robert Morrison, 37, of Toronto.

Bombing Suspects Nabbed

ADEN (AP)—Police rounded up political and labor leaders today in the wake of a bombing that killed a woman and injured 39 persons, including British High Commissioner Sir Kennedy Trevaskis.

Police acted under a state of emergency declared by the supreme council of the Federation of South Arabia shortly after the bomb burst Tuesday at Aden airport.

Among those reported under arrest was the leader of the People's Socialist Party. The party favors the claims of revolutionary Yemen to Aden, the former British Crown colony now joined in the federation of sheikdoms, emirates and sultanates.

In the roundup, police were reported to have expelled a number of Yemenis. There are about 100,000 Yeminis in Aden. Most of those arrested were understood to be citizens of Aden or the other states in the British - protected federation and cannot be expelled.

The frontier with Yemen remained closed and all plane flights to and from Yemen were suspended.

'Milk Run' to End

OTTAWA (CP) — The Air Transport Board today authorized TransAir Limited to suspend its Prairie milk run serving Regina, Swift Current, Medicine Hat and Calgary, effective Jan. 11.

China Howls Again

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China charged today that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's co-existence policy is a scheme to promote Russian collaboration with the United States for domination of the world.

. . . CANDIDATES

He criticized past councils and said Mayor Wilson had provided that catalyst "to bring progress but I think he needs a little more help from council than he now has."

Ald. Lily Wilson, retired, 80 Howe Street, said the area now has the finest juvenile detention home in B.C. and also the pilot program for rehabilitation of the chronically ill in the Gorge Road Hospital.

She said conditions in the present Family and Juvenile Court, in the basement of the Cook Street health and welfare building, are very poor and she would concentrate on work towards obtaining better quarters for the court.

Candidates for the two school trustee seats, in their order on the ballot, are:

Ralph Fryer, photographer, 212 Robertson, who served one term on the board but was defeated in his re-election bid last year, says Victoria must aim at providing "the best and finest educational standards in the world."

John Porteous, hospital accountant, 1311 Franklyn, seeks re-election to his second term on the board after having served as chairman of its education committee and member of the finance and public relations committees, and also as a member of the University of Victoria advisory board. He stands on his record.

Leslie Spencer, hospital medical photographer, 1296 Richardson, says as a father of three children he is aware of the cost of education to ratepayers, "and I'm interested in the problems faced by both teachers and the board."

Edward Wood, cartage business proprietor, 1702 Belmont, is a past president of two PTA organizations and has been active in helping children in sports and church. He says school facilities should be improved to give the best education possible to children here.

Labor Fights Jobless Pay Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Some hundreds of thousands of workers would be barred from regular unemployment insurance coverage if the seasonal benefit plan proposed by the Gill inquiry committee is implemented, the Canadian Labor Congress told the government Monday.

This view was contained in a 15-page brief submitted by the CLC to Labor Minister MacEachen on the Gill report on overhauling the unemployment insurance program.

In its submission, the CLC registered outright opposition to the Gill proposal to scrap the present seasonal benefit plan and substitute new regulations that would disqualify from regular benefits all workers with a record of repetitive seasonal unemployment.

Under the Gill plan, these seasonal workers would be covered under a new fund, to be financed by the government at an estimated annual cost of $150,000,000. This extended benefit fund would also cover workers who have exhausted regular insurance benefits.

The CLC argued that the inevitable result of the proposed seasonal regulations would be to disqualify many thousands of workers in a wide range of industries who enjoy coverage under the present plan and have always done so.

Motel Chief Says Top PRO Needed

A top-notch public relations man should be hired to sell tourism to Vancouver Islanders according to A. H. Titerle.

Mr. Titerle, president of B.C. Motels and Resorts Association (Victoria local), said the Victoria Visitors' Bureau should cut back on some functions for a year or 18 months.

"Then they would be able to pay the salary necessary for such a man," he said.

"A really good PRO, given this time to make an all-out effort to sell tourism to the Island, could make up the money he's paid to do it."

Enough money would be provided by Island groups to make it worthwhile, he said.

"It's simply a big selling job. But it's going to cost money—even if he's paid $15,000."

Mr. Titerle suggested the $5,000 external promotion budget be used for the brief period, along with cuts in brochure production to make money available.

Galvao Leaves U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Henrique Galvao left the United States Tuesday night and thus escaped the threat of extradition to Portugal for the 1961 commandeering of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria.

SAANICH PLEDGE

Beaches Remain Open to Public

Central Saanich council wants to keep its beaches open to the public and free of government restrictions.

It went on record Tuesday as being opposed to granting foreshore leases to individuals.

Municipal clerk Fred Durand was instructed to inform David Borthwick, B.C. superintendent of lands.

"We don't want our beaches and foreshores tied up for miles like they are south of Los Angeles," said Coun. Charles Mollard.

The subject was raised when a letter was read from the B.C. lands department asking why council had refused an application from James S. Byrn to lease certain unsurveyed foreshore at Thompson Cove, Saanich Inlet.

The letter stated there would be "no interference with passage of general public through the leasehold."

"If that's the case why apply for a lease?" asked Coun. Ray Lamont. "It's the thin edge of the wedge."

Councillors pointed out an individual with a foreshore lease could stop a person from stepping over a ramp or stop boatmen from using floats."

"If we grant a foreshore lease to one person, then we have to grant it to everyone else who applies," said Coun. Mollard.

Dental Aides Training Urged On Island

NANAIMO—A Nanaimo dentist has advocated that a two-year dental hygienist course be included in any regional college established on Vancouver Island.

Dr. James Eakins told the Vancouver Island branch, B.C. School Trustees' Association here, there are only 12 practising hygienists in the province.

He said hygienists can perform some of the more simple dentistry tasks.

This would enable the dentist to concentrate on more specialized work, he said.

Dr. Eakins said greater use of hygienists in dentistry would help alleviate the shortage of dentists in B.C.

Murder Trial Appeal Granted

OTTAWA (CP) — The attorney-general of British Columbia was granted leave Monday to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against a B.C. appeal court decision ordering a new murder trial for 20-year-old David Mitchell.

Mitchell, an Indian, was convicted of the capital murder of his brother, George Harvey Mitchell, Feb. 16, 1963, at the Shell Beach Indian Reservation near Ladysmith. George Harvey Mitchell was shot to death at the Mitchell home on the reservation.

The B.C. Appeal Court set aside the capital murder conviction and ordered a new trial. The B.C. attorney-general will appeal to the Supreme Court against this judgment during the court's 1964 winter term.

Duncan Statistics

DUNCAN — Social assistance disbursed from the Duncan city office during the month of November amounted to $4,665, Ald. Jim Patterson told city council Monday.

Building permits issued from the city hall in November represented a total value of $15,250, a considerable decrease in comparison with the same period last year when it amounted to $84,636.

Money for Colleges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate Tuesday sent to President Johnson a $1,200,000,000 higher education bill authorizing construction funds for the four-year and junior colleges in the United States.

Nanaimo College Studied

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo school board committee is studying the feasibility of setting up a community college in this area.

Joe Shook, chairman of School District No. 68, told a meeting of B.C. School Trustees' Association, V.I. branch, that facts are being gathered on the community college idea.

When the survey is completed, he said, it would be submitted to the school board for consideration.

In the past, authorities have agreed that central Vancouver Island is the best location for a community college.

MEDICARE URGED

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Mayor Loran Jordan has urged the city council to petition the provincial government for a medicare plan. He made his comments at a council meeting during which members discussed a proposed increase in doctors' fees.

SQDN. LDR. THOMAS

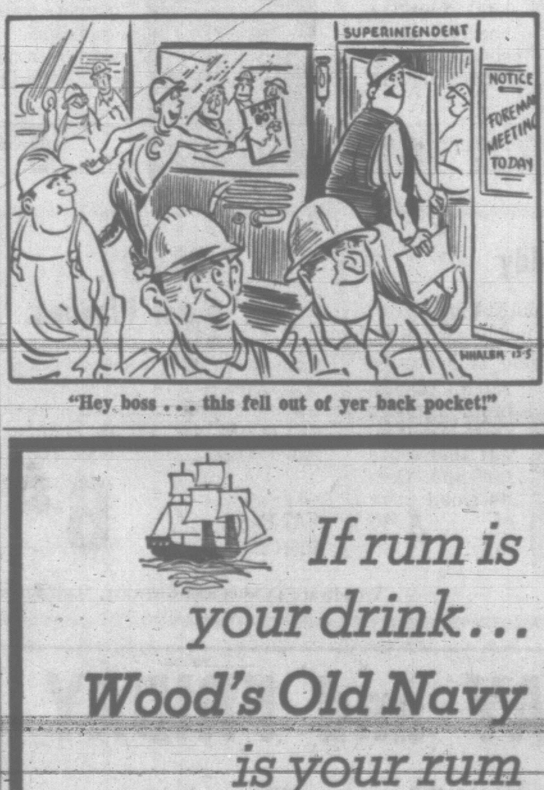
Chaplain Promoted

RCAF STATION COMOX — Airforce headquarters announced recently the promotion of Flight Lieutenant "Father" H. M. Thomas to the rank of Squadron Leader.

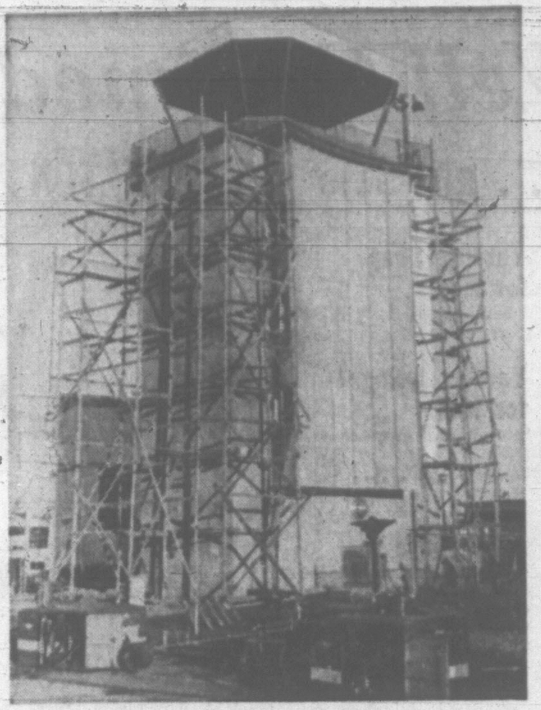
Father Thomas has served as The Roman Catholic Padre at RCAF Station Comox, for the past two years. He was posted to the west coast following his last tour of duty in Torbay, Newfoundland, on the eastern seaboard in early 1962.

Since his enrollment in the RCAF in Edmonton, Alberta, in 1958, he has held masses for Canadian and American service personnel at many units throughout Canada, including also special Christmas services for men at points along the Distance Early Warning radar line in the north.

HARD HATS



"Hey boss . . . this fell out of yer back pocket!"



FIFTY-FOOT CONTROL TOWER under construction at Patricia Bay airport, adjacent to the old terminal, will replace the old wartime structure now in use on the northern section of the airfield along Mills Road. Operational date for the tower, which will house modern electronic equipment, is indefinite. Construction of the main terminal began in 1962 and is due to be completed this spring. Contractors are Sorensen Construction Co. Ltd., of Vancouver.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Attacked Policeman, Cowichan Man Jailed

DUNCAN—Donald Larry Olson, of Lake Cowichan, was sentenced to 30 days in jail after he pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to assaulting a police officer and being intoxicated in a public place.

Richard J. Farrell, of Lake Cowichan, pleaded guilty to obstructing the same police officer and was fined $150. The offences took place at the W. K. Cafe in Duncan.

Also charged with obstructing, Wayne Thomas Allan, of Duncan, pleaded not guilty and was released on a $150 bond in his own recognizance. He will appear in court early next week.

* * *

SAANICHTON—Central Saanich council Tuesday voted itself higher pay.

It increased the renumeration for reeve from $300 to $700. Councillors will get $300 instead of $150 a year.

* * *

DUNCAN — Guest speaker at tonight's meeting of the Duncan Kiwanis Club will be Kiwanian Sam Keeble, who will speak on the Kiwanis International viewpoint and aims on vocational guidance.

Club president Bob Corney said that $2,800 has been realized so far this year in the TB Christmas seals' campaign. Kiwanians will make a $500 grant to the Ambulance Society, and $50 will be donated to the Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund.

* * *

DUNCAN — Funeral services were held at Duncan United Church today for Mrs. Mary Ann Hutchison, a well-known United Church worker, who died at her Third Street residence Sunday.

Born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1882, Mrs. Hutchison resided here for the past 34 years. She was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society.

She is survived by a son, Alexander Walker, of Westholme; four daughters, Miss Williamina Hutchison, Mrs. Winnifred Hawkes, Mrs. Rose Jackson and Mrs. Elsie Carter, all of Duncan; 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Civic Properties and Recreation Commission has approved the construction of a $20,000 Kinsmen's swimming pool in Bowen Park.

Work will start immediately.

The pool will likely be completed by May, 1964.

It will be 25-metre international standard, with reinforced concrete walls, together with preliminary conduit and piping for future lighting, filtering and heating of pool.

It will have change rooms and sanitary facilities.

SOOKE—A trumpeter swan, apparently shot by hunters has been found in East Sooke, opposite the mouth of the Sooke River and Billings Spit.

Police said the bird had been dead for about 10 days.

Trumpeters are protected by law. Five other swans of the same species were killed by hunters in the Upper Campbell Lake area last week.

Whaling Depends On Union

VANCOUVER (CP)—Japanese and Canadian interests controlling British Columbia's whaling fleet have agreed to continue operations next year provided agreement can be reached with the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.).

K. E. Fraser, president of Western Canada Whaling Company, returned from Tokyo after conferring with officials of Taiyo Fishing Company, joint partner with British Columbia Packers Limited in the whaling venture.

Despite the marginal operation of whaling off Vancouver Island, it was decided to continue next year provided there are no increased costs, Mr. Fraser said.

Negotiations with the union are pending, he said.

Apartment Zone Asked

DUNCAN — A request to have land at Cairnsmore and Cavell Street rezoned for apartment house use has been submitted to Duncan city by the Cowichan Finance Corporation.

The site is near the spot already rezoned for apartment use by council at its last meeting. Deletion of a similar rezoning in the Centennial Heights area was made at the time and still stands.

ARCHITECT, BANKER FACE FRAUD CHARGE

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Caspari of Toronto, one of Canada's best-known architects, and Walter Stauss, a private banker of London, England, were arrested today on conspiracy and fraud charges involving $40,000.

Police said the charges followed an investigation into an apartment building project in Calgary. No details were made public immediately.

Caspari, 53, and Strauss, 57, are charged with conspiring to obtain $40,000 or more by fraud and with obtaining it by fraud.

The two men appeared before Magistrate Thomas Elmore and were remanded until Dec. 12 on $10,000 bail.

Lord Mancroft Declines To Resume Job

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Mancroft, a Jewish peer forced to resign his post with a big British insurance company because of Arab pressure, today rejected an offer by the firm to reinstate him.

Lord Mancroft, 49, a former Conservative government minister, told the Norwich Union Insurance Company he did not intend to resume the directorship of the firm he gave up after pressure from the Arab Boycott of Israel Movement.

His resignation caused a storm of protest in Britain and a sharp statement from the government to Arab nations disapproving pressure from any source on British firms.

In a letter to Sir Robert Bignold, the Union's president, Mancroft said:

"Thank you for asking me to rejoin the London board of the Norwich Union.

"I am sure that the implications of your invitation will be understood both at home and abroad.

"I feel, however, that after all that has happened my reassociation with the Norwich Union could not lead to a proper working relationship.

"I must therefore with regret decline your offer."

OFFICIALS MEET

The company offer was made Tuesday following a meeting of the firm's officials with Sir Barnett Janner, head of Britain's Jewish board of deputies which groups Jewish organizations.

The company also "absolutely refuted" any suggestion the Union intended to encourage the Arab boycott of Israel.

In Cairo, the Arab League's economic committee warned Arab states would have to revise economic relations with Britain if the British government interfered in Arab boycott of Israel affairs.

The Cairo reaction followed a British government statement strongly disapproving pressure from any source on British firms to discriminate between British subjects for any reason.

Arab ambassadors here countered with a joint statement taking exception to a foreign office statement disapproving Arab pressure.

Gets 2 Years For Shooting

NELSON (CP) — Richard Lyle Mathews, 21, of Victoria, was sentenced to two years less a day in Oakalla Tuesday for attempting to wound with a deadly weapon.

The sentence by Magistrate R. S. Nelson included psychiatric treatment and medical examination.

Mathews left here Tuesday to serve his sentence in the young offenders' unit.

He was charged after firing a pistol and narrowly missing manager Gilbert Manning in the Airline Service Ltd. bus depot here.

The magistrate commended Manning for his "good judgment" in continuing to talk with the gun-waving Mathews in his office in an attempt to calm him down and obtain the pistol.

"Not until he was satisfied he could not obtain the gun did he turn the matter over to city police," said the magistrate.

City police also were commended for handling Mathews' arrest in a manner designed to prevent further shooting.

Mathews had been dismissed the day before the shooting and threatened to "get Manning," it was testified during his recent trial.

Cheque for Widow

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — A cheque for $4,000 was sent Tuesday to the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald. It represents a two-week drive by Rev. Douglas Bartlett, pastor of the Grant Avenue Presbyterian Church, to aid the widow of President Kennedy's accused assassin. Bartlett ended the campaign so that the money would reach the Oswald family before Christmas.

DIEF URGES GOV'T BUY SIR JOHN A.'s HOME

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was urged to buy the Kingston, Ont., home of Sir John A. Macdonald as a memorial to Canada's first prime minister.

The suggestion was made in the Commons by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. Acting Prime Minister Chevrier promised to have the matter discussed with Works Minister Deschatelets and Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the Macdonald home in Kingston is up for sale and proposed the government buy it as a national memorial where Canadians could honor one of the great architects of Confederation in 1867.

'UHURU' THURSDAY

Doubt and Hope Hang Over Kenya

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—A veil of uncertainty, woven of doubt, hope and fear hangs over the future of Kenya, where British rule ends Thursday after 68 years.

Much rides on the fate of Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta's government, which draws its main strength from the powerful Kikuyu tribe, and on its smooth assumption of power. In the view of one British commentator, its success could boost prospects of racial reconciliation in South Africa, and perhaps even as far afield as the United States.

Conversely, its failure — especially if marked by violence —would have a disastrous effect far beyond Kenya's borders.

Writes Barbara Ward-Jackson in The Observer: "No small state . . . has ever had the same certainty of affecting profoundly the politics of other lands."

To some British minds, sympathetic towards the trials of the British settlers and fearing a resurgence of Mau Mau terrorism, the prospect looks unhappy. Behind the veil, they fear, may lie the bloody pit of another Congo.

To others, prepared to forget the past and rooting for Kenyatta's success, Kenya's economic burden seems too heavy for a baby state to bear and they too are apprehensive.

Basically everyone is reacting the same way—keeping fingers firmly crossed.

The problems of independence are daunting. Despite his sweeping electoral mandate and conciliatory tone towards minorities, Kenyatta may find it tough to reconcile his country's bitter tribal conflicts and reassure Asians who face the loss of their jobs to Africans.

The border dispute with Somalia, which recently concluded an arms deal with Russia, could flare up any day. Somali tribesmen in Kenya have a geographical case for secession.

There is the problem of getting the agricultural economy moving. Under Kenyatta's 1,000,000-acre scheme, about one-third of land formerly owned by white farmers has been purchased for Africans, many of them unskilled in modern methods.

'CLOCK PUT BACK'

Author Elspeth Huxley, writing in The Sunday Telegraph, describes how established farms are reverting to peasant-worked small holdings and comments. "it was like watching the clock put back."

Some 3,000 white farmers remain to help underpin the economy, but even the Kenyatta government fears their future may be endangered by the driving African hunger for land that is the dominant force in Kenya politics.

Kenyatta has urged that the cry of "uhuru"—freedom — be replaced by "harambe"—pulling together for the common good. But Africans may ignore his restraining influence in an urge to equate independence with "instant high living."

There also is the problem of developing Kenya's light industries. This largely hangs on the creation of an East African common market, and the outcome of the East African Federation envisaged by Tanganyika's Julius Nyerere remains hazy.

An economic solution for Kenya is suggested in The Observer article by Barbara Ward-Jackson — financial aid from Britain and the Atlantic Alliance. The sums needed would be small—perhaps £14,000,000 ($42,000,000).

Women Driven Back By S.A. Police Dogs

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — Snarling police dogs on 100-foot-long leashes today drove back a crowd of 500 Indian women and children who broke through police lines in a futile attempt to see Premier Hendrik Verwoerd. The crowd gathered in front of Pretoria's union building to protest the formation of the government-backed Indian National Council, which the women claimed does not represent the Indian community.

Women

Realizes $1,200

The Women's Parish Guild of Christ Church Cathedral raised $1,200 at annual Christmas tea and bazaar, held in Memorial Hall, Saturday afternoon. Red candles and holly decorated tea tables for affair, convened by president, Mrs. D. Mitchell. Highlight of afternoon was the singing of carols by the Boys' Choir, led by Richard Proudman. There were well-patronized stalls of Christmas baking, aprons, novelties, jewelry, baby woolens, cookies, candy, stationery, calendars and home cooking.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Local Shop Proprietor Makes Own Merchandise

By PENNY SAVER

How many of us, when combing local beaches or climbing mountains, stop to turn over an odd rock or pick up a dried-out piece of petrified wood?

We must admit that there are not too many of us who do.

But the proprietor of shop Penny was in today is one of the few exceptions, and her interest has brought her a booming business in the field of "rock-hounding".

Semi-precious stones, picked up on beaches and rocky ground in the Fraser Valley, the interior of British Columbia or on Salt Spring Island, have been made into jewelry, key chains and pen stands by the proprietor.

Rhodonite, a pink gemstone from Salt Spring Island; jade from the Fraser Valley; agates and other stones have been fashioned into bracelets, priced at $2.25 and $2.95; pendants and necklaces, $1.95 to $4.95; key chains, $1, and earrings, $1.50.

Specializing in local arts and crafts, shop has a stock of burnt cedar carvings, done by a local artist. Canada geese, cats, goats, buffalo and squirrels are priced upwards to $6.95. This artist also frames some of his carvings. Then they sell for $21.

Pottery, made by a Victorian, is also available in the shop. Salt and pepper shakers are priced at 89 cents; cream and sugar, $1.75; jam jars, $2.25 and $1.75, and planters, from $2.50 to $5.00.

During the winter season, mugs become a favorite drinking container and shop has these priced at 89 cents. Mugs are deep and round and come in various shades, including blue and brown.

Also in the pottery line are pansy rings. Priced at $1, rings are like an oversize doughnut with a hole in the centre.

Rings are ideal for short-stemmed flowers such as pansies or snow flowers.

If you are interested in local art, why not call Penny at 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Sermons In Semantics!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that bothers me immensely. We have a new minister whose language is atrocious. I can hardly sit through his sermons any more. He says, "He done," "had went" and "they is." Abby, don't you think that after four years in Bible college he should be able to do better than that? My ten-year-old son notices these mistakes and mentions them to me. Is there a remedy?

SMALL TOWN.

DEAR SMALL: I don't know how "small" your town is, but if the people were bigger they could raise enough money to import a more literate minister.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is interfering with my marriage. We have lived with her ever since we've been married and she is the type who likes to run everything herself because nobody can do anything as well. I have never made a meal, and I am not allowed to clean or iron. If I do anything, she does it over. My husband thinks I should consider myself lucky to have free room and board. When his mother criticizes me, my husband never says a word to defend me. Should I leave him now before we have any children?

UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY: If it's a question only of whether you should leave him before you have children, or after you have had them, I'd say leave him now. Better yet, why don't you both leave his mother? The room and board is far from free — it's costing you your happiness.

DEAR ABBY: I have recently moved to a city where I have no friends and know very few people. I would like to meet a handicapped girl between 20 and 30. All the handicapped girls I have ever met have such a sweet quality about them. Perhaps it is because they have suffered and consequently have more feeling and depth. This may seem strange to you, but I have my reasons. Where can I meet such a girl?

"S."

DEAR "S": Ask some of the local groups associated with the handicapped if you may be included in their next social get-together when their local club meets. I am sure they will welcome you.

Confidential to Kentuckian: It doesn't take any more energy to plan than it does to wish.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booket, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

BE SMART—

A dreamy mile-long chiffon scarf for the prettiest Christmas angel . . . and it might well be the most practical, as well as glamorous, gift she will receive on Christmas morning. Scads of colors . . . and, my, but it wafts like a dreamy sigh.

Tapioca Exotica

Chop fresh dates and stir into hot cooked tapioca pudding with some grated lemon rind and chopped crystallized ginger. Serve chilled dolloped with whipped cream and topped with a halved fresh date.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Short Skirts Reveal Legs—Good Or Bad

Lowman

For a time the fashion news seemed to indicate that skirts would be longer this fall. However, for general use, this has not happened. There are the feminine, glamorous, longer cocktail hour and "at home" beauties. Generally speaking, we will go about with short skirts, which means that a woman's legs are still "on stage".

With no thought to current style, the most flattering skirt length to the leg and to the silhouette, is usually mid-calf; but, who wants to forget fashion? Our eyes, as well as the eyes of others, become accustomed to what they see. No woman wants to stroll down the avenue with ankle-length skirts when all other women have short skirts. This is being too much of a rugged individualist. She wouldn't look like an individualist, but like a "character", and rugged too!

The most usual defects in leg contour are the bulging calf or the leg which is too straight up and down. Then, of course, there is the ankle, which is difficult to do much about, although some improvement can be made with exercise.

Then there is lack of muscle tone, or flabbiness, which will surely become a problem sooner or later unless you exercise. The following two exercises are beneficial to general leg contour and to flabbiness.

1. Stand erect. Place your hands on your hips. Step forward with your left foot. Lift your heels from the floor as you bend your knees halfway down. Straighten your knees and step forward with your right foot. Again bend your knees halfway down. Continue, keeping your heels off of the floor after the first bending.

2. Assume the same starting position. Bend the knees halfway down and bounce up and down, straightening the knees and bouncing back to the half-knee bend position. If you have trouble keeping your balance, place one hand on the wall.

Exercise is one method of improving your legs. Send for my free leaflet "Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs", which contains helpful ideas and exercises. To obtain your copy send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 13 to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

Moira McColl in White Brocade

A sheath style gown of heavy white French brocade was worn by Miss Moira McColl when she exchanged marriage vows with Sub-Lt. Roger Michael Leigh Bernard, RCN, last Saturday.

The gown was styled with a train extending from the waistline which was enhanced with a large self-fabric bow. Sleeves ended in lily points.

A bouffant tulle veil misted to shoulder-length from a white pill box headpiece outlined in seed pearls. Red roses and white carnations were in the cascade bouquet.

Baskets of red and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the candlelight ceremony at which Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiated.

BROTHER AT ORGAN

Soloist, John Bray, sang "Where 'ere You Walk" during signing of the register. He was accompanied at the organ by William P. McColl, brother of the bride. Gordon Hamilton piped the couple from the church and later into the receiving line at the reception.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. McColl, 1760 Veda Place and the groom is the son of Mrs. G. Dorman Bernard, 3205 Upper Terrace Road, and C. Bernard, Prince George.

Identical floor-length gowns of red velvet with hats and shoes en tone were choice of matron of honor, Mrs. W. P. McColl and bridesmatron, Mrs J. P. McColl, Jr., sisters-in-law of the bride, and junior bridesmaids, the Misses Susan and Merrilee McColl, cousins of the bride. All carried bouquets of white carnations and holly.

CARRIES RINGS

Ring bearer, Master Robert McColl, nephew of the bride, wore a white satin long sleeved shirt, white short pants and white vest. He carried the rings on a white French brocade cushion.

Best man was Lieut. George Jackson and ushering guests to their pews were Sub-Lt. William Paull, Lieut. Donald Coulter, and James P. McColl. McColl.

An honor guard was formed by Lieut. N. G. Anderson, Lieut. S. Fairbairn, Lieut. I. T. Bouch, Lieut. T. Hayward, Lieut. J. Hedley, Lieut. G. Beveridge, Lieut. K. Arnold, Sub-Lt. F. Dennis and Lieut. F. Hawrysh.

A reception followed in the wardroom in HMCS Naden where William McColl, brother of the bride, read a toast sent from her uncle, John Muir, in Scotland.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Mexico City and Acapulco, the bride wore a three-piece green tweed suit, black and gold brocade hat, black accessories and gold corsage.

On their return, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Miss Janet Muir, aunt of the bride, from Scotland; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Swinton and Mr. and Mrs. D. Grant, all of Vancouver.

Presentations were made by Mrs. A. B. Thompson, board chairman.

'THE DAY I REMEMBER'

Estonia's Last 'Free' Christmas

By PAT DUFOUR

After leaving her native country in 1944, Mrs. Mesher was to live under five different occupations before coming to Canada and enjoying her "first free Christmas in 11 years."

Christmas Day, 1938, is the one that remains the most vivid for Mrs. A. W. Mesher. "It was my last one in a free country until I came to Canada in 1949."

In 1938, Lee Mesher—"no one can pronounce my real name, Ljubov"—was 14 and lived with her parents in the small Estonian town of Viljandi. Each moment of that normal childhood Christmas is etched indelibly on her mind.

"We went to the late Christmas Eve service—about 93 per cent of Estonia is Lutheran—then came home to finish decorating the tree.

"I can still remember that tree. We used white cotton wool for snowflakes and covered the branches with chains of colored paper. There were no artificial lights. We lit our tree with candles."

Perhaps the young teen-ager had a premonition that this would be the last carefree Christmas for many a year.

"Although I was too old to believe in Santa Claus, I asked my father to dress up in his red and white suit so that he could arrive at our door with gifts, just as he always had."

Lee Mesher even remembers the gifts that she gave to her parents.

"I made Dad some hankies and for Mum I had sewn some aprons and knitted a scarf, gloves and matching hat. I still have that hat!"

Mrs. Mesher stresses that, unlike Canadian gift-giving, in Estonia gifts were made by the giver so "that you gave a little bit of yourself with the present."

Receiving gifts, too, was not simply a matter of waiting your turn. "Each person had to sing a song, recite a poem or tell a lovely story before handed a present. That year, I sang a carol."

Christmas dinner, too, was traditional but unlike ours. "Instead of turkey, which is unknown in my country, we had blood sausages which we all love, jellied pork, Christmas puddings and cookies. Usually we ate black bread. For this special occasion my mother had made lots of crisp white bread and rolls."

Teen-ager as she was, Lee Mesher was allowed "just a sip" of the home-made cherry wine that followed. It had been made from the cherry trees in their garden.

The next year, the Russians occupied Estonia, to be followed by the Germans in 1941.

But, in spite of all the trials that were to follow for Lee Mesher, the memory of that Christmas Day was to shine with the brightness of the Nativity Star.

Expert Weavers Show Work at Guild Meeting

Colorful swatches of upholstery and drapery material she had recently woven to furnish a room in the new wing of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, were shown by Mrs. A. G. Kinnis at meeting of Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild. She also showed swatches of materials for a room in the new courthouse.

Mrs. Kinnis has also woven altar hangings for a new church in Williamsburg, Va.

Yardages she had woven, suitable for clothing, using a variety of threads were displayed by Mrs. H. L. Gonhason, who described qualities of the yarns, how the articles were woven and the finishing of the material.

Useful hints were also given on how to use small groups of left-over thread for experimentation with color and texture.

Mrs. G. Singleton presided and Mrs. H. Steggles reported that two weaving books were to be purchased for the guild library in memory of Mrs. F. Yeomans and Mrs. G. B. Sutherland.

Christmas party, Liberal Women's Forum, Friday at 2 p.m. in home of Mrs. J.T. Jones, 311 West Gorge Rd. Exchange of gifts.

Mrs. Humphrys re-reads stories that tell of her son's success, to the point that she's almost "letter perfect."

Mum's the Word! . . .

Can you imagine what it would be like to be leafing through a magazine and suddenly find yourself a mother of a genius? This is what happened to Mrs. Francis Humphrys when she read a couple of industrial magazines sent her through the mail.

In them she found articles lauding her son, Dr. James M. Humphrys for his breakthrough in detonating caps.

Most people know that Nobel discovered dynamite, and some that he perfected the first detonating caps. But few realize that there's been little improvement in the cap since his day.

In the early 1900s, an electrical blasting cap was perfected. Mrs. Humphrys' son has now invented a non-electrical blasting cap that is being hailed as a "first" in the world.

And, son-like, he omitted to mention this to his mother, although she receives weekly letters from her son and daughter-in-law!

Not that she's unduly surprised at the acclaim which her son is receiving.

"He was always developing things, even when in school."

Dr. Humphrys received the Governor-General's medal while attending school in Prince Albert and later enrolled in the University of Saskatchewan.

He is a frequent visitor to Victoria, and was here a year before Ripple Rock was exploded in order to help on the preparatory work.

His sister Gwenyth is a bacteriologist, so it would appear that a love of science is a family trait.

The late Mr. Humphrys was a chartered accountant, but Mrs. Humphrys admits that she was "addicted to mathematics and physics."

It isn't every woman that enjoys reading industrial magazines. But these editions, of July, 1963, vintage are the best reading that Mrs. Humphrys has enjoyed for a long time.

Needless to say, her latest letter to her self-effacing son includes the suggestion that instead of the usual "not much interesting happening around here," he interject some of the events that have helped make him a pioneer in science.

Eastern Wedding Of Interest Here

A wedding of interest to Victorians took place recently in St Xalvier's Church at Renfrew, Ont., when Rt. Rev. Monsignor Clarke heard marriage vows exchanged between Miss Kealy Wilkinson, daughter of Wing-Cmdr. and Mrs. Philip Wilkinson of Ottawa (formerly of Victoria) and Ian Douglas Brooker, son of Major and Mrs. F. H. Brooker of "Coppers," Haywards Heath, Sussex, Eng. Music was played by T. A. Wark, cousin of the bride, and Miss Mamie Kelly.

Wearing a floor-length sheath gown of white needlepoint crepe, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father.

Her gown was fashioned with lace inserts and matching coat slightly en train. She wore a shoulder-length tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of pink and white rosebuds.

Bridesmaids, Miss Denyse Roussell of Renfrew, cousin of the bride, and Miss Charlotte Cook, Pointe Claire, Que., wore full-length gowns of deep jewel-toned blue and green velvet with small matching velvet bow headpieces. Tiny pale-shade chrysanthemums were in their bouquets.

Brother of the bride, Officer Cadet David Wilkinson was best man and ushers were the bride's uncles, Bernard Rousselle of Renfrew, and Jerome Rousselle, Pointe Claire.

Following a reception at the Valley Hotel, where G. B. Burwell proposed the toast, the newlyweds left for New York where they embarked on the Queen Elizabeth for an extended honeymoon in the British Isles and on the Continent.

Young Travellers Have First Experience With Strange Ways of Confidence Man—or Was He?

By JUDY RICHARDSON

Former Times staffer Judy Richardson and her friend Linda Scales, who travelled across Canada by car, prior to leaving for overseas from Montreal, are now in Europe. You will soon be hearing more of their adventures from abroad.

Richardson

An Englishman spoiled our first night in France. But, what a fantastic story he gave us to tell!

Setting was a youth hostel at Beauvais. The warden—or house father as he is called in France—was a young man recently returned from military service and the hostel bustled with the comings and goings of his many friends—mostly Algerian and all French-speaking.

Linda and I took refuge in our business affairs. We were in the midst of totalling the day's expenditures when the bustle increased. But this time we were involved. For the cause of the commotion was a burly, thirtyish Englishman, who demanded in a loud voice if anyone could speak English. His voice got louder when he discovered we did.

"Thank goodness, someone in this place speaks English. Are you American? Canadian? Well, fancy finding two Canadians in this hole. You must let me buy you a drink."

We were hustled out to the corner bar and we sipped cognac while the blustering Englishman told us of his problem.

He was a professor at the Slade School of Art, which is attached to the University of London. He had a two month sabbatical in order to arrange for an exhibition of the work of English art students that was to tour France in January. He was trying to contact another Englishman named Benson who taught at the lycee in Beauvais and could translate all communications concerning the exhibition.

So far, all directions he had received were wrong.

We told him the lycee was just across the street from the hostel. This unleashed another roar of gratitude.

To further express his thanks he added: 'By the way, I'm going to Amiens tomorrow to make more arrangements. Would you like a ride? And have lunch with me at my hotel, it has a good British name—Hotel Bristol."

We had intended to go south. Amiens was north. Still, an offer is an offer, so we accepted. There were introductions all round and we discovered his name was John Marshall.

"Look!" he insisted, "now I know where the lycee is. I'll just pop in and find Benson, then meet you outside in 15 minutes. We'll all go have a drink to the finding of two Canadians in this .... !!!! hole!"

Fifteen minutes later he reappeared with the news that Benson had dorm duty for another hour. In the meantime, would we like to go with him to the railway station while he tried to exchange some money. He'd taken his car into a garage and they wouldn't accept English currency.

The exchange wicket in the station was closed.

"I'll nip over to the garage and see if they have had a change of heart," he said. "Meet you back at the hostel with Benson."

We'd been in the hostel about 10 minutes when in dashed our friend, wanting to know if we had any French money — the garage still wouldn't take his English currency.

"Well," we hemmed, "we only have 45 francs and we need it in the morning to pay for the hostel."

"What's the exchange? I'll give you English money for it," he insisted. "Here, I'll take it now and find out what the rate is. You look after my Mac and scarf."

Shrugging our shoulders and assuring ourselves that not all Englishmen were like this, we waited! And waited! And waited!

At 11 p.m. we went to bed.

Next morning we exchanged some money in town so we could pay for the hostel. We also inquired if anyone knew the Hotel Bristol.

No Hotel Bristol.

Still refusing to believe our suspicions, we explored our first Gothic cathedral before succumbing to the urge to ask at the lycee for Benson.

No Benson!

We shouldered our packs, John Marshall's Mac and scarf and headed for Rouen.

We had lots to ponder. Was John Marshall a university professor or confidence man? If the latter, why buy us a drink and leave a good Macintosh and scarf in return for what amounted to only nine dollars?

The Mac and scarf were soon in a package with a request to a friend attending University of London, to do some sleuthing for us. The reply put the cap on it.

Although the Slade School of Art exists, no John Marshall lectures in it.

"Maybe," wrote our friend, "you were used like a pawn shop. He needed your money more than he needed the coat and scarf."

Maybe!. But it still doesn't add up.

Perhaps you have an answer.

HYDRO HEADQUARTERS SPRINGS 3,000 LEAKS

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spokesman for the B.C. Power and Hydro Authority said Tuesday a $93,000 contract has been awarded for replacement of all windows in the Hydro's seven-year-old, 21-storey, head-office building in downtown Vancouver.

The contract, awarded to Canadian Pittsburgh Industries Limited of Vancouver, calls for replacement of 3,000 windows over the next two years.

The Authority spokesman said the double-paned windows currently in use are becoming misty. He said the vacuum seal separating the two panes had become faulty and moisture was penetrating.

The double-paned windows will be replaced with special heat-absorbing, glare-reducing single panes.

The original installers, Northwestern Supply Co., went bankrupt and Hydro could recover only $27,000 on their work.

Gas Price Probe Labelled Buck-Passing by Strachan

The provincial government does not need a royal commission to find out if gasoline prices are inequitable in B.C., requires to correct the price Strachan said Tuesday.

He said the government already has all the information it requires to correct th price spread.

Mr. Strachan said the royal commission set up in September is "an attempt to stall and pass the buck."

He said the government has enough information on gas prices from two sources: The Macdonald Royal Commission which made a series of comprehensive reports in the late 1930s, and a special survey conducted by the provincial trade department two years ago.

This is why the New Democratic Party does not consider it necessary to present a brief to the Morrow commission which starts public hearings here Jan. 13, Mr. Strachan said.

The Macdonald report recommended equalization of prices based upon a realistic relationship to cost of production, Mr. Strachan said.

But nothing had been done about it by this government.

The trade department survey must have been based on "a tremendous amount of information," Mr. Strachan said.

"From that information the government would know whether or not the situation existing today parallels that of the 1930s."

Soviet Troop Withdrawal Predicted From Hungary

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet army, which crushed the Hungarian revolution seven years ago, plans to leave Hungary in the next few months, diplomatic sources said today.

Only a few token units will be left behind under the Warsaw Pact agreement, the sources said.

Western diplomats interpreted the move as a sign of easing tensions in eastern Europe and of Premier Khrushchev's faith in the stability of Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar's regime.

The pullback — signaled by the gradual repatriation of the families of Soviet soldiers still in Hungary — is part of a pattern prevailing over eastern Europe.

There are no Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia, Romania or Bulgaria. Some forces remain in Poland, and East Germany is heavily garrisoned. But the soldiers stationed in Poland are said to confine themselves to maintaining communications links between Moscow and Berlin and are seldom seen around the country.

SMASHED UPRISING

When Hungary exploded in rebellion in 1956, Soviet soldiers and tanks smashed the uprising. Since then the Kremlin has kept a large garrison — unofficially estimated at two tank and two motorized divisions — within the nation.

Unofficial estimates put Soviet strength at 20 divisions, 10 tanks and 10 motorized. in East Germany and 2 divisions, 1 tank and 1 motorized, in Poland.

Qualified diplomatic sources said that agreement between Moscow and Budapest to withdraw troops is based largely on Kadar's successful efforts to restore his nation's stability since 1956.

Kadar's achievements are due in part to his success in building one of the more liberal east European regimes — with the apparent approval of Khrushchev.

One of the elements of new Hungarian stability is economic progress, partly through Soviet economic aid in the form of the "friendship" oil pipeline and the Soviet-sponsored east European electric power network. Many fighters in the 1956 uprising have been amnestied and Hungary has sought to regularize its relations with western countries.

BRITISH PROJECT

540 Costly Mirrors To Spot 'Hot' Stars

LONDON—Five hundred and four expensive Italian mirrors have been taken to Australia for observations to be made of fifty or more "hot" stars.

Using them, Professor R. Hanbury Brown, formerly of Manchester University's department of radio-astronomy, has built, and will start in the new year to use, a new system of translating light waves into electrical impulses for computers to measure the size and temperature of the brightest stars.

The stars are called hot because their surface temperature is about 8,000 degrees Centigrade (the sun is 5,700 degrees C.). They will all be within 100 light years.

All the equipment was made in Britain except the mirrors. Its installation at Narrabri, 370 miles north of Sydney, in New South Wales, at a total cost of $635,000, has taken two years. Two concave mirrors, made up of 252 hexagonal segments and measuring 22 feet across, have been mounted on bogies running on a circular track 618 feet across. Each unit is self-propelled and linked by overhead cables to a central control room.

DETECTOR

At the focal point of each mirror, held in place by a 36-foot pole, is a photo-electric detector, looking like a flash suppressor at the end of a tank's cannon.

The similarity with a tank is a little more than skin deep, because just as a moving gun can now fix on a target, so the two interfero-meters, as each whole device is called, can lock on to a star.

The mirrors feed the image of the selected star to the detector, which is sensitive to the oscillation of the light; the detector translates the oscillations into electrical impulses. These impulses are dealt with by an electronic correlator.

In 1955 at Jodrell Bank this elaborate installation was given a rudimentary tryout when Professor Hanbury Brown took the lamps out of a pair of searchlights and substituted interferometers and found that the angular size of sirius, the brightest star, was .0071—about twice as big as the sun.

It was this experiment that encouraged Professor Hanbury Brown—an important figure in the development of radar—to try to get money to carry on the work in the clearer air of Australia.

FLUORIDATION NEAR IN N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—City council has voted to fluoridate the city's water supply. The measure, approved 19 to 4 Tuesday, goes next to the board of estimate, the city's upper legislative body, which is expected to approve it. Mayor Robert F. Wagner favors fluoridation, whose backers claim it prevents tooth decay among children.

SAANICH YULE FUND

Police Lot Happy Helping Needy

When a policeman takes your name it usually means trouble. But it's not necessarily so in Saanich at Christmas time.

Saanich police officers are now obtaining the names of needy families in the municipality.

Purpose: to give them bundles of goodies that will make Christmas more pleasant.

SEVEN YEARS

The idea of helping the families started seven years ago in the minds of Chief W. A. Pearson and his deputy, John Hamilton.

That year 40 hampers were distributed. Last year there were 150 sent out. And this year it is expected even more will be distributed.

Policemen collect goods for the hampers and pack them themselves in their spare time. All the work is voluntary.

Actual delivery of the parcels is made by members of three car clubs.

ANONYMOUS

Donations come from wholesalers, retailers, farmers, schools, youth organizations and private citizens. Many of the cash donations are made anonymously.

Anyone who wants to help should contact Saanich police at EV 6-4321 and arrangements will be made to pick up merchandise.

Red Cross Chief Congratulated By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson, himself a Nobel Peace-Prize winner, has written a letter of congratulations to John A. MacAulay of Winnipeg, who received the 1963 prize on behalf of the League of Red Cross Societies.

"You have been the moving force of that fine organization which has brought help and comfort to all peoples of the world," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. MacAulay received the prize in Oslo Tuesday, the sixth anniversary of Mr. Pearson's receipt of the prize.

TWO STORE WINDOWS were taken out to admit this sparkling new car to Woodward's Mayfair store. Rotarians, offering auto as prize to help Goodwill Enterprises project, got behind car, pushed and eased it up ramp and into store. They then watched with dismay when one huge plate window broke as it was replaced. Polish job is administered by 44-year Rotarian Ches McLaughlin, 86, one of the sparkplugs behind club campaign. KEELER CASE

Actor on Stand In Libel Action

MONTREAL (CP)—Film producer Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., was in Montreal Tuesday in connection with a $250,000 action he filed last July against publisher John Vader and the Montreal weekly Midnight.

Mr. Fairbanks came to Montreal at the request of Midnight's lawyers for examination on discovery—a legal step in connection with preparation of the action.

The action concerns an article published by Midnight associating Mr. Fairbanks with Christine Keeler, London girl who figured in Britain's Profumo scandal.

Under examination by Sydney Cutler, lawyer for Midnight, Mr. Fairbanks said he knows Miss Keeler.

Mr. Cutler then asked: "Where did you meet her?"

LAWYER OBJECTS

A. J. Campbell, Mr. Fairbanks' lawyer, raised an objection at this point, arguing that the questions were irrevelant.

The judge did not agree and proceedings came to a halt when Mr. Campbell said he would appeal.

The Quebec Court of Appeals would consider the question but no date for such consideration was announced immediately.

The examination on discovery involves a preliminary gathering of the principals to an action for the purpose of ascertaining or reviewing the general facts of the case.

U.S. NEGRO BETTER OFF THAN CANADIAN INDIAN

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Indian "lives on a worse basis than the Birmingham (Ala.) Negro" and the federal welfare program in the north is doing him more harm than good, Rev. John R. Clarke told a meeting of the Canadian Progress Club here Tuesday.

The Anglican minister said citizens can't be expected to "come out from a corral, and what else can you call the reserves but corrals?"

Prof Talked Marriage Before Family Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — An attractive 20-year-old former student of Prof. Roland Haumont testified Tuesday she received a promise of marriage from him a few months before his wife and two children were killed in an explosion.

The blonde from a small town in New York, who Judge Claude Wagner asked not to be identified, was testifying at Prof. Haumont's preliminary hearing on a charge of capital murder.

She said he promised to marry her in five years, after his children grew up.

There was a complete "break" between them a month before the Oct. 20 propane gas explosion levelled his home, she said. But he had called her two weeks after the explosion and told her "it may be all over with you but not with me."

She said she was "terribly shaken" when she heard of the explosion and could not understand "how he could talk that way in vew of what had happened.

"I asked him if it was an accident that blew up his home and he said 'there's going to be a coroner's inquest and I'll be cleared'," she said.

The inquest found Prof. Haumont, 42, criminally responsible for the deaths of his wife, Sheilah, 44, and daughters Nicole, 17, and Leslie, 10.

Russ Women Grasp VoW Radiation Fears

WINNIPEG (CP) — Beatrice Brigden says she broached the subject of radiation hazards during a visit to the Soviet Union as one of six members of the Voice of Women.

But she met with little response until she explained that Winnipeg is a vulnerable spot and that women here fear for their children's health.

"There was a glint of understanding in every eye and real distress in their faces when I mentioned the danger of leukemia and malformed babies."

Miss Brigden, a national vice-president of the VoW, an organization founded in Canada to promote world peace, found that the Russians she talked to did not realize the duration of radiation danger after nuclear tests.

But she discovered they have many things in common with people elsewhere, particularly in that they are terrified of another war.

Miss Brigden was impressed with the extent of participation by Soviet women in community affairs. She was also intrigued by the facilities provided to make life easier for working wives.

"They send their laundry down to the co-op laundry in the morning. It's washed, ironed, folded and back by the time they come home from work."

On the way home they can pick up hot meals from the co-operative kitchen. And at night they can go to a common recreation room in the apartment block or to what they call "institutes," clubs where they can eat, dance and watch educational films.

Boop-Boop-a-Doop, Helen's Coming Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Remember when Helen Kane sang Boop-Boop-a-Doop back in 1928?

Well, the onetime voice of Betty Boop in the movie cartoons is hoping for a comeback.

Miss Kane, who has had four operations for cancer in the last seven years, says she's finishing a book about her career, wants to do some television, and has had some offers for a movie about her life.

She made 14 movies for Paramount. The last one was Heads Up, with Buddy Rogers in 1932.

Miss Kane has been married for 35 years to Dan Healy, who was her leading man in Good Boy, the show in which she sang I Want to be Loved by You (Boop-Boop-a-Doop).

Healy, with a long show business career, now is 75, and still going, appearing in club comedy acts.

"I'm not near that age," says Miss Kane.

Boston Common, set aside in 1634 as public property rankes as the United States' oldest public park.

'Disregard' Prompts Planner's Resignation

"Continued disregard" of planning advice by Saanich council has led to the resignation of a member of the advisory planning commission.

F. W. Nicolls, 3895 Tudor Road, sent in his resignation to Monday night's council meeting.

"If council is to continue to disregard the advice of experienced planners and make their own planning decisions then there is no need whatever for an advisory planning commission," he wrote in his letter of resignation.

He also wrote that the planning experience of most Saanich councillors is "absolutely nil."

Mr. Nicholls' resignation reduces the seven-man commission to five members. Former councillor Robert Ostler dropped out several weeks ago when his company transferred him to Powell River.

Pope Backs Patriarch Talk

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican official said today Pope Paul VI has indicated a willingness to meet Patriarch Athenagoras I, spiritual leader of world Orthodoxy, during the Roman Catholic leader's trip to the Holy Land Jan. 4-6.

The official said the spiritual ruler of the world's 550,000,000 Roman Catholics informed Athenagoras about the purpose of his Holy Land trip and in doing so indicated a willingness to meet the patriarch in Palestine if Athenagoras decides to go there.

The official said the Pope made no mention in his letter of Athenagoras' proposal for a conference of Christian leaders.

But the official said the letter was in effect a reply to Athenagoras and a diplomatic way of letting it be understood that the Pope will be in the Holy Land and that if Athenagoras is there the two could meet informally.

No Roman Catholic pontiff and Orthodox patriarch have met since the East-West schism of 1054.

Another implication of the letter was that the Pope would be willing to have informal meetings with any other Christian leaders who might happen to be in Palestine when he is there.

DILAPIDATED AND DEPRESSING, poorly lighted and badly ventilated, the city jail was described some time ago as being something that Dickens at his best could not have imagined. Prisoners in the communal cell use a toilet in full view of other inmates. This photo shows the chipped, unpainted bunks on which prisoners sleep. GROUP URGES 'Include Mental Ills in Medicare'

TORONTO (CP)—Ailments of the mind should be treated on the same basis as physical illness under projected Ontario legislation governing the provision of medical services insurance, the Ontario Mental Health Association urged today.

The association told resumed hearings of the government-appointed medical services insurance inquiry that psychiatric, medical and specialist care and supervision could be provided for Ontario's mentally ill at an annual cost of about $8,000,000.

The OMHA protested specifically against a section of draft legislation which would exclude from coverage under a standard insurance plan any medical or surgical services for a person in a hospital for mental illness.

"Such an arrangement only serves to strengthen the concept in the minds of the majority that mental illness is not, in fact, an illness, since its subjects are housed for the most part in facilities where the costs and standards of care are substantially below those in other treatment situations," the association said.

Fatal Fire Was Set

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fire set by an arsonist Nov. 27 caused the death of Robert Oliver Jordan, 41, a coroner's jury said Tuesday. Jordan, who hurtled through an upstairs window with his pyjamas aflame, suffered second- and third-degree burns to 90 per cent of his body and died four days later in hospital.

1,200 Workers, Bulldozers Hunt Victims

By TED BLACKMAN

STE. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Que. (CP)—A prefabricated village with new roads, modern street lights and a population of 1,200 has sprung up almost overnight in the open marshy fields near this Laurentian Foothills community.

This village owes its existence to death and destruction.

The men of the village work around the clock, through zero temperatures, digging and sifting through mud and clay. They are looking for human remains and bits and pieces of a jetliner which carried 118 persons to a fiery death 12 days ago.

Four hastily - constructed gravel roads, lined with street lamps, criss-cross the crash site and four mechanical shovels dig at a huge crater. The crater marks the site where most of the passengers of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-8F jet were buried when ill-fated Flight 831, bound for Toronto, fell from the sky and exploded four minutes after taking off from Montreal.

The men, 800 soldiers, 200 TCA workers and 200 Quebec Provincial Police, live in an uninsulated but well-heated bunkhouse at the site or in the barracks at nearby Bouchard Army Camp. A huge cafeteria provides a recreation hall when the men finish their eight-hour shifts.

INSPECTOR HEADS MEN

They work under the direction of Inspector Gerard Houle of the Quebec Provincial Police, who set up headquarters in a trailer at the site the day of the crash.

If he has reached any conclusions as to the cause of the crash, he isn't talking and neither are the investigators from the transport department, TCA and the Canadian Army and Air Force.

Inspector Houle, who directs the investigation until the possibility of criminal negligence is ruled out, says "this is a matter that we can't discuss right now."

The 100th victim was identified Tuesday as teams of men raked through loads of mud brought to three large sifting pits from the crash scene by more than 20 bulldozers. Only 15 victims were positively identified by fingerprints and documents. The rest of the charred and mutilated bodies were recognized by personal effects.

"We have not found one complete body. The largest remains was a headless torso," Inspector Houle said. "This, to say the least, has not been a pleasant task."

REACH 25-FOOT LEVEL

Diggers have reached the 25-foot level in the crater. The biggest fragment of the plane recovered so far was part of one of its four engines. The others may be buried deeper and no one can estimate how long it will take to find them.

Parts of the shattered plane have been found a quarter-mile away from the point of impact. Each piece is catalogued and the spot where it was retrieved is marked on a map before it is shipped to a hangar at Montreal International Airport where the jetliner is being reassembled.

"It's not a healthy town. The men have been inoculated with anti - tetanus serum to guard against lockjaw.

And everywhere the men are warned by signs: "Stop, Have you Washed Your Hands"

Insurance May Involve $10 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The crash of TCA's big jetliner near Montreal last month has set insurance machinery in motion that could involve claims mounting into the millions of dollars.

But it will be months before the complex legal-technical tangle is sorted out after Canada's worst air disaster left 118 dead in swamp near Ste. Therese de Blainville, Que.

There are three levels of insurance involved — private life insurance and accident policies held by the crash victims, flight insurance policies bought by them at airport insurance desks or machines, and public liability insurance held by Trans-Canada Air Lines against damage claims.

Estimates of the amount of insurance involved range past the $10,000,000 level—with no one sure at this stage just what the total might be.

NO UPPER LIMIT

There is no upper limit to individual claims for damages against TCA by the dependents or heirs of the dead.

The federal Air Transport Board requires all public air carriers in Canada to carry passenger liability insurance of at least $20,000 per seat.

However, William Moynihan, Canadian broker for Lloyd's of London, said TCA was insured with Lloyd's for passenger liability up to $5,500,000. This would mean that liability coverage in connection with the Ste. Therese crash could be tentatively set at about $50,000 for each of the 111 passengers killed.

CHRISTMAS 'HOLIDAY'

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — The Hungarian government in a surprise move Tuesday declared Christmas Eve "the week's rest-day" and proclaimed Christmas Day an official bank holiday. Christmas was officially abolished after Hungary became a peoples' democracy.

BCE Shareholders Lose in Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Power Corporation won a test case in the B.C. Supreme Court Tuesday which affects about 100 people who hold a total of $100,000 in B.C. Electric Series B convertible debentures.

C. J. Copithorne, holder of a $1,000 debenture, claimed he was entitled to an additional $18.70 a share which was paid to other shareholders who converted their holdings in B.C. Electric into Power Corporation stock before Nov. 1, 1961.

Copithorne did not turn in his debenture until Sept. 24, 1963, and claimed he was still entitled to the extra payment.

B. C. Power Corporation argued there was nothing in its agreement with the B.C. Electric that required the payment.

Mr. Justice H. A. Maclean ruled in favor of the power corporation and also dismissed an application by the Royal Trust Company which is representing the other debenture holders.

The debenture issue in question amounted to $40,000,000 and most shareholders accepted provincial government securities in exchange following the takeover of the power utility.

"Canada's competitive strength improving"

"Present circumstances offer us an opportunity for vigorous efforts to cope with some of our underlying problems", said J. P. R. Wadsworth, President, addressing the 97th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Highlights from the President's Address

The record of the Canadian economy in the current year shows clearly that the over-all position is relatively favourable. New records of production have been achieved in many areas, and this production has been sold successfully at home and abroad. We have achieved an increase in the Gross National Product which, in current dollars, will probably be about six per cent in the year 1963.

An important source of this strength has been the improvement in our merchandise trade balance. The surplus on merchandise trade in the second quarter of the year was estimated to be running at an annual rate of $500 million. It appears that the deficit in the current account of our balance of payments during the second quarter of 1963 was running at an annual rate of approximately $460 million. This estimated annual rate of deficit compares with total deficits on current account of some $850 million in 1962, $980 million in 1961, more than $1.2 billion in 1960, and about $1.5 billion in 1959. However, the extent of the improvement should not be exaggerated for it is not at all certain, at this stage, that the deficit for the full year 1963 will be less than $500 million. In a period such as the present, with a high level of consumer expenditures and substantial business investment, there is a strong tendency for imports to increase.

There are also certain special factors to take into account in making an assessment of current economic conditions in Canada. For one thing, 1963 will be the first full calendar year that we have been on the fixed exchange rate of 92.5 cents (U.S.), which was set with the International Monetary Fund on May 2, 1962. The advantages which have resulted from fixing and maintaining this new rate of exchange will continue only to the extent that they are not offset by price increases within Canada or compensating changes in the exchange rates of other countries.

Economic Outlook

There is, however, no room for complacency about our economic prospects. The crisis experienced with respect to our exchange reserves and the foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar in 1962, together with the immediate reaction to the Interest Equalization Tax Act proposed by the United States this year, are reminders of the basic sensitivity of the Canadian economy to judgments made and decisions taken in other countries. We must do all we can to build up a substantial and sustained surplus in our merchandise trade and reduce the deficit on non-merchandise items in our balance of payments which continues to be in the vicinity of one billion dollars a year. The size of this deficit reflects in large measure the substantial outflow of interest and dividend payments which constitute the cost of servicing foreign investment in Canada.

The most gratifying aspect of the business situation in Canada at the present time is the fact that each major region of the country has been participating in the expansion. I would like to touch on some of the highlights of developments in each of these areas.

Atlantic Provinces

The rate of capital investment in the Atlantic Provinces has generally kept pace with that of the country as a whole, and the proportion of the new investment made by business organizations is roughly the same for the Atlantic Provinces as for Canada as a whole.

Quebec

In the Province of Quebec business activity has continued at a high level through this year. There have been further gains in many measurements of activity reflecting the general buoyancy in business conditions which has been characteristic of 1963.

The manufacturing industries which produce items for basic consumer needs, such as the food industries, have continued to supply general strength to the economy while the industries which provide services of various kinds such as utilities, merchandising organizations, and financial institutions have been somewhat stronger.

Capital investment has again provided considerable stimulus for the Quebec economy. Total outlays for all types of investment including housing are estimated at close to $2.3 billion in 1963, establishing a new record for the province. The increase over 1962 is estimated at $117 million, 5½ per cent, and follows an increase of $160 million in 1962. There continue to be strong increases in outlays for utilities, manufacturing facilities, institutional services and various other forms of social capital.

Ontario

In the Province of Ontario, there has also continued to be a high level of activity this year. The general pattern has been similar to that of 1962, with the rate of increase in over-all activity showing a fairly strong upward trend.

The manufacturing industry, with its many facets, has been the major source of stimulus. The value of manufacturers' shipments in the first nine months of 1963 totalled $10.6 billion, some seven per cent higher than during the corresponding period of the previous year. Manufacturing accounts for roughly two-thirds of total output in Ontario and substantial year-over-year increases have taken place in a number of its leading industries—steel, automobiles and parts, farm implements and machinery, to name some of the most important increases.

Capital investment in the Province of Ontario continues to be very substantial and in 1963 total outlays in private and public investment will approach $3.1 billion. This will be an increase of about one per cent over 1962, a somewhat smaller increase than in the previous year.

Prairie Provinces

In the Prairie Provinces the outstanding feature of the business situation is the fact that the wheat crop has set high volume records in two successive years and the sale of these two bountiful crops on reasonable terms is virtually assured. This year the Prairie wheat crop is estimated at 703 million bushels, last year the crop was 546 million bushels. The contract signed with the Soviet Union, which covers the sale of approximately 240 million bushels of wheat and flour to be delivered by July 31, 1964, is by far the largest single commitment in this crop year. In addition, important contracts have been made with Japan, mainland China, and some countries in Europe which have not recently purchased Canadian wheat. When these new sales are added to the requirements of our other customers, it is estimated that sales of wheat for export and domestic use in the crop year 1963/64 will reach a volume equivalent to this year's entire crop.

The petroleum industry continues to make very substantial contributions to the economies of Alberta and Saskatchewan, with Alberta now accounting for about two-thirds of Canadian output of crude oil and natural gas liquids. Production of crude oil and natural gas liquids increased five per cent this year, reaching an average output of 785,000 barrels a day. Sales of natural gas increased by roughly one-third over last year and are expected to average over three billion cubic feet a day, one-third for export. By-products from natural gas production, particularly sulphur, have also shown a substantial increase in sales.

British Columbia

In the Province of British Columbia a number of factors has combined to make this a very good year. An important source of stimulus has been the sharp rise in capital investment which is running roughly 20 per cent higher than last year. This increase will amount to about $190 million and bring total outlays for private and public investment to some $1.1 billion for the year. The largest outlays for capital investment are concentrated in the pulp and paper industry and electric power projects. Housing also is up strongly this year with starts running about 15 per cent above the volume in 1962.

Another major stimulus for British Columbia this year has been a strong export demand for a number of the products of its major resource industries, the increase in sales taking place not only to traditional customers but to growing markets across the Pacific, particularly Japan.

The important forest products industries, which account for roughly one-third of the net value of production in British Columbia, have had a very good year.

Output of lead and zinc is comparable to last year and there have also been important developments in new copper and iron mines which have long-term sales contracts with Japan.

This regional review has pointed up the wide range of undertakings which make up the Canadian economic complex. At the same time it has provided a picture of the extent to which capital investment is giving support and further stimulus to each region of the country. It also emphasizes the extent to which economic conditions in one area of the country are directly affected by conditions in the other areas. This year, for example, the big wheat crop and the contracts for its immediate sale are bringing benefits to each major region of the country, the seaports and the industrial centres as well as the Prairie region.

Prospects Generally Encouraging

For Canada as a whole, prospects for the future are generally encouraging, but we are still confronted by certain basic problems to which we must continue to devote careful attention.

One encouraging development has been the notable increase in the volume of Canadian manufactured goods sold abroad. In 1963 the value of these exports may be as much as $900 million compared with slightly over $400 million in 1960. Markets for manufactured goods are highly competitive and much depends on the level of unit costs as well as on product development and salesmanship. In this connection all the cost factors are important, because they directly affect our competitive position both in export and domestic markets.

In fostering the growth and development of Canadian industry and enterprise, both for domestic and export markets, the Canadian banks with their wide distribution of branches across Canada and extensive correspondent bank relationships throughout the world have played and will continue to play an important part. This Bank in particular, provides a worldwide banking service with constantly expanding facilities to Canadians with interests outside of Canada, be they exporters, importers, investors, or travellers on business or pleasure. For residents of other countries we provide equally extensive services, including the facilities of our branches in every part of Canada.

World trade is growing and becoming steadily more competitive. Federal and provincial government departments are providing valuable assistance to the efforts of business enterprise to obtain an adequate share of this trade. However, research, production techniques and marketing skills are progressing rapidly in many countries. There is also the possibility of major changes in the field of commercial and tariff policies involving, for example, the working out of the United States Trade Expansion Act, the policies followed by the European Economic Community, and the whole question of Commonwealth preferences.

The present circumstances offer us an opportunity for vigorous efforts to cope with some of our underlying problems and to endeavour to ensure that the competitive strength of the Canadian economy both at home and abroad is steadily improving.

William M. Currie, Chief General Manager, reviewed the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized. His remarks follow in digest form:

The Bank's 97th annual statement marks the first occasion on which total assets have exceeded $5,000,000,000, an increase of $486,000,000 or 10.2 per cent over the previous year end.

Items in transit included under cash resources showed a decrease of $76,000,000. These are non-revenue-producing assets and the reduction of this total has been made possible by improved clearing procedures and, latterly, by the use of electronic sorting machines and computers, a field which this Bank was the first to explore and develop.

Quick assets of $2,655,000,000 were equal to 53.35 per cent of the Bank's total liabilities, as compared to 49.4 per cent as of October 31, 1962.

With the relaxation of monetary restraint during the twelve months under review, the country's money supply increased steadily and as a result the Bank was able to meet the demand for loans and add to its liquidity by additions to its security portfolio, which had been substantially reduced during the previous financial year. As at October 31, the Bank's commercial and other loans of $2,114,000,000 represent an increase of $29,000,000 over the previous year end.

During the year 39 branches were opened and 22 were closed, increasing the Bank's total branches to 1,283, of which 26 are located abroad.

Total deposits increased 10.3 per cent to $4,782,000,000, of which $2,209,000,000 represent personal savings in Canada, an increase of 6.2 per cent. Deposits by the Federal and Provincial Governments and by Other Banks also increased.

Undivided Profits of $20,385,059 were up $1,195,133, or 6.2 per cent, over 1962.

Earnings per share at $2.93 compare with $2.75 a year earlier. Total dividends of $15,678,000 were paid at the rate of $2.25 per share.

The Bank recently announced the acquisition of financial interests in two existing companies, Triarch Corporation Limited and United Dominions Corporation (Canada) Limited. The former specializes in equity and interim mortgage financing, while the latter engages in medium and long-term capital financing. In addition the Bank, through all its branches, will act as sole agent for Kinross Mortgage Corporation in the placement of first conventional mortgage loans. These new associations will further broaden the comprehensive services already available at our branches.

In closing I should like to say that progress such as that reported could not have been accomplished without the cooperation of a body of personnel which has proven itself to be second to none in the Canadian banking scene. It is therefore with the greatest pleasure that I express the thanks of General Management for the hard work, devotion and loyalty which employees of the Bank at every level continue to direct towards the prudent management of our affairs and the realization of our ideals of service to the community.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the Mass cards and acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our kind friends and neighbors during our recent bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father. We especially thank the Victoria Police and Fire Department.—Mrs. R. Doyle and family.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted and for the words of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings extended at the death of our beloved wife, mother and grandmother.—Mr. John M. Bennett and Family.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral offerings. —Mrs. Amy Wyatt, daughter and son-in-law.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GRIFFIN — In loving memory of Mrs. Annie Griffin who passed away December 11, 1962.
—Ever remembered by the family.

TANNOCK — In memory of Mrs. Florence L. Tannock, who passed away December 11, 1960.

In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away;
Our hearts were almost broken,
You fought so hard to stay.

But when we saw you sleeping,
So peacefully, free from pain,
We could not wish you back
To suffer that again.

—Florence, Les and family.

TANNOCK — In cherished memory of a dearly loved mother and Na Na, Mrs. Florence L. Tannock, who was taken from us December 11, 1960.

Someone remembers, someone cares,
Your name is whispered in all our prayers;
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere,
How often we wish that you were here.

Always together in memory's lane,
Today, tomorrow, always the same;
Wherever we go, whatever we do,
Our thoughts, dear Mom, are always with you.

—Ever remembered by daughter and son-in-law, Barbara and Allan, grandchildren Ricky, Kim and Lesley LeQuesne.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

One of the paradoxes of contract bidding is that a pair is likely to reach a higher contract by starting with an underbid instead of an overbid.

Opening lead—♥ 2

Thus in the Oxnard, Calif., sectional late in October most pairs arrived only at six spades. North would start with a forcing two club or two spade bid and then would move slowly fearing that his partner would be bidding on high cards in the red suits. Of course, some players reached seven spades after an opening two bid, but the bidding sequence that had least trouble getting there started with a one club opening by North.

South had a natural spade response and now North was in trouble, but pleasant trouble. How was he going to show his full strength?

He finally decided that the only way would be through a Blackwood four no-trump. I don't know exactly what he planned to do if South's response showed no aces, but when South showed one ace, North continued with five no-trump.

I think that North would have gambled out the grand slam if South had shown his one king, but South never gave North a chance.

North and South were playing that a Blackwood five no-trump as a follow-up to four no-trump guaranteed all four aces.

So South knew about all the aces. He also was pretty sure that North had at least four spades to the ace-king. How else could North have done all that bidding after merely opening one club?

In that case, South's king of clubs and queen of spades had to be all that was needed for a grand slam in spades so South bid it.

Reduce your fuel bills and beautify your home with

WESTERN RED CEDAR
1½"x10" Sawn-textured
FOREST
SIDING

How does "FOREST" compare with other sidings?

Its greater thickness adds structural strength to the building. Its snug "back to the wall" fitting makes for warmth and fast application . . . because it goes on like shiplap. The greater volume of "FOREST" siding gives a high insulation value.

When stain is applied to sawn-textured (sometimes known as rough faced) "FOREST" siding the distinctive character of the knots, burl and grain is emphasized. Stains come in emphasized. Maintenance costs are extremely low.

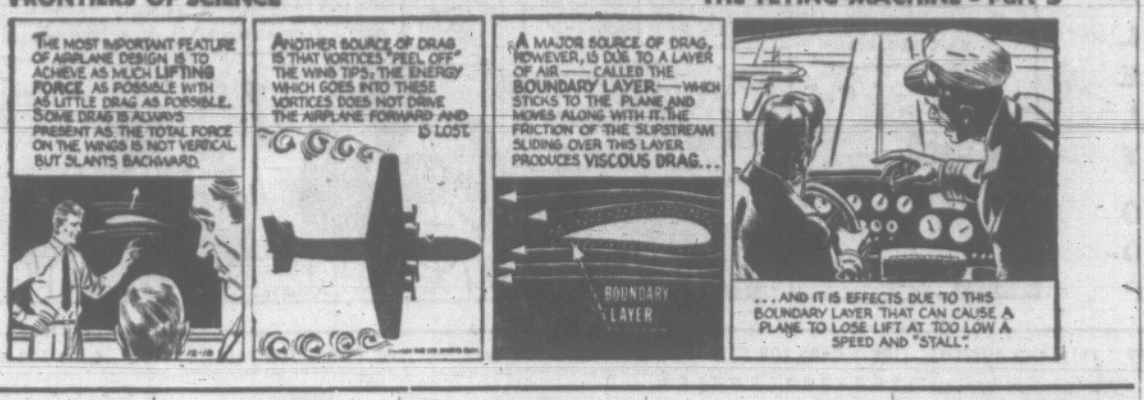
FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

THE FLYING MACHINE - Part 3



THE MOST IMPORTANT FEATURE OF AIRPLANE DESIGN IS TO ACHIEVE AS MUCH LIFTING FORCE AS POSSIBLE WITH AS LITTLE DRAG AS POSSIBLE. SOME DRAG IS ALWAYS PRESENT AS THE TOTAL FORCE ON THE WINGS IS NOT VERTICAL BUT SLANTS BACKWARD.
12-18
ANOTHER SOURCE OF DRAG IS THAT VORTICES "PEEL OFF" THE WING TIPS; THE ENERGY WHICH GOES INTO THESE VORTICES DOES NOT DRIVE THE AIRPLANE FORWARD AND IS LOST.
A MAJOR SOURCE OF DRAG, HOWEVER, IS DUE TO A LAYER OF AIR —— CALLED THE BOUNDARY LAYER —— WHICH STICKS TO THE PLANE AND MOVES ALONG WITH IT. THE FRICTION OF THE SLIPSTREAM SLIDING OVER THIS LAYER PRODUCES VISCOUS DRAG...
BOUNDARY LAYER
...AND IT IS EFFECTS DUE TO THIS BOUNDARY LAYER THAT CAN CAUSE A PLANE TO LOSE LIFT AT TOO LOW A SPEED AND "STALL".

CHANNEL CHIT CHAT: Chuck Connors wants to quit ABC-TV's "Arrest and Trial" series . . . The same network's "The Farmer's Daughter" was renewed for the remainder of the season . . . Barring a sudden change in plan, CBS-TV's "East Side - West Side" is set for the 1964-65 season.

Jackie Gleason's program for Jan. 4 will be a special marking his 35 years in show business with Otto Preminger as host . . . Mae (Come up and see me sometime) West is planning a guest shot on "Mr. Ed" with Alan Young.

ABC-TV's "The Greatest Show on Earth" series will take on a lighter touch . . . Opening night of the 1964-65 New York World's Fair will be presented in a 90-minute NBC-TV special April 22 . . . Andy Devine and Patsy Kelly are the stars of a test film for a possible series based on the succesful "Ma and Pa Kettle" comedy movies.

The first of three separate, but related, 30-minute series with the over-all title of "90 Bristol Court" is being produced for next season . . . Arthur O'Connell, Kay Medford, Carole Wells, Jessie White and Guy Raymond will be regulars.

The Seattle Totems-Vancouver Canucks hockey game will be televised live and direct from Vancouver at 10 p.m., Friday, Dec. 20 on Channel 5 . . . The Huntley-Brinkley Report will move to a new time period starting Monday, Dec. 16 on Channel 5. It will go from 6 - 6:30 p.m.

Casey Stengel will emcee "Home Run Power Champ" baseball competition show being readied for showing. Among the 22 home run hitters signed to participate are Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, Norm Cash, Orlando Cepeda, Bob Allison, Harmon Killebrew, Leon Wagner and Earl Battey.

Burr Tillstrom, the puppeteer, marks his silver anniversary in television next year, "if I'm working then." He and his puppets began in 1939 touring with the closed circuit demonstration shows the equipment makers used to make the public aware of television. "Kukla," the first of his puppets, was named by a Russian ballerina. The word means doll in both Russian and Greek.

The way to make a pile today is latch on to a good thing or get a gimmick. The team of Hannah-Barbera did both when they came up with Yogi Bear. The cartoon character is to star in Columbia Pictures' upcoming "Whistle Your Way Back Home." Yogi claims "it's better than the average movie."

RENEGADE IN POWER

Grosart: The Image-Maker

This is the eighth of a series of 12 excerpts taken from the much longer version contained in RENEGADE IN POWER: THE DIEFENBAKER YEARS, copyright Canada, 1963, Peter C. Newman; published by McClelland & Stewart.

By PETER C. NEWMAN

GROSART

The man who during The Diefenbaker Years came to symbolize the backroom political power of the Conservative Party was a chunky, singularly brilliant newspaperman - turned - image - maker named Allister Grosart. His personality and accomplishments isolated him among his fellow political organizers as a target for private and public attack, both on his integrity and on his calling.

So many myths grew up around him that his name was added to Canada's political dictionary. The expression "Grosart tactics" became a sneer or a compliment, depending on the political persuasion of the speaker.

Very few people who encountered Allister Grosart during his five-year tenure as national director of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada could look on him with a neutral eye.

At the 1959 annual meeting of the National Liberal Federation, Lester Pearson accused Grosart of "misinterpretation and dishonesty by unprincipled, huckstering techniques." At the same gathering, William Henderson, president of the Ontario Liberal Association, described Grosart's influence as being so immense that Prime Minister Diefenbaker was dancing to the tune "of this grand master of the Madison Avenue Theatrical and Drama Society." Paul Martin flatly declared that Grosart had become "the new foreign minister of Canada," and Major-General A. Bruce Matthews, president of the National Liberal Federation, referred disparagingly to "the nimble tactics of Mr. Grosart's Machiavellian techniques."

As a serious assessment of Grosart's function, this round-robin of name-calling was unjustified.

Provided Logical Framework

Allister Grosart did become a new and important power in Canadian politics. He did have absolute authority in the operation of the party machine, and he was in constant touch with Diefenbaker on political questions. But if there was any unusual aspect to the relationship between the two men, it was in Grosart's ability to provide the logical framework for the realities of politics that Diefenbaker had already perceived intuitively.

Whatever tension existed between them was probably due to Diefenbaker's realization that to a considerable degree, Grosart, and not he himself, had been responsible for the favorable image that had propelled him into office. Joey Smallwood, the premier of Newfoundland, sniffed at the root of the trouble when he said in an interview midway through the Diefenbaker Years, "Grosart's a thorn to Diefenbaker; he's a continuing reminder that the man's divinity is limited."

Yet it was with Grosart that Diefenbaker broke his rule of never publicly sharing the credit for political accomplishments.

On election night in 1958, during the flight from Prince Albert to Regina for his jubilant TV victory speech, the prime minister acknowledged the debt to his political organizer by saying, within hearing of accompanying reporters, "Well, how does the architect feel?" At the main banquet of the 1959 Progressive Conservative Association meeting, Diefenbaker publicly repudiated the many Liberal attacks on Grosart, then, turning to him declared, "You'll be here just as long as we can induce you to stay."

Grosart's role within the orbit of prime ministerial counsel-giving was twofold: he advised Diefenbaker on his television technique and other matters of personal imagery; he also made recommendations on how government policies should be presented to the voters, and what the likely effect of future policies on public opinion might be. But the formulation of these policies was not his direct concern.

Influence Worth More Than Power

The two men were able to work together because Grosart, unlike nearly all Diefenbaker's other advisers, harbored no egocentric political ambitions. While almost everyone else around Diefenbaker passionately clutched at more personal power, Grosart was astute enough to realize that at this level of the political pyramid gradations of power become meaningless.

The prime minister's power is supreme by definition. At such altitudes it's not power that counts, but influence. That was what Grosart sought and achieved.

By being honest with his leader and not asking for rewards, he built up a trust which, when reciprocated, made him one of the most influential men in Canada. Whenever the prime minister had a problem on which he wanted advice uncolored by the ambitions of its giver, it was Grosart that he called. At least twice a week, Grosart would be invited to have breakfast at 24 Sussex Drive to discuss the affairs of state.

Because he believed that except when a country is aroused by grave political abuses, elections are won by the continuous work of political organization, Grosart spent much of the time between electoral contests building up a cadre of 46,000 poll captains across the country.

He also became an expert on public-opinion sampling techniques, but never relied on any polls he hadn't checked with his own "play-back guys." These were such people as taxi-drivers, barbers, grocery clerks, and pool hall owners who, because they were in jobs where they hear hundreds of people sounding off about politics, could supply him with a montage of local opinion.

During every byelection, Grosart would quietly visit the area, talk to his "play-back guys," then return to Ottawa and reassess his strategy.

Before the 1958 byelection in the Manitoba constituency of Springfield, for example, Ottawa Tories were worried about the effects of a freight-rate increase. Grosart sat around local beer parlors and country stores, asking dozens of people, "What's all this fuss about freight rates?" He soon discovered that few voters realized the higher transportation costs would affect them. Instead of worrying voters by trying to justify the increase, the Tory candidate ignored the issue and won.

Faded Into Anonymity

A more sophisticated group of "play-back guys" included a roster of 20 or so personal friends Grosart had in each province, on whom he could call for a frankly worded assessment of local conditions. This system, plus investment in a continued private poll of Canadian political opinion, allowed him to make some surprisingly accurate guesses. When Major-General Georges Vanier was appointed governor-general, Grosart predicted the Tories' popularity would jump 10 per cent in Quebec. It did, exactly.

After the disaster of the 1962 campaign, former admirers of Grosart within the party accused him of having built up the prime minister's image to a level impossible to sustain. Publicly, Grosart himself blamed the urban voters of Ontario and Quebec for the 1962 results, because, he maintained, they had resented a politician like Diefenbaker who identified himself with the "have not" provinces.

But privately, he might have assumed more of the blame himself, because he had encouraged Diefenbaker to make his personal popularity the central issue of the 1962 contest. It was Grosart who overruled the few muted pre-campaign suggestions that the prime minister's image had become so tarnished that an appeal based on it was bound to fail.

"The PM is the campaign," Grosart insisted. It was Grosart who approved "Diefenbaker: the Man for All Canada" as the campaign's main motto, although Don Johnston, a Toronto lawyer, thought up the slogan.

When the electors demonstrated that Diefenbaker's popularity was not nearly as intense as he and Grosart had fondly imagined, the party turned against Grosart.

Four months after the 1962 election, Diefenbaker named Grosart to the Senate. For the 1963 election, his place was taken by Dalton Camp, the immensely capable Toronto advertising executive who had been associated with Grosart's three campaigns.

But it was Grosart who personified the Tory machine during the Diefenbaker Years. He used the occasion of his maiden speech in the Senate, on Oct. 24, 1962, to exalt his hero, John Diefenbaker, one final time, by praising "The veritable chorus of approval from all parts of Canada and from all walks of life on . . . the sagacity . . . of the prime minister."

Then he faded from the Canadian political scene into the plush anonymity of the Red Chamber.

World Control Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government was urged Tuesday to adopt a long-range foreign policy aimed at creation of two supra-national world bodies, one controlling military forces, the other administering international law.

The World Federalists of Canada, an organization that advocates world peace through world law, said in a 16-page brief to Prime Minister Pearson the UN should be strengthened to provide this kind of machinery.

A delegation led by Charles S. Burchill of Victoria, president of the WCF, discussed these and other proposals with External Affairs Minister Martin and experts from his department. The group claims 40 MPs among its members.

REDUCE WAR RISK

Current peacekeeping efforts "can at best only reduce the risk of war," the brief said.

Peace could only be assured when individual nations no longer have the right to build up military forces for use "at their sole discretion and to their own advantage."

To achieve this, a world agency should be set up with a monopoly on armed force. It would achieve and then enforce general disarmament under rigorous inspection.

Schools to Have Separate Chiefs Board Decides

Belmont Senior High and Elizabeth-Fisher Junior High became separate "principalities" today.

The board appointed A. H. Stephenson as Senior Secondary principal and will name a full-time principal for Elizabeth Fisher School in due course, Trustee Mrs. Isabelle Reader said today.

Mr. Stephenson has been acting as principal of both schools, assisted by a vice-principal in each.

Mrs. Reader said the board is planning a tour of teaching facilities in the district — extending from Langford to Port Renfrew — before drawing up specifications for a new building referendum which it is hoped may be put in the spring.

Bate Bid Wins School Contract

A $39,284 tender by contractor Herb Bate was selected by Sooke school board Tuesday for a three-room addition to Metchosin Elementary School.

It was the lowest of seven bids opened by trustees planning an expansion of the five-room school, and comes within the estimated amount for the job.

Highest tender received was by Parfitt Construction Co. Ltd., for $46,157.

Specifications were for the addition of one classroom, an administrative area and activity room.

Other bids were by G. H. Wheaton, $43,357; H. E. Fowler, $42,232; M. P. Paine, $41,485; Patterson Construction, $40,534, and D'Arcy Construction, $39,967.

Workman Blamed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force said today that damage inflicted on 61 jet training planes at an Arizona air base probably was the work of a disgruntled civilian employee or serviceman rather than an international saboteur.

SHELBOURNE MEETS TONIGHT ON APARTMENTS

A last-ditch stand against a Saanich council proposal to create a medium-density apartment zone on Shelbourne Street will be organized tonight by Shelbourne area residents.

They will meet at the home of Frank Copp, 1529 Earlston Avenue to consider final steps to defeat a bylaw creating the apartment zone.

Saanich council gave second reading to the bylaw Monday night. A third and final reading is expected Dec. 23.

More than 400 residents of the area have signed a petition protesting the apartment zone.

"We believe this zone would depreciate the value of our property and cause further overcrowding of our schools and streets," said Bruce Walker, 1530 Earlston Avenue.

ONT. PASTOR SEIZED ON ARRIVAL IN CUBA

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Kenneth McMillan of Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, was arrested and questioned by Cuban officials when he landed at Havana Airport Dec. 2, it was learned today.

Mrs. McMillan said in an interview the Cuban officials thought her husband, a Presbyterian minister, was a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, banned in Cuba.

She said he was released in custody of the Canadian Embassy on the condition he leave Cuba on the first flight out. Mr. McMillan flew to Mexico City Dec. 6 where he is now attending a meeting of the World Council of Churches.

Mrs. McMillan, who has been in contact with her husband since his arrival in Mexico City, would not say whether he had been roughly handled by Cuban police.

LaMarsh Sees Early End To 'Piecemeal' Welfare

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadians who plan their lives on the returns from government security programs may benefit in the near future from a co-ordinated federal-provincial welfare plan rather than the much-criticized categorical method now in force.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh Tuesday held out the hope that Parliament had received its last request for increases in the separate fields of shared allowances for the blind, disabled and aged.

While seeking final approval for a $10 increase in the three categories which would raise the combined federal-provincial payments to $75 a month in line with the increased federal old age pension, Miss LaMarsh told the Commons that all governments were seeking a means to lump the welfare payments under the same title.

When the legislation is [illegible] to Dec. 1, in spite of strong opposition pressure to date it back to October when the pension increases were brought in.

At the recent federal-provincial conference in Ottawa, each premier indicated that he was prepared to enter into a series of "consultative talks" at the civil service level, she said, adding that it might take "some time" to work out a comprehensive program to be recommended to Canada's 11 governments.

They are searching for a program which "looks at need . . . which says 'does this man or woman need public assistance'," Miss LaMarsh said. "This kind of test is a more modern one, and one which does fill in the gaps which presently exist with regard to categorical programs."

Miss LaMarsh added that perhaps in "taking this last step, it is the first step toward something which may fill a greater need."

The idea of carefully thought-out social welfare planning has long been a prime concern of the New Democratic Party and its leader, T. C. Douglas, referred to the present method as one that moves in "fits and starts," depending on the strength of public pressures and influential lobbies.

Kennedy Coin Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Con- [illegible] the treasury department to mint a new 50-cent piece bearing the likeness of the late President John Kennedy. Kennedy would replace Benjamin Franklin on the 50-cent piece.

BABY WAITS

Transfusion Held Up 90 Minutes

A small baby in need of blood lay waiting an hour and a half Sunday night while a donor was sought.

The two-week-old child was in St. Joseph's Hospital.

A doctor said a "desperate battle" was carried on to save the child, suffering acute anaemia.

BABY SAVED

The blood arrived in time to save the baby when a donor was located by Red Cross workers and brought to the hospital.

Lack of blood — either in quantity or type—is a recurring problem in Victoria, according to Mrs. Violet Thistle.

Mrs. Thistle, secretary of the Red Cross blood transfusion service, said today three Victorian hospitals and others in emergencies need about 400 pints of blood each month.

B.C. as a whole uses 150 pints a day.

NEED DONORS

"We need a lot of new donors," she said. "We have a list of 3,000 names, but often they are not available in an emergency.

"That's what happened Sunday night, when the baby had to wait while we tried to find someone to give blood."

Mrs. Thistle said there are "lots of good, healthy young people" who could give blood in Victoria.

CLINIC HERE

"Some of our donors have already given 60 or 70 times," she said.

"We can take all the blood we can get."

A regular clinic now on its monthly three-day visit to Victoria, brought in 223 pints Tuesday at Red Cross House, and is at the Legislative Buildings until 4 p.m. today.

Thursday, the clinic will be at HMC Dockyard from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Friday, the clinic will be at Duncan.

PARACHUTE saved life of U.S. Air Force Col. Charles (Chuck) Yeager, first man to fly faster than speed of sound, when he bailed out of experimental jet today when it plummeted into an uncontrollable spin at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

$600,000 Is Tops In Kidnap Cases

By United Press International

The largest ransom ever paid in a kidnapping case in the United States was $600,000 in the abduction of the six-year-old son of a Kansas City, Mo., auto dealer on Sept. 28, 1953.

However, the victim, Robert C. Greenlease, was murdered by his abductors, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady and Carl A. Hall. They were executed after they pleaded guilty at their trial.

The most celebrated case was the kidnapping of the 20-month-old son of Charles A. Lindbergh in Hopewell, N.J., March 1, 1932. Ransom of $50,000 was paid, but the boy was found dead May 12.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, 35, a paroled German convict who entered the United States illegally, was tried for the crime and convicted in a spectacular trial at Flemington, N.J., four years later.

The Lindbergh case also prompted passage by Congress of the Lindbergh Act, which provides for the death penalty in cases where the victim suffers bodily harm and is transported across state lines.

'All-Out Effort' On Forest Trade

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Canada's forestry minister, John R. Nicholson, said today Canada will exert every possible effort exhaust every shred of research and use every marketing technique to capture the forest products export market.

Addressing the opening session of the 54th western forestry conference, Nicholson said the world's demands for forest products is double every two decades thereafter.

He said Canada, whose forestry products account for 30 per cent of total exports, "is well aware of her dependency on the successful export of her forest products; she is well aware that there are now emerging many countries potentitally capable of offering stiff competition for this exploding market."

Forger Keeps His Loot

A man who forged and cashed two cheques Monday readily admitted his guilt in court today but refused to give up the money.

Gerald Young pleaded guilty to forging three cheques altogether and to breaking and entering and theft from John D. Kissinger, Jr., 634 Queens.

Detective Lester Clark said Young told him he had stolen three cheques from Kissinger's, marked them with the firm's stamp, and then cashed two of them for a total of $377.

Young was arrested as he attempted to cash the third cheque at Shop-Easy store, Shelbourne Plaza. Det. Clark had alerted Greater Victoria stores to the possibility of an attempt to cash cheques stolen from Kissinger's.

Young told Det. Clark that he still has the money but has hidden it and won't give it back.

Young has a police record for theft, forgery and breaking and entering.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded him until Thursday for sentence.

Ailing Woman Fined

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bedridden 75-year-old woman, represented in court by a friend, was fined $300 for bootlegging. Nettie Berg was summonsed after an undercover policeman purchased liquor in her home Nov. 3. The fine was the minimum.

$12 Million Profit For Distillers

MONTREAL (CP) — Distillers Corporation - Seagrams Ltd. was reported net profit of $12,858,000 for the three months ended Oct. 31.

First quarter sales were $260,233,000.

The report said Joseph E Seagram and Sons Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary, completed negotiations Nov. 1. to acquire all assets and certain liabilities of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co.

Refuge for Tibetans Proposed in Rockies

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada should open its doors to Tibetan refugees and settle them in the Rocky Mountains, William Wuttunee, chief of the National Indian Council, said Tuesday.

[illegible] a luncheon speech at ceremonies here marking the 15th anniversary of the signing of the universal declaration of human rights by the United Nations.

"There are presently many Tibetan refugees who would be only too pleased to inhabit our rugged Rocky Mountains if we would let them," he said.

"They are accustomed to that kind of terrain and it [illegible] would be a tremendous indication of our belief in the love and generosity of man if some country, like ours, were to extend an invitation to them."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Producing Broadway shows is like playing the suckers' gambling game, roulette. But Broadway roulette is worse than Russian roulette, for on B'way, five chambers are loaded, instead of one.

Joe Kipness, popular operator of the successful Polynesian restaurant, Hawaii Kai, tossed $125,000 onto the B'way wheel at 7:45 the other night with a show called "Have I Got a Girl for You!" at the Music Box.

By 8 a.m., "the wheel" had swept away all 125Gs (the critics' reviews were negative). Joe stood there without a chip left . . . Rather than buy more chips to keep trying, Joe announced he'd close the show quickly. "I'll probably never produce another stage show," he said. "Seeing all that go down the drain, even though it wasn't all mine, is too much." . . . Joe could be cheered by one thing: customers at the Hawaii Kai were applauding his show there. "Maybe I don't know how to produce B'way stage shows," said Joe. (Maybe practically nobody else does, either. Joe; you are not alone.)

* * *

Lucille Ball twisted her husband Gary Morton's arm and got him to appear on one of her TV shows (in his natural habitat, the golf range) . . . Frequently heard debate: Did people cry more about FDR's death or JFK's? Because of the long TV concentration bringing it to every living room (not possible in '45), many think the Kennedy mourning has never been equaled . . . Patachou, who's sort of a happy, young, well-dressed Edith Piaf, famous in her own right, opened at the Americana Royal Box. I don't know why "My Fair Lady" producer, Herman Levin doesn't sue over her racy French-type parody about a mademoiselle who's also out nights. He probably loves it, too.

* * *

Former Ohio Governor Mike Di Salle, first to declare for John F. Kennedy for President, just recalled some Kennedy wit—and memory. Mike nominated Estes Kefauver for V.P. in '56; Kefauver won over Kennedy. Leaving the stage, Mike told Kennedy, "Don't be unhappy. If Adlai Stevenson loses, you'll still be alive politically in '60." In '59, at a Di Salle party in Columbus, Kennedy recalled Mike's words, and added: "But Mike, I don't want you to make a practice out of saying you're going to keep me alive politically."

* * *

Actor Allan Dobie's bride Maureen Scott, who arrived from London with her husband the other night just in time for him to play the lead in "Chips with Everything," had a curious conversation with a new acquaintance here . . . "Are you in Show Business?" the new Mrs. Dobie was asked. "No, I'm a folk singer," she said. (You hear that, Mr. Belafonte?)

Frank Sinatra undertakes his first film-directing in '64: a Warners picture to be shot on Maui, Hawaii.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A chain-smoker died (reports Nonnee Coan) and had inscribed on his tombstone, "See, I Told You I Could Quit Smoking."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "The trouble with too many people is they won't admit their weakness. I'd gladly admit mine. That is, if I ever had any." — Pic Larmour.

EARL'S PEARLS: Any husband will tell you — his favorite dish is one that has already been washed.

Joe E. Ross (of Car 54") is auditioning for another show, and told the writer what he'd once told producer Nat Hiken: "Don't give me any big words to say — the only big word I can pronounce is 'delicatessen'." . . . That's earl, brother.

ask Andy
HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Jesse E. McCall, age 11, of Montgomery, Ala., for his question:

Why is the Cenozoic Era called the Age of Mammals?

The Age of Reptiles ended with the Mesozoic Era of the history of life on earth, some 60 million years ago. It was replaced by the Age of Mammals, which opened with the Cenozoic Era and still goes on. During this era, the mammals advanced from small, mousy creatures to the fascinating variety of warm-blooded, fur-coated animals that populate our modern world.

The story of life on earth began more than two billion years ago and advanced slowly, step by daring step to the teeming plants and animals that throng the earth today. If the long story were reduced to a year, the mammals would arrive in the last day and a half. The first of them were small and mousy, and in a world dominated by fantastic reptiles their chances may have seemed slim. Nevertheless, those frail mammals bid goodbye to the bulky dinosaurs. They survived and advanced to dominate the world.

When the Cenozoic Era opened, some 60 million years ago, the mammals had the earth to themselves. The world climate was tropical, and the earth was clothed with lush forests and weedy swamps. There were tender grasses and hosts of plants bearing flowers and fruit. The early mammals had toes, five on each foot. They had assorted teeth and keen senses, though their small brains had little grey matter.

Life at first was easy, but this was soon to change. The climate cooled and the tender tropical foliage became tougher. Finally the world was gripped by a series of bitter Ice Ages. These changes took millions of years, so the mammals had time to adapt themselves to meet them. The little horse ancestors developed tougher teeth and learned to run on tip-toe. They grew bigger in time and the running-toe on each foot became a hoof.

Failed to Survive Ice-Age

The ancestors of the cats and dogs, the pigs and elephants also improved their teeth and grew bigger. Ancient rhinos developed horns and cattle ancestors developed horns and hooves. As the story unfolded, most mammals added more grey matter to their brains. But not all of them survived. In the Ice Ages, there were shaggy mastadons and saber-toothed tigers, giant armadillos and five-ton, 20-foot sloths. For these bulky fellows, the long struggle to improve ended in failure. But many others succeeded and became the most advanced of all creatures. They adapted themselves to meet the changes and challenges of the Cenozoic Era. This era, which still goes on, rightfully belongs to them as the Age of Mammals.

The first mammals would be out of place in our world. We would have trouble recognizing the ancestors of the cat and the dog, the ape and the bear that lived 20 million years ago. We would be startled by some of the mammals that shared the Ice Age world of our own remote ancestors, for the first human braves hunted the great mammoth and defended their families from the fangs and talons of the saber-toothed tiger.

Miners Given Ultimatum

(Times News Services)

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Terrorists attacked the home of Bolivia's labor minister with dynamite and bullets today shortly after the government gave rebellious tin miners a 48-hour ultimatum to release 17 hostages.

A stick of dynamite, commonly used in mining operations, was thrown on the doorstep of Labor Minister Anibal Aguilar Penarrieta at dawn and two shots were fired into the house.

The minister, brandishing a sub-machinegun, ran into the street in his pajamas to return the fire, but the assailants fled in an automobile.

The government's tough warning to the rebel miners was issued by Defence Minister Gen. Luis Bidagain.

DOESN'T NEED AID

Foreign Minister Jose Velarde said, meanwhile, the government appreciated a U.S. aid offer but did not need help—"neither arms or munitions and much less, personnel."

New violence threatened with announcement by the Bolivian Worker's Central which rebel leader vice - president Juan Lechin heads that it would stage an anti-government demonstration in La Paz Thursday.

However, threat of an imminent armed clash between the army and the rebellious miners dissipated somewhat with announcement of a "truce" between the opposing factions.

The army command at Oruro, where the government has been massing troops, said forces sent out to cut off the rebel elements at Catavi, where the hostages are being held, had been withdrawn. In exchange, rebellious miners called off a "show of strength" among peasant supporters in the Bolivian highlands and agreed to resume work at unaffected mines.

The rebels seized the hostages last Friday to force the government to release three Communist labor leaders being held on murder and fraud charges in La Paz.

Canadians—Raymond Brousseau and Aurele Falardeaux—apparently are free but unable to leave Catavi.

CANADIANS FREE

Originally it was reported that four Canadian technicians working in the area had been taken prisoner. Slow communications and the remoteness of the area where the Canadians were located hindered making contact with them, leaving their fate up in the air.

But Tuesday the 15 hostages were interviewed by reporters

Columbia Talks End Without Agreement

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Columbia River talks between Canada and the U.S. appeared to be drawing to a close this afternoon, but with no final agreement in prospoce.

The meetings, in a previously unscheduled third day, broke up at 10:30 a.m. Victoria time, after a four-hour session marked by separate meetings of teams from each side.

Conference spokesmen said they expected a joint communique would be issued following resumption of talks this afternoon.

It was being widely speculated that the communique would state exchanges of views were made and that now the subject material would be closely studied by technical experts. The experts would report to their respective governments, with negotiations to resume possibly next week in Washington.

PRIVATE PARLEY

At one stage in this mornings meetings, political members of the Canadian team — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner and B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston — left the conference room for a private gathering elsewhere. Observers speculated that they were in contact by long distance telephone with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett respecting some American offer or proposal. This was not confirmed, however.

When discussions ended Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Martin sounded a note of caution.

WANTS TO BE SURE

"This is a very important matter," he sternly told reporters. "It involves many millions of dollars. We all want to make sure we are acting responsibly and in the best interests of our respective countries."

Mr. Martin responded with more hope, however, when he was asked if there was any danger of negotiations breaking off, thus damaging chances for co-operative Canada-U.S. development of the international river.

He said there wasn't, but added he did not understand the implications of the question. He fully expected, he said, to be "dealing with this at a higher level," once the negotiators had completed their work.

But he then declined to make any suggestion as to how soon the negotiators might end their work by reaching an agreement which could be recommended for approval by both the Canadian and U.S. Governments.

MANY THINGS

The question of establishing a price for U.S. purchase of B.C.'s share of the downstream power benefits resulting from development on the Canadian section of the river was the main issue before the negotiators.

Mr. Martin agreed following the Tuesday discussion that downstream benefits did not constitute the only question involved in the talks.

"There are many things involved," he said. "interpretations have a lot to do with price."

Earlier in the day — at the lunch-hour break — there were indications that negotiations were reaching a climatic point.

Conference sources said something would be decided soon, or else the $450 million project would be shelved indefinitely. Observers gained the impression that both sides were firming up their positions, with a deadlock in prospect barring sudden discovery of common ground.

NOT BUDGING

The Canadian side was not budging from the minimum price of five mills per kilowatt hour, or its equivalent, set by Premier Bennett.

Mr. Martin went out of his way several times in discussions with reporters Tuesday to insist that the federal and B.C. governments were "totally united" on the Canadian approach to negotiations.

Doomed Little Boy Greeted Dad With Present at the 'Station'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five-year-old Bradley McDonald met his daddy at the railway station Tuesday.

At least, he thought it was a railway station, and that his stepfather was arriving home after looking for a job on Vancouver Island.

In fact, Gordon James McDonald, 35, was getting out of prison.

McDonald was sentenced Nov. 15 to six months in jail for theft of $680, money he said he wanted for toys, clothing and medical care for his leukemia - stricken son. The boy is not expected to live another year.

The B.C. Court of Appeal Monday ruled mercy was warranted and ordered McDonald released.

Tuesday, Bradley and his mother Carol, 25, stood outside Oakalla Prison Farm, Bradley clutching a package of cigars wrapped laboriously in red and green Christmas paper. Under the ribbon was the photograph of his father he had kept with him while he spent three days in hospital last week for further treatment.

"Is the train in yet?" he kept asking. "When is daddy coming?"

Then his father walked out through the prison gate. Bradley ran forward, present outstretched.

"Hello, daddy," he said.

KOREAN KIDDIES' FUND

Only Two Weeks Left to Give

Total contribution to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund" is now approaching the $5,000 mark but last year's gift from Victoria was more than double this amount.

Unless many more people contribute a Friendship dollar or two to the fund Christmas day will be as grim as any other for uncounted thousands of the destitute in the slums of Seoul and Mokpo, Korea.

They won't know the joy of sitting down to an over stuffed table but the joy of receiving a ration of milk and bowl of barley will be just as great. This is one Christmas present thousands of Canadians can give.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, reports that two-thirds of the USC's target of 310,000 Friendship dollars has been collected, but she adds "the last mile is always the most difficult."

All food is distributed in the name of Canada through the Unitarian Service Committee.

All contributions should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m. Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

Acknowledgement of contributions will be made in a daily list published in the Times and official receipts will be sent later from USC headquarters.

WASHINGTON-MOSCOW DIRECT FLIGHTS NEAR

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. Aviation Agency administrator Najeeb E. Halaby arrived today to discuss what could be one of the first major East-West agreements under President Johnson's administration—direct commercial flights between Russia and the United States.

Informed observers said the agreement seemed virtually assured.

8 ARRESTED IN EAST

'Hooded Gang' Crime Solved

MONTREAL (CP)—Operations of hooded gangs in Quebec and Ontario, involving scores of crimes, are believed to have been broken, Quebec Provincial Police said today.

The crimes, carried out during the last year and amounting to at least 200, included a number of rape cases, bank robberies, hi-jacking of trucks and armed invasions of homes.

Total loot stolen by the gangs was estimated at $1,000,000.

The crimes took place in Montreal, western Quebec province, Ottawa, Toronto and Brockville, Ont.

"The arrests have broken the operations of some of the most wanted men in the country," Inspector Herve Patenaude said.

He said eight men are under arrest and seven of them have been arraigned on minor charges.

Two other men, described by police as prime suspects, are being sought.

Detectives from Metropolitan Toronto and Ottawa have arrived in Montreal with warrants for several men issued in their cities.

JEWELRY RECOVERED

Inspector Patenaude said about $15,000 worth of jewelry and $30,000 worth of other merchandise have been recovered from the gang robberies.

The rapes were committed on daughters in the presence of their parents and on wives in the presence of their husbands in the course of robberies of well-to-do people.

A number of severe beatings were also administered during the home break-ins.

Inspector Patenaude said the first break in the case came last week when hoods and firearms were found in a steel box under the bonnet of a car stopped by police at Vimont, 12 miles north of Montreal.

Kidnap Gang Still Hunted

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Frank Sinatra's 19-year-old singer son, kidnapped at Lake Tahoe, Nev., and held blindfolded 54 hours, was released unharmed on a street here today after secret manoeuvres in which his father paid a gang a $240,000 ransom.

The FBI conducted an intensive search for the abductors, but would say nothing about progress.

Slender Frank Sinatra Jr., whose goal is to duplicate his famous father's entertainment success, was taken at gunpoint Sunday night from a motel on the California - Nevada border just before a casino singing engagement.

A private policeman patrolling the exclusive Bel-Air district here picked him up the blindfold still dangling from his neck—after he heard a shout of "hey" from darkness behind his car.

DRAMATIC REUNION

The patrolman drove him to the nearby home of the boy's mother, Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, long divorced from the senior actor-singer. There, emerging from the trunk of the car where Junior had hidden to avoid reporters, came a dramatic reunion.

The elder Sinatra, who had been negotiating with the gang since Monday and flew here Tuesday night for the payoff, lost his look of haggard tenseness as he greeted his son.

"Father, I'm sorry," the youth said.

"Sorry? Sorry for what?" said Sinatra, embracing him.

Young Frank then embraced his mother, who broke down and wept.

"Don't cry, mother, I'm well. I'm in good shape."

Young Sinatra went to bed without talking to reporters but a spokesman said he probably would do so later in the day.

NICE BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Sinatra Sr., observing his 46th birthday, spoke briefly to reporters, saying: "This is about as good a birthday present as I could ask."

He continued:

"Frank (junior) didn't see much of the men. He was blindfolded most of the time and said something to me about being in more automobile trunks than anyone else in the world.

"The first phone call I got from the kidnappers let me know they had the boy and that he was all right. The man I talked to sounded like he meant business.

"I spoke to Frank (by telephone) twice. First, I asked him how he was and he said 'fine.' I asked him if he felt cold and he said 'no.'

"They took him out of the motel without socks and let him wander around in the snow with just a T-shirt on. He wasn't bothered physically, but he's pretty weary. I talked to him at 9 o'clock last night and yesterday afternoon in Reno about mid-day.

TOLD TO GET MONEY

"In Reno, I got a call to be here (at Mrs. Sinatra's home). They said I'd get another call.

"They told me, 'get $240,000'.

"I got it. The money was in small bills—fives, tens, fifties, hundreds.

"I came here and got a couple more telephone calls. They told me to go to a service station at Camden . . . and I don't remember the other street. Then I had to go to another service station.

"Then they took me off the thing and a federal man took over as courier.

"Then I got a telephone call from a man who said he dropped the boy off at Mulholland and the Freeway. We went out but couldn't find him.

"The man's voice sounded as

Train Loot Found

LONDON (CP)—Sacks containing £50,000 ($150,000) in bills, believed to be part of the loot from August's nearly £3,000,000 great train robbery, were found today in a telephone booth in south London.

The bills were in £1 and £5 denominations, the same as those taken in the ambush-robbery of a mail train bound for London last August.

Police were sent to the telephone booth after a telephone tip.

Another new development in the case came Tuesday when Roy (the Weasel) James, 27-year - old silversmith sought since Aug. 23 in connection with the robbery was arrested after a rooftop chase in London's St. John's Wood district.

James, a former racing driver, was living in a secluded mews cottage sub-let by Anne Stefan, a Canadian woman who lives next door.

Newspaper accounts said James was overpowered and arrested after breaking through a skylight in the cottage and sliding down a drainpipe into the small back garden. He was charged with conspiracy and robbery and was to appear in court tonight.

James is the 21st person to be arrested in the train robbery hunt.

The sensational escapade took place in the early hours of Aug. 8 when some 30 masked and armed men ambushed a mail train at a lonely crossing in Buckinghamshire, escaping with up to £3,000,000. Some of the money has been recovered.

Last week John Daly, 31, was arrested at his flat in Belgravia in connection with the robbery. Daly, of County Wexford, Republic of Ireland, was remanded in custody Tuesday at Linslade, Buckinghamshire.

Oswald Probe May Take Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some officials predicted privately today that it may be a year before Chief Justice Earl Warren's commission finishes investigating the assassination of President Kennedy.

The predictions followed disclosure by government sources that threads from the shirt of Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, were found snagged on the rifle which authorities say was used to kill Kennedy as he rode in a Dallas motorcade Nov. 22.

The government sources also reported Tuesday that Oswald's palm print was found on the rifle. And they said some latent fingerprints—identified as Oswald's — were lifted by FBI technicians from wrapping paper which hid the rifle when it was carried into the Dallas text book depository building where Oswald worked.

'QUICKIE JOB' UNWANTED

As the Warren commission continued its study of a five-volume FBI report on the assassination, a friend of the chief justice predicted the commission's work will not be completed for "a good many months at least."

Another official said it won't bother the White House if the commission takes a year, adding: "Nobody wants a quickie job. President Johnson made that clear in creating the commission."

There was evidence from Warren himself that the commission considers the massive FBI investigation report, delivered to the seven commission members Monday night, just the starting point for its task.

The FBI report, moreover, is itself not complete. Officials said supplemental reports will be sent to Warren "from time to time" as teams of agents still at work check out leads and information.

The report as it reached Warren was known to indicate that Oswald, 24, committed the assassination without accomplices and that Oswald had no connection with Jack Ruby, 52, the Dallas night club owner who killed Oswald two days later.

Ghana Judge Frees 3, Nkrumah Fires Judge

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters) — President Kwame Nkrumah today revoked the appointment of Sir Arku Korsah as Ghana's chief justice. Korsah was president of a special court that two days ago found three defendants not guilty in a treason trial.

The [illegible], which sentenced the two other defendants to death, was followed by heated criticism in the press and protests in various parts of the country.

The official statement announcing the dismissal gave no reason for the action.

The three men acquitted on charges of treason and conspiracy to commit treason were former foreign minister Ako Adjei, former information minister Tawiah Adamafio and H. Cofie Crabbe, former secretary of the ruling Convention Peo- [illegible]

They remained under detention after their acquittal.

Interior Minister Kwaku Boateng explained that they were being held under the preventative detention order, aimed primarily at preventing a person from committing an offence in the future.

The two men sentenced to death on the same treason charges were Robert Benjamin Otchere, a former opposition legislator, and Yaw Manu, a former civil servant.

Attorney - General Kwaw Swanzy commented afterward on the court's judgment that it savored of "discrimination" and that the two different rulings were incompatible.

"It would have been better to acquit all five accused or convict the whole lot," he said.

On such a bright and shiny day as this, I don't like to say, 'I told you so!' But as I suspected last week when Kenneth Kiernan added two more portfolios to his ministerial load, a mixup was bound to ensue.

Well, ensue it did, and right promptly.

Almost before the ink on his new commissions had dried, minister of conservation and recreation Kiernan managed to dump a trout stream into one of minister of mines Kiernan's tunnels. The resulting snafu is as cockeyed as an elephant joke.

The conservation and recreation people want their river back, also their fish.

The miners want the river out of their workings.

The federal department of fisheries would like to know how its coho and humpback salmon eggs are to survive the heavy silting which has resulted from a one-portfolio minister's attempt to juggle three.

As it transpires, the messers Kiernan will get off lightly, since with the help of cold weather which has shrunk the Jordon, miners expect soon to plug the 40-by-80 foot hole.

Nevertheless, I hope Premier Bennett will heed the lesson implicit in this little contretemps. A good minister, like an elastic band, can be stretched just so far.

If you haven't been grocery-shopping in the last few days here's good news.

Japanese oranges, which started their season at a whacking $2.49 a box in the markets, have now dropped to $1.98.

Merchants I talked to were hazy as to why the plump little mandarins — as much a part of Christmas as turkey and holly—made their December appearance at so giddy a price. One man thought the crop had been poor, but another came up with a more intriguing answer.

"In earlier years," he explained, "the Japanese couldn't afford to buy their own oranges, so they went almost entirely to the export trade. But prosperity is changing that. The Japanese workman now has more yen to spend on his country's products."

Maybe so. In any case, I can guess why that big fat price came tumbling down.

Too many squawks from yen-stretching Vitcoria housewives.

A while ago, this corner suggested that what Victoria needs to eke out her natural appeal is a crowd-pleasing event which will bring visitors over the water in droves.

Since then, a number of readers have come up with ideas, all of which would interest us locals. That's not the point, though. We're already interested in our Island and city—we need no convincing.

So, with thanks, I feel we'd be wiser to save the potlaches, naval displays and such for home consumption, unless we're willing to tie them into some more lavish and exciting project.

I'm just thinking out loud now; but I wonder how we'd make out with our very own Vancouver Island Grand Prix?

This is the scene.

For days, the motels and hotels have been jammed. Visitors wait in line to buy a meal. Stores catering to tourists have hired extra help. (Boy-oh-boy!)

Here come the hard-driven sport cars from every club in the Northwest, roaring down off the Malahat to battle out the final gruelling laps in Victoria's streets. (Wow!)

Into the race route beetles an old-guard Victorian in his little 40-to-the-gallon chariot, signal arm still up from the turn he made off Oak Bay Avenue five minutes before. (Ohhh . . . brother!)

On second thought, we'd better leave that one for those money-grubbers north at Nanaimo. After all, who cares if they make a mint?

WATCH THE LANGUAGE LADS

Women Cued for Pool Hall Invasions

By MARGE GILROY

Been behind the eight ball lately, ladies?

Perhaps you haven't but many others have in a city establishment where not so long ago women were forbidden to enter.

That was when a pool hall was synonymous with a den of iniquity.

Just to mention a pool hall was enough to bring to mind a dingy basement with a spittoon in every corner and the air so blue with smoke that even the foul language came out in muffled tones.

That was yesteryear, last year to be exact.

Today the pool hall, or the billiard parlor if you are really feeling high class, is clean and bright, the spitoons are gone and the air is filled with intermingling male and female voices and sometimes background music.

The bylaw forbidding women to enter pool halls had been on the books in Victoria since 1912. This spring the bylaw was changed and doors flung open.

The women weren't exactly clamoring at the door when the no trespassing sign was lifted but gradually they came.

As 22-year-old Pat Bennett said; "One night a bunch of us were sitting around the house wondering what to do when someone suggested a game of pool."

That was in April and Pat wasn't even aware that the rules had been changed. A little timidly with some fear and trepidation she went along with the gang.

She is now a fine player. I know, I played my second game of eight ball with Pat.

The first was with Al Zuick, the owner of a downtown emporium.

It was just a regular week night and women were not in abundance but they were there.

One gal was there for the first time with her boyfriend and another who came along soon found a partner.

On one occasion there was a shout from the boss, "Hey watch that language."

That was as close as the establishment came to resembling an old style pool hall.

Eighteen to 25-year-old predominated and this is apparently the picture on week nights, but Friday is rapidly becoming family night when husbands take their wives and children, 18 and over.

Enthusiastic Pat introduced her Mum and Dad and young sister to the game and now, they frequently make up a foursome.

On Wednesday night three other young working girls dropped in for an hour. They started to play a few weeks ago, "just for something to do in Victoria."

They still have trouble getting out from behind the eight-ball but they are determined to master the game.

"When women first started to play the game the boys would stand around and look but now all eyes are on the ball," Mr. Zuick said.

He said two of his most enthusiastic customers are a pair of middle-aged women who are often first to appear in the morning and are waiting impatiently for the day when the "billiard parlor" will be open on Sundays.

They consider it a wonderful substitute for golf on rainy days.

This reporter has just one word of advice for the gals—wear slacks, it is a game where position sometimes counts, especially if you get stuck behind the eight-ball.

Election Battle Still Under Way At Saanichton?

Laws Violated Reeve Charges

A personal battle flared into a possible attempt to unseat a councillor in Central Saanich today.

The council Tuesday night questioned the validity of the election of Ray Lamont Dec. 5.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said a letter soliciting votes for Mr. Lamont circulated on election day was apparently "a flagrant violation of the rules."

The letter is being sent to the provincial municipal affairs department for consideration and advice.

Mr. Lamont was the only member of the council to vote against a new municipal hall, sparking some bitter arguments both in council and during the election campaign.

"They're trying to get even with me," he said today.

NO COMMENT

Municipal affairs officials said they can't comment on the evidence.

However, they pointed out that the municipal act requires anyone challenging an election to take a petition to the courts.

Mr. Lee said he knew this, but council wanted the advice of the government.

The letter, mimeographed, but addressed in handwriting, was sent out by a Mrs. Hazel M. Woodward of Brentwood.

It praised Mr. Lamont and criticized the reeve and other council members, particularly about the municipal hall.

Mr. Lee said the letter was drawn to council's attention by "some ratepayers."

ELECTION DAY

He said copies of the letter were postmarked 1 a.m. Dec. 5, the day of the election.

The Municipal Act prohibits anyone from undertaking any form of "advertising" on election day.

Mr. Lamont said he knew nothing about the letter and it was not part of his campaign. He first saw it when his wife received a copy in the mail, he said.

He believed it to be a "private letter from one individual to another," he added.

Exploiting Charge Refuted

Henry Eng, president of Oakcrest Food Stores Limited, today denounced George Johnston, secretary of the Meat Cutters' Union, for making unjustified statements about the handling of labor matters at the huge Oakcrest supermarket on Quadra Street.

In a story appearing in the Times of Dec 5 Mr. Johnston was quoted as accusing Mr. Eng and Oakcrest of skirting a legal contract, exploiting Chinese employees and unethical hiring and firing tactics.

Mr. Eng vehemently denied all these accusations which he stated were misleading. He explained that the union contract had been lived up to the letter since it was signed and that there had been no hiring or firing in the meat department of the Oakcrest store since the date of the contract.

ADJUSTMENT

Mr. Eng emphasized that the food business in the Victoria area was going through a major adjustment due to increased competition and that he had recently had to lay-off one full-time and one part-time worker, but strictly according to the terms of the union agreement. He said lay-offs are normal procedure in any business where trade fluctuates.

Mr. Eng stated that Oakcrest does not own or operate a subsidiary meat cutting operation and that if he knew of any company which employed workmen "at less than half the union rate" he certainly would not do business with it.

Mr. Eng said that he was forced to the conclusion that the union felt that it was losing face over the two recent lay-offs at his store and was now trying to intimidate him.

With reference to the item published by the Times on Dec. 5, 1963, the Times desires to make it clear that in publishing the item there was no intention whatsoever of casting any reflection upon the reputation of Mr. Eng or Oakcrest Food Stores Limited.

New Plan For Care Of Elderly

Metro health chief Dr. John Whitbread Tuesday submitted a draft plan for sweeping changes in caring for the chronically ill and aged and creation of a task force to promote their rehabilitation wherever possible.

The plan was taken under study by the Greater Victoria metro health board.

In explanatory remarks, Dr. Whitbread said much could be done to help the large number of elderly persons "vegetating" in nursing and boarding homes or in their own homes.

He suggested resources of the board, private agencies such as the Red Cross and Victorian Order of Nurses, and government welfare and employment agencies be organized to help.

MANY IN OWN HOMES

The draft plan for organizing rehabilitation, home care and institutional care in the metro region pointed out that as far back as 1961 there were more than 4,000 chronically ill persons in institutions and their own homes.

This results largely from the fact that 20 per cent of Greater Victoria residents are over 65 years of age—compared with a national average of 8 per cent.

Dr. Whitbread said the standard care for these people could be "improved considerably and yet produce a saving in present costs to the various governments involved."

A co-ordinator of admissions should be appointed to direct persons requiring nursing or boarding home care to the most suitable available home in place of the present "haphazard methods of admission."

A team of occupational and physio-therapists should be established to assist in providing follow-up care, and also persons in their own homes, "so they are not left to vegetate," Dr. Whitbread said.

Nest Egg Lost

City Hall officials today were scratching around trying to find, of all things, a poultry compensation fund.

Search was touched off by W. H. Gates, 1837 Fern Street, who tendered a claim for $17.50 for loss of seven laying hens to a stray dog that got into his poultry run—one of the few left in the city.

"We certainly used to have a fund like that, but whether it still exists or not I don't know," said veteran city clerk Frank Hunter.

"Well we don't have anything like that in our budgets these days, but then I'm still pretty young," quipped comptroller-treasurer James Bramley.

The claim has been turned over to the legal department to come up with an answer.

Solid Approval Urged In Police Station Vote

Mayor R. B. Wilson today made a strong plea for thumping ratepayer approval of the $375,000 police station plebiscite.

Voters will cast their ballots between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Thursday in the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Government and Cormorant.

"It is of vital importance that the money bylaw receive the necessary 60 per cent support of the voters if we are to have an efficient and contented police force," he said.

The bylaw, besides providing reconstruction of the dingy and inefficient interior layout of the police headquarters, will also provide construction of magistrate's courts which could be used as a central municipal court building, he added.

The mayor also urged Victorians to produce a good voting turnout.

"We hope there will be a large number of voting tomorrow," he said. "There are plenty of contestants for the four aldermanic and two school trustee seats so there should be a great deal of interest in this election."

A suggestion by lawyer E. H. M. Foot that the city hold advance and absentee polls in future elections "deserves a serious look," said Mayor Wilson. It likely will receive committee study next week.

Soldier Fined

A 22-year-old soldier who threw a bottle out of a car in Esquimalt Tuesday morning was fined $25 in magistrate's court today.

Harold Krause, Work Point Barracks, was upbraided for his action by Magistrate William Ostler. Asked the magistrate: "Do you realize if you had struck someone with the bottle you would have been guilty of criminal negligence?"

Topics of the Day

Victoria Y's Men's Club will meet at the YMCA Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be motor vehicle branch driving examiner, John Furmston, on "Safe Driving".

* * *

An evening of Christmas carols will be given by Victoria West United Church choir Monday at 7:45 p.m.

More than $500 worth of gifts will be presented to less fortunate children by Victoria Jaycees Saturday.

Santa Claus will distribute the gifts at a Christmas party in Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall at 2 p.m. to which 70 children have been invited.

They will also receive clothing and toys collected from Victoria department stores.

* * *

Seeking accommodation in Victoria are 200 families of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

"They will arrive within the next two weeks," said Sgt. Charles McGraw, who would like to hear from prospective landlords.

He can be reached at EV 5-1371, local 355, Monday to Friday, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

* * *

A prowler walked into St. Ann's Academy during the lunch hour Tuesday and stole cash which students had collected to give a Christmas party for underprivileged youngsters.

The thief also stole petty cash from an office of the residential students' lounge. Total amount missing is about $200.

Two students saw a man about 30 years old in the lounge at about the time the theft occurred. Police have a description of him.

Several times in the last two weeks prowlers have been reported at the Academy during night hours. Earlier this week someone used a fire extinguisher to write obscenities on the grounds of the school yard.

CARELESS DRIVERS

In city magistrate's court Tuesday:

Allen Tannock, 1626 Garnet, hit parked car Shelbourne, Nov. 23, $35.

William Beischer, 4015 Braefoot, rear-end collision Douglas, Nov. 23, $35.

Ernie Eckdahl was elected president of Victoria Magic Circle at its recent annual meeting and Christmas party.

Also on the executive are Lon Chaney, vice-president, and Ernie Crockford, secretary-treasurer.

* * *

Christmas luncheon of the Victoria Real Estate Board will be held in the Empress Ballroom Dec. 18 at noon.

Program will include Christmas dinner, carol choir, a play, "Three Approaches to Value"; MLS cheques and door prizes.

* * *

Geoff Holyhead has been elected president of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society.

Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Jack Westaway; treasurer, T. T. Vaulkhard; secretary, Mrs. Ena McCabe, and members of the executive committee, Gordon Bentham and Wyn Elford.

The president re-affirmed the society's support of the Shelbourne Boy Scout and Girl Guides' Association who will sponsor the 1964 fall show.

GROG SHOPS CLOSE EARLY FOR HOLIDAYS

Downtown liquor stores will close early Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Government Liquor Control Board chairman Col. Donald McGugan said today that all stores will close at 6 p.m. on Dec. 24 and Dec. 31.

Downtown stores here and in Vancouver usually stay open until 11 p.m.

The early closing will allow LCB employees to spend the holiday season at home.

Japanese Orange Prices Peeled

A price war is making Japanese oranges an attractive buy.

They've come down more than 20 per cent since their recent arrival in city stores.

Chain stores are following each other in price-slashing which began with a two-day "special" at Shop-Easy, Vancouver.

The original price was dropped from $2.49 a case to $1.98.

Shop-Easy, Victoria, is now selling at $1.89 per case, and Woodward's Mayfair has a similar price. Both stores are offering this price on family purchases.

A Shop-Easy spokesman said that "everyone got in on it and we had to keep up."

Woodward's spokesman said it is better than price-fixing "but it's bad for us . . . That's competition. We may run out of supplies by Christmas, and there won't be any more."

Super-Valu, selling at $1.98 per case, said the price is "considerably below cost."

A case contains about 60 mandarins, or 10 lbs. weight.

Thursday Meetings

Ss. Beaver Kiwanis Club: 7:30 a.m., Tally Ho. Inter-club with Victoria Kiwanis Club.

Victoria Rotary Club: 12:10 p.m., Empress Hotel. UVIC professor Dr. Roy Watson on "Employer - Employee Relations."

Oak Bay Kiwanis Club: 6:15 p.m., Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Juvenile Detention Home superintendent Charles Etchells on "Work in the Juvenile Detention Field."

DOESN'T CARE A HOOT FOR GULLS

Giant Owl Rules Roost in Inner Harbor

By LESLIE MILLIN

There's a new hooter sounding in the Inner Harbor. Standing out above the squeal of seagulls and the horns of tugboats is . . . the voice of the Great Horned Owl.

This Great Horned Owl (Bubo virginianus saturatus) is a long way off his home turf, and was spotted by Max Lohbrunner, who lives aboard an elderly fishing vessel moored at the foot of Herald Street.

* * *

It's a big bird—nearly two feet tall—with an enormous wing span, and it has taken up residence on the bow of the Brico, a ship being wrecked at the Capital Iron wharf.

Usually these birds, the biggest in the owl line, live in forest areas where they dine on rats, mice, rabbits, birds, insects and small mammals.

This one has probably moved into town because the cold winter has cut down on the rural food supply.

Great Horned Owls are protected by game laws, although as one book on birds points out, they don't need much protection.

* * *

In fact, a flock of seagulls started to jeer at our Great Horned Owl on Monday afternoon, and at least one gull was speedily [illegible].

Leaping off the bow of the Brico with startling agility, our Great Horned Owl reared back and reduced that gull to a few floating feathers

Then flew around the Inner Harbor showing off his four-foot wingspan, and laughing like a wise owl that has it made.

MANUFACTURERS CHIEF

Trade Barriers Should Be Eased

MONTREAL (CP) — Removal of trade barriers that have outlined their usefulness and progressive reduction of others that can be reduced without drastic consequences to the economy of any country was advocated today by H. Roy Crabtree, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Addressing the association's Quebec division, Mr. Crabtree said manufacteurers attach enormous importance to the maintenance of an adequate tariff structure so far as our own limited and still developing market is concerned.

"But I know of few manufacturers who are not equally alive to the fact that if we want improved access to foreign markets, then we must be flexible and concession-minded where our own tariffs are concerned. It is in this spirit that the Canadian delegation should go to Geneva next spring for 'the Kennedy round' of the GATT General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade negotiations."

Mr. Crabtree, president of Wabasso Cotton Co. Ltd., Montreal, said the Geneva negotiations will be of greater significance than any in recent years and 1964 might well mark a turning point in trading relations between the great industrial countries of the West.

"There have been no lack of ministerial hints that we must expect and prepare ourselves for some reductions in our tariffs," he said.

ENDANGER INDUSTRIES?

"Quite frankly, our biggest concern is that any downward revision should not be so sweeping as to endanger the survival of the affected industries and the jobs of those they employ."

Mr. Crabtree said Canada's exports of finished goods this year is expected to total $1,000,000,000 or about double what it was three years ago.

Products showing the biggest export gain include electronic communications equipment, industrial machinery, automobile parts and farm equipment.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Speculatives Hike Volume at Toronto

Activity among speculative issues dominated trading today on the Toronto stock market and sent the volume soaring.

Among speculatives, Croinor was ahead seven cents to 43 cents on 546,520 shares, Zulapa 3½ cents to 22 cents on 126,000 shares and Jacobus one cent to 20 cents on 109,200 shares.

Candore dipped one cent to 19 cents on 190,449 shares and Consolidated Mogul fell 16 cents to $2.76 on profit taking.

In the gold section, McIntyre rose 1⅞ to 48¾.

Advances by rails continued to bolster a mixed market at New York.

AT TORONTO on the industrial board, Investors Syndicate A gained one point to 52, Royal Bank ¾ and Federal Grain ½.

On the minus side, International Minerals and Chemical fell one point to 66½, Simpsons ⅞ and Moore Corporation ¾.

Noranda advanced ¾ and Falconbridge ½ among senior base metals.

Central Del Rio was up 15 cents to $7 in western oils.

AT NEW YORK — Among Canadian issues traded, Canadian Pacific and Walker Gooderham fell ½ and Granby Mining ⅛. International Nickel gained ¾ and McIntyre Porcupine 1¾.

Prices on the American Exchange were generally lower. Brazilian Traction fell ⅛. Canadian Marconi and Preston gained ⅛, Canadian Javelin ¼, Molybdenite 1/16 and Scurry Rainbow Oil ⅝.

AT MONTREAL — Prices were slightly higher today on the stock exchange.

Industrial Acceptance gained ⅜, Asbestos, Labatt and Calgary Power ¼ each and Rockwell-Standard, CPR and International Nickel ⅛ apiece.

AT LONDON equities developed a buoyant trend on the stock market today. Gilt-edges, however, lost an early firm trend and were narrowly irregular on balance.

Dollar stocks were mixed. Several Canadian issues improved including Imperial Oil and Algoma, but Aluminium Ltd. and Consolidated Paper were dull.

Canadian banks occasionally eased. Home banks and insurances were little changed.

AT VANCOUVER trading was moderate. Bethlehem Copper was down at $6.70 while Utica was up at .32. Cowichan Copper climbed to .79 and Kootenay Base Metal to .24½. B.C. Forest was up at $23.25 and Mid-west Gas at $2.90. Neon rose to $25 and B.C. Sugar to $40.

Canadian Consumers Owe More

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian consumers owed more money at the end of September than they did on the same date a year ago, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says Tuesday.

Balances outstanding on the books of sales finance companies for consumer and commercial goods, small loan companies for cash loans and instalment credit, department stores, furniture and appliance stores, and chartered banks for personal loans were higher.

End of September balances with last year's figures in brackets:

Sales finance companies for consumer goods, $847,000,000 ($776,000,000); sales finance companies for commercial goods, $462,000,000 ($434,000,000); small loan companies for cash loans, $706,000,000 ($617,000,000); small loan companies for instalment credit, $46,000,000 ($44,000,000); department stores, $394,000,000 ($366,000,000); furniture and appliance stores, $188,000,000 ($186,000,000), and chartered banks for personal loans $1,831,000,000 ($1,638,000,000).

Columbia Cellulose Announces Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP) — Columbia Cellulose Company Ltd. has announced a semi-annual dividend of 10 cents on common shares, payable Dec. 30, 1963 to shareholders of record Dec. 18, 1963.

President Paul M. Marshall said in a statement the $4,000,000 expansion project underway at Prince Rupert will be completed early in 1964.

Production of dissolved pulp grades will be increased to about 530 tons a day, or 182,000 tons a year.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Banks buying cheques at 7½ premium, notes 7¼ premium and buying silver at 5⅝. Selling cheques at 8¾ premium, notes 8⅝ premium.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a premium of 8 5/16 up 1/32 at $1.07 29/32 premium in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Montreal reported near noon today. Pound sterling up ⅛ at $3.01 13/16.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax trade featured trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Flax prices received some stimulation from reports that Russia and other Soviet countries were making purchases of linseed oil on the continental market. A resultant advance in the linseed oil market was in the background of Winnipeg flax trade.

Also contributing to flax buying were purchases by export accounts accompanied by trade reports about 80,000 bushels of flaxseed were sold to the United Kingdom.

Oats and barley trade remained quiet and of a domestic nature. There was a modest shipping demand for oats and some buying in barley. Shipping reports showed substantial amounts of barley had moved to eastern ports for the feed trade.

CHICAGO (AP)—Except for new crop wheat, the grain futures market was generally about steady to strong most of the time today on the board of trade.

July and September wheat came under moderate but steady selling pressure on reports of snowfall over much of the winter crop belt and forecasts of more to come. The moisture was badly needed in the area where the crop was understood to be in poor to only fair condition.

With soybean oil and soybean meal holding a firm range, speculators bid aggressively at times for soybeans.

IMPERIAL JUMPS PRICE OF GAS

Imperial Oil jumped the price of retail gasoline two cents a gallon today, taking other major firms by surprise and putting the regular price at 40.9 cents.

The move comes practically on the eve of a provincial hearing into gasoline prices and culminates a year of see-sawing fluctuation in the retail area.

Imperial was the firm that cut prices here early in the New Year to instigate a gas war that dragged on into summer.

Water System Failure Closes Plant

TRAIL (CP)—An estimated 2,000 men were thrown temporarily out of work and two communities put under water rationing today following the failure of a water system feeding the giant Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company operations.

The district of Tadanac and the village of Warfield, bordering Trail, were put under water rationing.

A company official said it was expected that the water system would take "a few days" to repair.

Heavy Turnout In Vancouver Vote

VANCOUVER (CP)—Despite predictions of a light vote for Vancouver's off-year civic election today, officials said early voting indicated a record turnout.

Although the mayoralty is not at stake, voters were reported streaming to the polls in crisp sunny weather. The early voting encouraged hopes at city hall that more than 80,000 might cast their ballots to fill 12 vacancies on public boards and pass judgment on plans for a new school district college.

'Hooded Gang' Crime Solved

MONTREAL (CP)—Operations of hooded gangs in Quebec and Ontario, involving scores of crimes, are believed to have been broken, Quebec Provincial Police said today.

The crimes, carried out during the last year and amounting to at least 200, included a number of rape cases, bank robberies, hi-jacking of trucks and armed invasions of homes.

Total loot stolen by the gangs was estimated at $1,000,000.

The crimes took place in Montreal, western Quebec province, Ottawa, Toronto and Brockville, Ont.

"The arrests have broken the operations of some of the most wanted men in the country," Inspector Herve Patenaude said.

He said eight men are under arrest and seven of them have been arraigned on minor charges.

Two other men, described by police as prime suspects, are being sought.

Miners Given Ultimatum

(Times News Services)

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Terrorists attacked the home of Bolivia's labor minister with dynamite and bullets today shortly after the government gave rebellious tin miners a 48-hour ultimatum to release 17 hostages.

A stick of dynamite, commonly used in mining operations, was thrown on the doorstep of Labor Minister Anibal Aguilar Penarrieta at dawn and two shots were fired into the house.

The minister, brandishing a sub-machinegun, ran into the street in his pajamas to return the fire, but the assailants fled in an automobile.

DOESN'T NEED AID

Foreign Minister Jose Velarde said, meanwhile, the government appreciated a U.S. aid offer but did not need help—"neither arms or munitions and much less, personnel."

New violence threatened with announcement by the Bolivian Worker's Central which rebel leader vice - president Juan Lechin heads that it would stage an anti-government demonstration in La Paz Thursday.

However, threat of an imminent armed clash between the army and the rebellious miners dissipated somewhat with announcement of a "truce" between the opposing factions.

The army command at Oruro, where the government has been massing troops, said forces sent out to cut off the rebel elements at Catavi, where the hostages are being held, had been withdrawn. In exchange, rebellious miners called off a "show of strength" among peasant supporters in the Bolivian highlands and agreed to resume work at unaffected mines.

The rebels seized the hostages last Friday to force the government to release three Communist labor leaders being held on murder and fraud charges in La Paz.

Canadians—Raymond Brousseau and Aurele Falardeaux—apparently are free but unable to leave Catavi.

Originally it was reported that four Canadian technicians working in the area had been taken prisoner. Slow communications and the remoteness of the area where the Canadians were located hindered making contact with them, leaving their fate up in the air.

But Tuesday the 15 hostages were interviewed by reporters

Columbia Talks End Without Agreement

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Columbia River talks between Canada and the U.S. appeared to be drawing to a close this afternoon, but with no final agreement in prospect.

The meetings, in a previously unscheduled third day, broke up at 10:30 a.m. Victoria time, after a four-hour session marked by separate meetings of teams from each side.

Conference spokesmen said they expected a joint communique would be issued following resumption of talks this afternoon.

It was being widely speculated that the communique would state exchanges of views were made and that now the subject material would be closely studied by technical experts. The experts would report to their respective governments, with negotiations to resume possibly next week in Washington.

At one stage in this mornings meetings, political members of the Canadian team — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner and B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston — left the conference room for a private gathering elsewhere. Observers speculated that they were in contact by long distance telephone with B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett respecting some American offer or proposal. This was not confirmed, however.

When discussions ended Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Martin sounded a note of caution.

"This is a very important matter," he sternly told reporters. "It involves many millions of dollars. We all want to make sure we are acting responsibly

Oswald Probe May Take Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some officials predicted privately today that it may be a year before Chief Justice Earl Warren's commission finishes investigating the assassination of President Kennedy.

The predictions followed disclosure by government sources that threads from the shirt of Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, were found snagged on the rifle which authorities say was used to kill Kennedy as he rode in a Dallas motorcade Nov. 22.

The government sources also reported Tuesday that Oswald's palm print was found on the rifle, And they said some latent fingerprints—identified as Oswald's — were lifted by FBI technicians from wrapping paper which hid the rifle when it was carried into the Dallas text book depository building where Oswald worked.

'QUICKIE JOB' UNWANTED

As the Warren commission continued its study of a five-volume FBI report on the assassination, a friend of the chief justice predicted the commission's work will not be completed for "a good many months at least."

Another official said it won't bother the White House if the commission takes a year, adding: "Nobody wants a quickie job. President Johnson made that clear in creating the commission."

There was evidence from Warren himself that the commission considers the massive FBI investigation report, delivered to the seven commission members Monday night, just the starting point for its task.

The FBI report, moreover, is itself not complete. Officials said supplemental reports will be sent to Warren "from time to time" as teams of agents still at work check out leads and information.

The report as it reached Warren was known to indicate that Oswald, 24, committed the assassination without accomplices and that Oswald had no connection with Jack Ruby, 52, the Dallas night club owner who killed Oswald two days later.

Young Singer Back Unharmed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Frank Sinatra's 19-year-old singer son, kidnapped at Lake Tahoe, Nev., and held blindfolded 54 hours, was released unharmed on a street here today after secret manoeuvres in which his father paid a gang a $240,000 ransom.

The FBI conducted an intensive search for the abductors, but would say nothing about progress.

Slender Frank Sinatra Jr., whose goal is to duplicate his famous father's entertainment success, was taken at gunpoint Sunday night from a motel on the California - Nevada border just before a casino singing engagement.

A private policeman patrolling the exclusive Bel-Air district here picked him up—the blindfold still dangling from his neck—after he heard a shout of "hey" from darkness behind his car.

DRAMATIC REUNION

The patrolman drove him to the nearby home of the boy's mother, Mrs. Nancy Sinatra, long divorced from the senior actor-singer. There, emerging from the trunk of the car where Junior had hidden to avoid reporters, came a dramatic reunion.

The elder Sinatra, who had been negotiating with the gang since Monday and flew here Tuesday night for the payoff, lost his look of haggard tenseness as he greeted his son.

"Father, I'm sorry," the youth said.

"Sorry? Sorry for what?" said Sinatra, embracing him.

Young Frank then embraced his mother, who broke down and wept.

"Don't cry, mother, I'm well, I'm in good shape."

Young Sinatra went to bed without talking to reporters but a spokesman said he probably would do so later in the day.

NICE BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Sinatra Sr., observing his 46th birthday, spoke briefly to reporters, saying: "This is about as good a birthday present as I could ask."

He continued:

"Frank (junior) didn't see much of the men. He was blindfolded most of the time and said something to me about being in more automobile trunks than anyone else in the world.

"The first phone call I got from the kidnappers let me know they had the boy and that he was all right. The man I talked to sounded like he meant business.

"I spoke to Frank (by telephone) twice. First, I asked him how he was and he said 'fine.' I asked him if he felt cold and he said 'no.'

"They took him out of the motel without socks and let him wander around in the snow with just a T-shirt on. He wasn't bothered physically, but he's pretty weary. I talked to him at 9 o'clock last night and yesterday afternoon in Reno about mid-day.

TOLD TO GET MONEY

"In Reno, I got a call to be here (at Mrs. Sinatra's home). They said I'd get another call.

"They told me, 'get $240,000'.

"I got it. The money was in small bills—fives, tens, fifties, hundreds.

"I came here and got a couple more telephone calls. They told me to go to a service station at Camden . . . and I don't remember the other street. Then I had to go to another service station.

"Then they took me off the thing and a federal man took over as courier.

"Then I got a telephone call from a man who said he dropped the boy off at Mulholland and the Freeway. We went out but couldn't find him.

"The man's voice sounded as

Train Loot Found

LONDON (CP)—Sacks containing £50,000 ($150,000) in bills, believed to be part of the loot from August's nearly £3,000,000 great train robbery, were found today in a telephone booth in south London.

The bills were in £1 and £5 denominations, the same as those taken in the ambush-robbery of a mail train bound for London last August.

Police were sent to the telephone booth after a telephone tip.

Another new development in the case came Tuesday when Roy (the Weasel) James, 27-year - old silversmith sought since Aug. 23 in connection with the robbery was arrested after a rooftop chase in London's St. John's Wood district.

James, a former racing driver, was living in a secluded mews cottage sub-let by Anne Stefan, a Canadian woman who lives next door.

Newspaper accounts said James was overpowered and arrested after breaking through a skylight in the cottage and sliding down a drainpipe into the small back garden. He was charged with conspiracy and

Bomb Scare At Oak Bay High School

Oak Bay Junior High School was cleared of all students during the lunch hour today as police searched for a bomb.

A teacher in the general office received an anonymous phone call at 12:30 saying a bomb had been placed on the premises. Most of the 880 students were out to lunch.

An announcement over the loudspeaker system ordered everyone out. Oak Bay police conducted a search but found no sign of a bomb.

Principal R. T. Kipling said he thought the call was a hoax from the start, "but I didn't want to take any chances."

The teacher who received the call said he could not tell if it was a man or a boy on the phone.

Students resumed classes shortly after the usual time this afternoon.

Arrest Reported

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago American says a suspected kidnapper of singer Frank Sinatra Jr. was reported arrested as a result of "a behind-the-scenes strategy worked out under the personal direction of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy."

In Washington the justice department said it knew of no arrest in the Sinatra case. A spokesman added that Kennedy was not directing the hunt for the kidnappers but that the attorney-general had telephoned the elder Frank Sinatra to offer support.

KOREAN KIDDIES' FUND

Only Two Weeks Left to Give

Total contribution to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund" is now approaching the $5,000 mark but last year's gift from Victoria was more than double this amount.

Unless many more people contribute a Friendship Dollar or two to the fund Christmas day will be as grim as any other for uncounted thousands of the destitute in the slums of Seoul and Mokpo, Korea.

They won't know the joy of sitting down to an over stuffed table but the joy of receiving a ration of milk and bowl of barley will be just as great. This is one Christmas present thousands of Canadians can give.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, reports that two-thirds of the USC's target of 310,000 Friendship Dollars has been collected, but she adds "the last mile is always the most difficult."

All food is distributed in the name of Canada through the Unitarian Service Committee.

All contributions should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas, or delivered before 5:30 p.m. Donations are also being accepted at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Yates and Douglas.

Acknowledgement of contributions will be made in a daily list published in the Times and official receipts will be sent later from USC headquarters.

DIEF URGES GOV'T BUY SIR JOHN A.'s HOME

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was urged to buy the Kingston, Ont., home of Sir John A. Macdonald as a memorial to Canada's first prime minister.

The suggestion was made in the Commons by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. Acting Prime Minister Chevrier promised to have the matter discussed with Works Minister Deschatelets and Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the Macdonald home in Kingston is up for sale and proposed the government buy it as a national memorial where Canadians could honor one of the great architects of Confederation in 1867.

'UHURU' THURSDAY

Doubt and Hope Hang Over Kenya

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—A veil of uncertainty, woven of doubt, hope and fear hangs over the future of Kenya, where British rule ends Thursday after 68 years.

Much rides on the fate of Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta's government, which draws its main strength from the powerful Kikuyu tribe, and on its smooth assumption of power. In the view of one British commentator, its success could boost prospects of racial reconciliation in South Africa, and perhaps even as far afield as the United States.

Conversely, its failure — especially if marked by violence —would have a disastrous effect far beyond Kenya's borders.

Writes Barbara Ward-Jackson in The Observer: "No small state . . . has ever had the same certainty of affecting profoundly the politics of other lands."

To some British minds, sympathetic towards the trials of the British settlers and fearing a resurgence of Mau Mau terrorism, the prospect looks unhappy. Behind the veil, they fear, may lie the bloody pit of another Congo.

To others, prepared to forget the past and rooting for Kenyatta's success, Kenya's economic burden seems too heavy for a baby state to bear and they too are apprehensive.

Basically everyone is reacting the same way—keeping fingers firmly crossed.

The problems of independence are daunting. Despite his sweeping electoral mandate and conciliatory tone towards minorities, Kenyatta may find it tough to reconcile his country's bitter tribal conflicts and reassure Asians who face the loss of their jobs to Africans.

The border dispute with Somalia, which recently concluded an arms deal with Russia, could flare up any day. Somali tribesmen in Kenya have a geographical case for secession.

There is the problem of getting the agricultural economy moving. Under Kenyatta's 1,000,000-acre scheme, about one-third of land formerly owned by white farmers has been purchased for Africans, many of them unskilled in modern methods.

'CLOCK PUT BACK'

Author Elspeth Huxley, writing in The Sunday Telegraph, describes how established farms are reverting to peasant-worked small holdings and comments "it was like watching the clock put back."

Some 3,000 white farmers remain to help underpin the economy, but even the Kenyatta government fears their future may be endangered by the driving African hunger for land that is the dominant force in Kenya politics.

Kenyatta has urged that the cry of "uhuru"—freedom — be replaced by "harambe"—pulling together for the common good. But Africans may ignore his restraining influence in an urge to equate independence with "instant high living."

There also is the problem of developing Kenya's light industries. This largely hangs on the creation of an East African common market, and the outcome of the East African Federation envisaged by Tanganyika's Julius Nyerere remains hazy.

An economic solution for Kenya is suggested in The Observer article by Barbara Ward-Jackson — financial aid from Britain and the Atlantic Alliance. The sums needed would be small—perhaps £14,000,000 ($42,000,000).

Women Driven Back By S.A. Police Dogs

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI)—Snarling police dogs on 100-foot-long leashes today drove back a crowd of 500 Indian women and children who broke through police lines in a futile attempt to see Premier Hendrik Verwoerd. The crowd gathered in front of Pretoria's union building to protest the formation of the government-backed Indian National Council, which the women claimed does not represent the Indian community.
